Battles Tied to Kitchens, Shops, Mills and Theatres

Continuation of Normal Standards of Living on the Home Front Would Mean Fewer Materials and Supplies for Our Fighting Men

Battles in the far corners of the earth are tied by strong, invisible hands to what happens in our kitchens, our corner grocery, drug store, shoe shop, dry-goods store, laundry, lumber mill, paint shop, hardware store, motion picture theatre. If we bought freely everything we wanted, many of our fighting men would lack shoes, clothing, mattresses, medical supplies. There would be fewer guns, tanks, planes and ships. Our enemies would profit from our "normal standards of living."

Inflation Is Not Licked
On the other hand, if the sellers of goods took advantage of that greatly increased national income which is competing for the limited amount of goods available, another kind of enemy—the war wage inflation—would score a victory. The Office of Price Administration warns us that the threat of inflation, of high living costs, is not licked. Our surplus buying power still is mounting, while farm products and wages are loopholes in the Price Control Program which will need serious attention. If living costs are not to soar as in previous wars, farmers will have to take less for their products, workers will have to give up the idea of unnecessary wage boosts, and

LEAGUE FINALS SUNDAY AT 3:30

Greenwood and Avamere
Holds Meet for Volleyball
League Champ Honors

Sunday afternoon on the beach at the end of 20th Street will be the scene of the Virginia Beach hotel and volleyball league play-off at 3:30 p. m. Allen Cook and his "Greenwood Greens" will play Bill Seawell and the "Avamere Hornets" in the final two-out-of-three game match which will decide the championship for the trophy to be awarded by the Virginia Beach Department of Recreation.

Cheering Sections
Net positions held by the Avamere team include Douglas Jones, Dick Nickols, and Bill Seawell, backed up by Clarence Smith, Edward Hyman and others. Players names on the Greenwood team were not available.

Cheering sections from each hotel will be present to spur the boys to action, and conspicuous signs will be placed along the beach to advertise the final match to which the public is invited free of charge. Other hotels and cottages which participated in the Volleyball League are the Dolphin, Tourist Haven, Kenilworth, Courtney Terrace, Spotswood Arms, Albermarle Hall, Avalon, Pocomtans, Murray's, n. Beach Plaza, Ocean Terrace, Waverly Hotel and the New-castle Hotel.

PORTABLE FIRST AID SURGICAL UNIT PRESENTED TO RED CROSS

A portable first aid surgical and canteen unit will be presented to the officers of the Princess Anne County Chapter of the American Red Cross for local use at special ceremonies to be held Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock on the lot adjacent to the Red Cross headquarters at Sixteenth and Atlantic Avenue, Virginia Beach, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. H. H. Zimmerley, vice-chairman of the chapter.

The portable unit will be presented to the local Red Cross officers by George D. Russ, owner of the Russ Company, Norfolk, distributors of house trailers.

Major M. L. Todd, of the Office of Civilian Defense for Princess Anne County, will make a brief address explaining how this gift can be used in time of emergency for the people of Virginia Beach and throughout the county. It is considered a most valuable addition to the emergency equipment now be-

RENTAL BLANKS ARE AVAILABLE FOR PROPERTY NOT RECORDED

Deadline for Registration of Hotel and Rooming House
Units Passed This Week

OFFICE ESTABLISHED IN CHAMBER OF COM. BLDG.

Application Blanks for Seasonal Increases Have Not Yet Been Received

Although the deadline for registration of hotel, rooming house and tourist home rental units was reached on August 31, the flow of information blanks into the Virginia Beach Rent Control Office continued steadily throughout the Labor Day weekend. Hotel and rooming house operators, each with his own knotty problems, have thronged the Chamber of Commerce building, where the rent control office has been established, seeking information and interpretations of the regulations which govern such registration.

Adding to the confusion were many individual property owners who had failed to meet the July 15 date on the registration of single dwellings and apartments. Many such forms are still being received. Mr. A. H. Lawrence, local inspector, stated yesterday, urging that all owners of rentable residential properties hasten to register before penalties are imposed for failure to observe this ruling of the office of Price Administration.

Many Still Unregistered

"Officials at the Hampton Roads Area Rent Office in Norfolk were unable to estimate the number of hotel, rooming house and tourist camp properties still unregistered, but it was believed that the number would run into several hundred. Forms are still available at the Virginia Beach office for owners of such properties who have not yet registered, and the blanks will be issued to all who apply for them.

The hotel and rooming house form, it was pointed out, should be filled in and filed by all persons in this area who rent rooms to more than two paying tenants." (Continued on Page Four)

REED SWORN IN AS TRIAL JUDGE

Roland Thorp Becomes Substitute Justice; Daytime Sessions Each Monday and Friday

J. Davis Reed, Jr., of Lynnhaven and Norfolk, was sworn in as Princess Anne County's new trial judge Tuesday in the office of W. F. Hudgins, clerk of the county's four-year term of Eugene V. Gresham, which will end on June 30, 1946. Also sworn in to the substitute trial justice post, formerly held by Mr. Reed, was Roland Thorp, of 115th Street, Virginia Beach.

Judge Gresham, who took office over eight years ago when the trial justice law first became operative, tendered his resignation effective as of September 1 because of the press of personal business. He had been reelected for his third term beginning July 1, and previously he had served as a justice of the peace and had presided over the juvenile and domestic relations court for several years.

White Makes Appointment

Mr. Reed sat as substitute trial justice at Princess Anne Court House for the last time on Monday afternoon, when he disposed of a heavy docket of criminal and civil cases. He has served as a substitute trial justice since December, and he has been sitting on the bench continuously since August 17. His appointment to fill the vacancy caused by Judge Gresham's resignation was made by Judge B. D. White, of the Princess Anne Circuit Court.

When Mr. Reed took over the direction of the court in August he introduced daytime sessions, and cases are now heard each Monday and Friday afternoons at 2:00 o'clock. Previously, this court had met at night.

Smallpox and Typhoid Care Urge of Health Department

Presence of Many War Workers in State from Infected Regions Makes Vaccination and Immunization Desirable, Dr. Riggins Says

Due to the pronounced population shifts affecting many sections of Virginia, the marked increase of eating and refreshment places in various localities of the State and the likelihood that more Virginians will seek recreational outlets in nearby areas this year than in previous seasons, preventative treatment against smallpox, typhoid and paratyphoid fever is urged for all, irrespective of age, by Dr. I. C. Riggins, State Health Commissioner.

In this connection, the Princess Anne County Health Department has arranged a smallpox vaccination and diphtheria immunization clinic to be held at the Virginia Beach Health center on Friday, September 11, between the hours of 2:00 and 3:00 P. M. This clinic is principally for the benefit of those children of school age who have failed to be vaccinated in accordance with the provisions of the State law.

Real Hazard Exists

The tremendous influx of war workers, Dr. Riggins continued, some of whom come from areas in the United States where smallpox regularly occurs, represents a real hazard which vaccination will remove. While Virginia itself for years has had an excellent smallpox record, with cases practically non-existent, due to compulsory vaccination of those about to enter school, there are many areas in this country where smallpox remains a real problem, resulting in thousands of cases annually. It is conceivable that the infection will be transported from such areas by individuals

GRESHAM, SMITH ARE REELECTED TOWN OFFICERS FOR NEW YEAR

Council Returns Police Justice and Town Attorney to Posts
by Unanimous Vote

DEBT SERVICE REPORT IS MADE BY COL. RICE

Final Payment on Police and Fire Station Included in Commission's Expenditures

Eugene V. Gresham was reelected Police Justice for the Town of Virginia Beach and Roy Smith was returned to his post as Town Attorney by unanimous action of the town Council taken at the reorganization meeting in the Council Chamber on Tuesday night. All members of the council were present including H. A. Holt, Jr., who made his initial appearance as a member of the governing body.

Also returned to their present posts were Clarence Hayman, Assistant Justice, and W. F. Patton, Mayor pro-tem. No other nominations were received from the councilmen.

Debt Service Report

Col. H. L. Rice, recently reelected as chairman of the Debt Service Commission, presented the second annual report of that body. The report, approved by the commission at its August meeting, noted that Edward M. Hardy had replaced Lawrence Lockwood as a member of the commission, following Mr. Lockwood's induction in the Navy. J. B. Withers, the third member of the commission.

The sum of $65,004.00 was received from the Town Treasurer during the past fiscal year for the general debt service account. Col. Rice reported, and $25,521.00 for the incinerator account. Of the funds received for the incinerator account, $25,000.00 was paid on the outstanding notes and the balance as interest.

Payments Made

Total expenditures on the general debt service account were set at $66,583.00, or $1,578.00 in excess of actual receipts for the year. Of this amount, $22,922.00 applied to debt retirement and $43,661.00 to interest on outstanding indebtedness. The close of the fiscal year found $677.00 in the bank to the credit of the Debt Service Commission.

Included in the payments made by the commission was the final $1,000.00 payment on the police and fire station and the retirement of some Sea Pines bulkhead notes, sewage disposal plant bonds, Lynn-

Headlight Hood Made Available

Disout Device Perfected By Beach Man; Approved By Office of Civilian Defense

A headlight control hood, adjustable to conform with regulations governing driving lights in dimits, blackouts of all types, went on sale this week in the Tidewater area. The hoods were invented and patented by J. C. Harris of Virginia Beach.

Made of a black material which excludes light from the headlights, the hoods have been approved for use by both State and local Offices of Civilian Defense. They fasten over the top of the lamp rim and cannot be stolen without dismantling the headlight.

Hoods Adjustable
The hoods are adjustable in several positions with the aid of two thumb bolts on either side. For shore driving, there is a small section of light thrown on the road and for town driving only the lower half of the headlight is uncovered. The hood can fold back to give full light where inland highways are being driven on and there is an adjustment for complete blackout.

The hoods are made in two sizes, one for automobiles of 1940, 1941 and 1942 models, which have the sealed beam lights, and one for all models of 1939 and earlier. The equipment includes blackouts for tail-lights.

Use for the hoods throws the light beam on the highway with a minimum of it visible from above. The source from which it comes is well concealed.

Approximately 105 boys are born to every 100 girls in the United States, census figures have shown.

Unequal pressure in automobile tires will cause front wheels to shimmy.

HEALTH NOTES

FOCAL INFECTION

"The term 'focal infection' is heard very often though many persons have a hazy idea as to its meaning. Focal infection is caused by a collection of germs in some particular point in the body which results in the development of poisons. When such toxins reach the blood stream and lymphatic system or penetrate the tissues they frequently do much harm to the general constitution," states Dr. I. C. Riggan, State Health Commissioner.

"Focal infections can develop chronic changes in the kidneys, joints and the heart. Sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia and so-called rheumatism in a reasonable number of cases also can be blamed on focal infection."

"The necessity for prompt discovery of the poison source and its removal is essential in many cases if permanent tissue changes in the affected bodily structures are to be avoided. If the focal infection is discovered and removed reasonably soon after the symptoms have developed, relief usually follows. If, because of delay in seeking medical advice, the poisons have a chance to dig in, then the most that medicine can do, in many cases, is to prevent further progress of the disease."

"The physician, therefore, usually makes an extensive examination involving laboratory tests and x-ray when the cause of the patient's illness is not clear and there is reason to suspect that a focal infection may be back of it."

"A focal infection can develop in many parts of the body. However, the most usual sites for them are at the roots of the teeth, the tonsils, the middle-ear and the cavities of the skull, the sinuses, which directly communicate with the nasal passages. Definitely less frequent locations are the gall bladder, appendix, joints, reproductive organs, intestinal tract and wounds."

"From the standpoint of prevention, proper daily hygiene the semi-annual visit to the dentist will be of great assistance in eliminating conditions that readily can develop into focal mouth infections. In addition, adhering reasonably to the keynote living rules and thereby maintaining good all-round health is an excellent 'defensive' procedure."

"It is true that many local infections develop for which no power of prevention appears to exist. Consequently, the first suggestion to the patient that something is wrong comes in the form of bodily manifestations. This is likely to be removed from the casual point."

"Therefore, if in spite of reasonable attention to ones health welfare, a conscious illness of doubtful origin arises, a prompt visit to the family physician is in order. By so doing, the doctor is in the best position to locate the hidden malfactor, eliminate the infection and restore health."

"Much of the real power of focal infection lies in the tendency of persons, even though aware that something is wrong, to put off seeking medical advice. Modern medicine can fight valiantly and often successfully against condition if given a chance in time."

FLOWBACK OF SCRAP METAL SLOWS UP

Most definitely, we must redouble our efforts to get scrap metals back into the furnaces. The Office of Price Administration says that the flow of scrap is not increasing enough and shipments lately have been of poorer quality and both OPA and WPB attacked rumors that there was to be a rise in the Maximum price for iron and steel scrap. WPB further said that these rumors caused grounds for concern lest they bring about a slackening of the nation-wide salvage drive. This we cannot afford, this we cannot tolerate. Already, in some factories, production has slackened because of a shortage of materials. Anyone who contribute to this shortage of scrap, anyone who knows of the existence of a scrap pile and does not act to see that it gets back to the furnaces is helping our enemies.

One by one the metals and materials were drafted for war. One by one their use has been prohibited except in the most necessary civilian production. Until as scarities grew, only gold and silver—iron—remained as metals worthless for the job which is today our only job. Last week gold stood alone in the strong box reserved for useless metal. Silver took its place

Office of Defense Transportation is making every effort to get fuel oil to the Seaboard States. In a few weeks now, oil will be moved from the oil fields in solid 60-car trains, running on fast scheduled, and throughout the Middle die West great gangs of men are busy laying new pipe lines.

With fuel deliveries for operating heat and cooling equipment suspended between August 3 and September 15, and fuel oil for hot water heaters restricted, the Atlantic Seaboard is in a position to begin building a stock pile against winter. But now is the time for home owners in that rationed area to convert to coal if they can, and stock up with coal immediately, too. Now is the time for home owners on the Atlantic Seaboard who can't convert and use coal to take every possible step to reduce oil consumption—by weather stripping and by making sure that their burn or operates at full capacity.

BLACK DAWN by Victor Rousseau

W.N.U. FEATURES

CHAPTER VIII SYNOPSIS

Dave Bruce, out of a job, arrives at Wilbur Ferris' Cross-Bar ranch. Curran, the foreman, promises him a job if he can break a horse called Black Dawn. When he succeeds, he discovers Curran expected the horse to kill him. A girl named Lois tries to break the horse for breaking "her" horse. The horse refuses to speak to Dave even when he uses his savers to pay off the horse on the small ranch she shares with her foster father, a man named Hooker. When Hooker is killed by a shot fired through the window, Lois has Dave arrested for murder. But when the local people, encouraged by Curran, attempt to lynch him, Lois and Black Dawn save him, but Lois is wounded. They are now back at Hooker's ranch house.

He gathered the girl into his arms and staggered into it.

"You think I'm going off to leave you like this?" Dave asked. "I didn't think you would. But I'm going with you. And we've got to get right now. They may be on their way here."

"Where to?" "There's a place I know where they can't find us. It's a cave in the mountains I found once, long ago. You'll be safe there till they get tired of looking for you, or think you've got clean away."

"You ain't strong enough to ride, Lois."

"I reckon I'm all right. Give me your hand." She struggled up into a sitting posture. "I'll be all right. I can slip, slipping to her feet. 'See!' She swung her arms and Dave put out his hand anxiously, then stood firm on her feet. He was all of all, you see, Mr. Hooker had a forty-five and a box of cartridges under his bunk. See if you can find them."

"Dave went into the adjoining room and found the gun which he thrust into his holster. He went back to the room where he found a slab of bacon from a horse beside the door."

"He lifted it down, got some flour and coffee, and carried them outside. Lois came to the door. 'Black Dawn will come when I call him,' she said, and Mr. Hooker's horse. 'We'll be all right. The saddles and reins are in there.' She pointed toward the shed behind the cabin. He outlined just visible in the dense darkness. Then she whistled twice. A moment or two later Dave heard the sound of a horse's hoofs scrambling up to the edge of the mesa. In the light that came from the cabin he could see the big stallion coming at a slow lope toward the girl. Behind him was the vague outline of another horse—Hooker's. Feeling his way into the shack, Dave found two saddles and bridles. He brought them out and radiated Hooker's horse, while Lois did the same to the black. Then he wrapped the package of food in his slicker roll and placed it behind the cattle.

"Listen!" Lois whispered. "Hearing his ears, he could hear the sound of horse hoofs some where below. There must have been at least half a dozen animals. To judge from the way they could not have been more than a hundred yards away from the cabin. The noise was upon their feet. He started into the cabin and put out the light. He had no doubt it had been seen. A yell from the lower mesa indicated that fact, and there sounded the cry of horses galloping over the slope."

"We're just in luck!" Lois whispered. Dave swung her into his saddle and mounted Hooker's horse. Curran and his men were close at hand now, but they still had to surmount the slope that ran up to the topmost mesa. And the next instant the black was moving silently away into the ferns, and Dave's horse was following.

The horses knew the trail in the darkness, for they had to back through what seemed an almost impenetrable growth of stunted jack-pine and aspen. The girls had been just in time. They could not have been more than a hundred yards away from the cabin when the noise of an animal of savage eyes came from the base of a fissure called "The Devil's Den."

"What's that?" Lois asked. "We saw that. Come on, now you two is here. Come out and take it, or else. I'll take the shack over the horses. We got yeh surrounded."

"Little Jack and Hooker's brown horse had already penetrated the growth of the growth and were ascending a trail running steeply up toward the mountains."

The utter silence of the mountains was now Dave and Lois riding side by side over the uplands. A sense of joy in Dave's heart, such as he had never known. He leaned toward Lois. "Yuh feelin' better?" he asked. "Ain't far to that cave yuh spoke of, is it?" "Not far now," she answered, and he noticed with apprehension how wavy her voice sounded. "Lois, in the lead, turned Black Dawn aside, and Dave perceived, in the faint starlight, a narrow trail that ran away from a ravine through a spindling growth of aspen. The horses were going down a deep slope now, bracing their shoulders firmly, half walking and half sliding. It was evident that they had been along this trail before.

They were almost at the bottom of the ravine, for beyond it the cliffs towered up to meet the cool black sky. There was green grass underfoot, and the sound of a rivulet falling from the rocks above. Lois reined in Black Dawn. "This is the place, Dave," she said, and slid from her saddle, to fall in a crumpled heap upon the grass.

Dave fung himself upon his knees beside her. The upper part of the overalls, already stiffened with blood, was wet with a new flow from her wound. Lois was breathing gently, but she had dropped unconscious.

In the face of the rocks immediately to the right of him Dave saw the entrance to a cave. He gathered the girl into his arms and staggered into it. Then he laid the girl down on the pebbly floor.

Dave tore off his scarf and made a pad of it, compressing the wound and holding it there for minutes.

When he gently removed it, there came another spurt of blood. Again, this time for half an hour, Dave held the compress in position, and when he ventured to remove it the flow had dwindled to a small trickle.

He fastened the bandages and, with a cut-throat, unsaddled the horse and left them to graze. He took a tin cup from his roll and felt his fingers for foot toward the sound of running water. He found a little pool that splashed down into the ravine. He filled the cup, carried it back to Lois and forced the contents down her throat.

Spreading his blanket in the cave, he covered the girl up and placed her upon it. After that there was nothing to do but wait for dawn.

It came after an immeasurable time. Dave did not know the hour, and glowing rays upon the mountain tops. Now it began to grow light inside the cave, and Dave could see the trail extended backward for a considerable distance. They seemed so close enough, so long as their feet lasted.

As he bent over the girl, her lips moved; he could just catch the fragmentary muttering: "Well, Ferris rode in. Curran had aroused the ranchman at dawn and informed him of the events of the night, and the futile attempt to follow the trail of the fugitives."

Judge Loneragan's house was the substantial one. Loneragan's Mexican servant, named Ferris, into a comfortably furnished living-room, where Loneragan was seated at his breakfast table.

"Morning, Ferris," Loneragan greeted his visitor. "Sit down and have a bite, won't you? I've got a quarter of an hour before holding the inquest over old Hooker."

He wiped his mouth with a napkin, leaned back, and surveyed Ferris with a sidelong look that was not lost on the ranchman. Wilbur Ferris sank heavily into a chair. "What the devil's all this mess about?" he demanded fiercely. "Damn you, Loneragan, I believe you brought that murdering cove into this district for some infernal reason of your own."

"Now that doesn't do credit to your intelligence, Ferris," responded Loneragan, after draining his cup of coffee. "Part is, I never set eyes on him till he came into the Wayside Rest, day before yesterday, and paid off old Hooker's mortgage interest."

"I want to know what that girl Lois Hooker, is to you," said Ferris. "What did you bring the Hooks here for, and why have you kept them here these twelve years past? And why did you decide that the time had come to get rid of them?"

"Go easy, Ferris," Loneragan advised him. "You don't want to worry about my business. I've stood by you a good while now, when you'd have been down and out, and—"

"Yep, you've about drove me to my limit, Loneragan," answered Ferris. "You put that man Curran in charge of the Cross-Bar, and you sent away my good cowhands and brought in a gang of Mexicans."

"And now this Bruce fellow comes along and plays hell generally, and after his murdering old Hooker, that girl, Lois, stages a rescue from the lynch party. I tell you, it don't look straight to me. I want to know what he's behind it."

Loneragan bit off the end of a cigar and lighted it. He emitted a puff or two of smoke before replying. "So you think I've ridden you too hard, Ferris?" he asked. "Maybe I have seen my advantage and taken it when it came along. Lemme see, Ferris," he continued in an irrelevant manner, "you must be close on sixty, if I'm not mistaken."

"What's that got to do with it?" demanded the ranchman. "Quite a lot," said Loneragan. "Why go on worrying, and nussling your head with things? I'll bother you! Ever think of a place in California to end your days in peacefully? A place where you wouldn't have to handle the law of me? I'd never trouble you, Ferris, if you should decide to sell out to me."

"You guess right, Ferris," answered Loneragan. There was a steady glitter in the judge's eyes now, in spite of the sardonic look. "After all, Ferris, you owe me everything you've been, don't you? No, I'm not going back over old times. But there's my offer."

"The Cross-Bar's worth forty thousand, if it's worth a penny!" Ferris shouted. "I'd say it will be nearer fifty, when prices lift," responded the other. "I'll make it nine thousand clear, if you accept my offer and quit within the next two weeks."

Ferris was standing like a statue, but slowly his head and shoulders bowed. A look of utter misery came over his face.

"Listen, Loneragan," he pleaded. "You know how I came into this district years ago—"

"With Blane Rowland, your partner, who ran off with that check for the cattle," interposed Loneragan. "I've made my home here. It's hard to have to pull up stakes and start afresh. If you'd make it twenty thousand I'd feel it might be done. But can't this business be settled somehow else?"

"Nope," answered Loneragan decisively. "My offer's nine thousand, and it's got to be accepted or rejected within the next couple of days. And two weeks to vacate. You'll have to excuse me now, Ferris, because they be waiting for me to expunge the jury."

He walked past the ranchman, took down his hat from a slant on the wall, and clapped it on his head. Wilbur Ferris, who had been watching him in dumb disbelief, moved slowly toward the door.

STATE TRAFFIC DEATHS DOWN

Decrease in Fatal Accidents of 52 Per Cent on Va. Roads Reported for July

Traffic deaths in Virginia in July continued the decline begun in May, the Department of State Police reported yesterday. Deaths in July of this year totaled 42 as compared with 88 a year ago, preliminary figures showed. This was a decrease of 52.3 per cent.

The total deaths for the first seven months of 1942 were 397, a decrease of 154, or 27.9 per cent from the 1941 figures of 551. This decrease was accomplished in May, June and July, for the death total during the three months this year was only 116 as compared with 379 in the same months of 1941. This represents a decrease of 159, or almost 58 per cent.

New Speed Limit Helps
"We have undoubtedly been very fortunate," said Major C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police, "but the new speed limit plus the rationing of gasoline have helped us."

"Travel in the state during the seven-month period is off last year by 10 per cent, but even so our mileage death rate has dropped 19.6 per cent from 16.3 in 1941 to 13.1 in 1942."

"In August of last year there were 107 traffic deaths in Virginia. It is too early to say what this August has brought, but we hope that total will be under 107."

Observance Asked
Pointing out that the reduction in accidents and deaths have apparently been due at least in part to the 40-mile speed limit, Major Woodson issued a plea for continued observance of the limit.

"A great many people read in the paper that the State Police were arresting hundreds of speeders, and those readers slowed down too and that they wouldn't be caught. Now they are gradually pressing down on the accelerator again, and arrests are following. Slow down to 40 — and don't drive over 40 again until the law is changed. Let's keep September's accident record at least 60 per cent below last year."

A similar plea for cooperation has been issued by the Virginia Beach Police Department, which pointed to the usually high traffic toll taken over previous Labor Day weekends.

Checking Flue Sheets

County War Boards have been asked to obtain information concerning requirements for tobacco flue sheets for the 1943 crop. The information includes the names and addresses of fabricators and the pounds of flue-sheets sold for 1942 and now in stock, the jobbers from whom fabricators obtain material, and estimated minimum 1943 requirements.

BOOKS TO OWN

TWO SURVIVED. By Guy Pearce Jones. Introduction by Wm. McFee. Penguin Books, Inc. 189 pp. 25c.

A Review by J. N. G. Finley University of Virginia Extension Division

"Two Survived," written by Guy Pearce Jones, with an introduction by William McFee, is an authentic account of the sinking of the British merchantman "Anglo-Saxon," by the German surface raider "Weser," in a savage attack in the South Atlantic, and of the escape of seven of the crew in an eighteen-foot boat and their journey, such of them as survived, of over a thousand miles through seventy days, until they were washed up on a small island, Eleuthera, in the Bahamas.

While there was strength left to write it, one or another of the survivors kept the log, and it was from this log, and the ghastly recollections of Robert George Tapscott, nineteen, and Wilbert Roy Widdicombe, twenty-one, that Guy Pearce Jones wrote this book, in which the story of the raider's attack, of the escape of the seven, and of the journey of the survivors occupies less than 150 pages. Of that journey Mr. Jones says that: "As an ordeal of endurance the classic trip of Captain Bligh and seventeen men of the 'Bounty' pales in comparison." While, in his preface to the book, Mr. McFee, writing about, and originally for Britishers, says: "It has seldom happened that a narrative so circumstantial, so entirely stripped of all humbug and false sentiment, has come out of the depths of the sea, to inspire us with admiration for human valor and with a conviction that the young men of our time have the same courage and fortitude as their forefathers in the greatest days of Britain's maritime glory."

If you are interested in this book, apply to your local library, or to the University of Virginia Extension Division, in Charlottesville.

gardless of the number of rooms. If you have only one or two paying tenants, the Rent Control Administrator stressed, regardless of the number of rooms rented, you should file your registration on the regular dwelling unit form, blank copies of which are also available.

Provisions of Law
The law requires that all proprietors register their accommodations, describe them and tell what rent they were charging on April 1, 1941, or by some other means provided by the regulations to establish a rental basis. Ceiling rents must be posted in all rooms, with a description of the accommodations provided under the rentals charged.

Application blanks seeking an increase in rates for the summer months, different in most cases from the spring rates called for by these regulations, have not yet been received by the local office but are expected in the next few days. There is no particular hurry about filling in these blanks, it was pointed out, since summer rates will give way to lower charges immediately after the Labor Day weekend. However, these blanks must be filled in and approved by the Rent Administrator before the rates will become applicable next summer.

Office hours of the rent control staff are from 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday, and from 9:00 A.M. to 12:00 P.M. on Saturday. Following the completion of an addition to the Chamber of Commerce Building, the staff will have their own quarters, with an entrance on Sixteenth Street.

Duties of Chaplains Outlined by Colonel

Lt. Col. Harry Lee Virden, assistant to the Chief of Chaplains, U. S. Army, was the speaker at Galilee Episcopal Church, Virginia Beach, on Sunday. His topic was "The Episcopal clergyman as an army chaplain."

Col. Virden served as a chaplain during the first world war, attaining the rank of captain. Since then he has been in parish work in the diocese of Dallas, but kept up an active interest and for a time returned to active duty as a chaplain in the army reserve.

Two years ago he was appointed to serve in the office of the Chief of Chaplains in Washington, with the rank of major, and has since been made a lieutenant colonel. His long experience in army life and his close association with the work of hundreds of chaplains have given him excellent opportunities to know the job of chaplain thoroughly and to estimate the value of the service they give in the armed forces. His talk at Galilee Church was unofficial, and related particularly to the work of chaplains of the Episcopal Church.

Theatre Previews

Opening at the Bayne Theater Friday and Saturday will be "BEYOND THE BLUE HORIZON," starring Dorothy Lamour, Richard Denning, Patricia Morrison and Jack Haley.

Following on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Rosalind Russell, Fred McMurtry, Constance Moore and Robert Benchley will be co-starring in "TAKE A LETTER DARLING." This is the season's merriest comedy romance. A delightful story of a lady executive who hires a male secretary. You will enjoy seeing what happens when the boss forgets herself and says, "Take a Letter Darling."

"PARDON MY SARONG" is the feature attraction on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Bud Abbott and Lew Costello keep this picture up to the usual Abbott and Costello standard. Virginia Bruce and Lionel Atwill are in the supporting cast. The boys this time are in a South Sea guise and with songs and dances give you one of the merriest hits they have ever made.

"DIVE BOMBER" will come to the Roland Theater for Friday and Saturday. This is a Warner Brothers production in technicolor. Thrills at 100 miles an hour! Excitement! The screen has never matched. "Dive Bomber" is not a war picture in the sense that men and planes will be shown in battle conflict. The conflict of its theme is the fight men of science, medical science, are waging to keep ahead of the breathtaking mechanical development of aviation today. In a way this was one of the most costly pictures ever made.

Sunday and Monday Preston Foster and Lynn Bari will be featured in "SECRET AGENT OF JAPAN." There will be a double feature at the Roland Theater Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. "BROOKLYN ORCHID" and the added attraction, "TOPPER TAKES A TRIP."

CHRISTMAS MAIL REGULATIONS FOR SOLDIERS PROMULGATED

The following rules have been promulgated by the Post Office Department in cooperation with the Army Postal Service of the War Department to apply to the mailing of Christmas parcels for members of the armed forces serving outside the continental limits of the United States.

Christmas parcels and Christmas cards should be mailed during the period beginning October 1 and ending November 1, 1942, the earlier the better, the report stated. Each gift package should be endorsed "Christmas Parcel," and special effort will be made to effect delivery of all Christmas parcels mailed during that period in time for Christmas.

Small Parcels Urged
In view of the urgent need for shipping space to transport materials directly essential to the war effort, Christmas parcels should not exceed the present limits of 11 pounds in weight or 18 inches in length or 42 inches in length and girth combined. However, the public is urged by the War and Navy Departments to cooperate by restricting voluntarily the size of Christmas parcels to that of an ordinary shoe box, and the weight of six pounds. These departments have pointed out also that members of the armed forces are amply provided with food and clothing, and the public is urged not to include such articles in gift parcels. Not more than one Christmas parcel or package shall be accepted for mailing in any one week sent by or on behalf of the same person or concern to or for the same addressee.

Preparations
Owing to the great distance this mail must be transported and the handling and any storage it must undergo, it is absolutely necessary that all articles be packed in substantial boxes or container and be covered with wrappings of sufficient strength not only to resist pressure of other mail in the same sack, but to withstand the weight of other sacks of mail, which in the long transit may be piled thereon. Furthermore, as each parcel is subject to censorship, delay in mailing may be minimized by securing the covering of the parcel so as to permit ready inspection of the contents.

Many combination packages will probably be made up, including miscellaneous toilet articles, hard candies, soaps, etc. The contents of such packages should be tightly packed in order that the several articles may not be loosened in transit, damaging the contents of the parcel itself or causing damage to the covering of the parcel. Christmas boxes should be enclosed in substantial containers. Candies in thin pastebord boxes should be enclosed in wood, metal or corrugated pastebord. Sealed packages articles in simplest mercantile form of candy, cigars, tobacco and toilet may be enclosed within parcels without affecting the parcel post classification of such packages. Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments, such as razors, knives, etc., must have their points or edges protected so they cannot cut through their covering and damage other mail or injure postal employees.

No Perishable Matter
No perishable matter should be included in the parcels. Intoxicants, inflammable materials (including matches and lighter fluids) and poisons, or compositions which may kill or injure another, or damage the mails, are unmailable.

Addressees must be legible. Parcels addressed to overseas Army personnel should show, in addition to the full name and address of the sender, the name, rank, Army serial number, branch of service, organization, APO number of the addressee and the post office through which the parcels are to be routed. Units located within the continental limits of the United States may be addressed direct, using name, rank, organization and location.

Postage must be fully prepaid, the rate on parcels of fourth-class matter being the zone rate applicable from the post office where mailed to the post office in care of which the parcels are addressed. Parcels containing only books or forms to the requirements prescribed therefor are acceptable at the special rate of three cents a pound. Stickers or labels resembling postage stamps are not permissible on the outside of parcels.

Rating on Greetings
In addition to the name and address of the sender, which is required, inscriptions such as "Merry Christmas," "Please Do Not Open Until Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes," and like, may be placed on the covering of the parcel in such manner as not to interfere with the address, or on a card enclosed therewith. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a nature of personal correspondence. Mailers should insure their Christmas gifts of more than ordinary value. However, it is suggested that articles of considerable value, especially those of small size, be sealed and sent as first-class registered mail.

The Army Postal Service recommends the use of postal money orders to transmit gifts of money to members of the Armed Forces outside the continental United States. With regard to cash remittances, at many places where United States forces are stationed there is a local prohibition against the importation of United States money, and it could not be used if received. However, domestic money orders can be cashed at APO's wherever they are located, and they are paid in local foreign currency at the rate of exchange in effect on the date of the presentation of the orders.

The following is a list of articles, which are normally considered as gifts to our soldiers: automatic pencils, books (pocket size), cigarettes, cigarette lighters and cases, cigars, fountain pens, dried fruit, small games, handkerchiefs, magazines, subscriptions, note books, pipes, playing cards, pocket flashlights, puzzles, razor blades, soaps (tan), stationery, tobacco, tobacco pouch, toilet kits (small), wallets and wrist watches.

Less Farm Machinery
It is expected that announcement of the outlook for new farm machinery for 1943 will be made soon, and that the allotment of steel for this purpose will be well below the allotment for 1942, with the allotment for repair parts about the same. Civilian needs must give way, as far as possible, to the war's boundless appetite for steel. It is urgent that farmers dispose of every pound of scrap metal they can spare.

Quick Bean Cookery
The amount of time we women have to spend on cooking now, is less than other years. Throughout these summer months we've all been busy. Not just on sedentary social work, but on active work, too. On war-time work in fields and orchards, in dairies and gardens.

Farm crops have never been so vital as they are today. Our cattle, our poultry, our produce never more important. And with man-power depleted as it has been lately we have had to put our shoulders to the plow again, and forebear the pleasures of the kitchen. Well, we've done it before and we can do it again! There's never been a war waged in this country... from the first potshots the Indians took, behind trees, at our homestead ancestors—to the late great war when our menfolk left us behind to fight on foreign shores... we have never have not played an active part in winning. We have been sit-at-homes while our menfolk did the fighting. We could all ways show a rifle, swing an ax, ride a field, ride a horse, with the best of them.

It is a different role that most of us must play today. This is a different kind of war. But we are doing our part just as valiantly as ever in fields and factories—forts and arsenals—in hospitals and clinics and buses. As busy as we are these days most of us don't have time for any lengthy cooking. We need quick, easy, quick-trick dishes that will save us kitchen time and still feed our families well.

Ready-to-serve foods are the answer to this need. Fully prepared dishes like oven-baked beans. The real old-fashioned down-on-the-farm kind of beans that come today in jars and tins. These beans are already baked to a tempting melty tenderness in a tasty spiced tomato sauce. You need only open and

SUPPORT GIVEN HANDICRAFT TO BE FEATURED TO PLAYGROUND

Apparatus for Cooke School Area Will Be Purchased by Proceeds from Dance

The Virginia Beach Lions Club has lent assistance to the town Department of Recreation in the financing of a playground apparatus area now under construction at the rear of the W. T. Cooke school.

President Joe Crosswhite at a meeting of the Lions Club in July, appointed a Playground Committee consisting of Al Craft, Worth Petty and Hugh Coates—who upon investigating the playground situation gave a recommendation for its support by the Club.

On Wednesday, August 12, the Lions Club gave a benefit dance at the Village Barn with music by Johnny Satterfield's orchestra. Both the use of the Village Barn and the orchestra were contributed by Hugh Coates. A part of the proceeds raised at the dance were turned over to the Playground Committee which authorized the sum of $100 to help in the construction of the apparatus area at the school.

This playground area is the first to be established at Virginia Beach and will be managed by personnel of the Virginia Beach Department of Recreation. Such playground apparatus areas are considered essential by the Recreation Department in that the growth of a well-balanced recreation program depends on it.

WINNERS AT RICHMOND STATE FAIR TO COMPETE FOR MANY VALUABLE CASH PRIZES

Fine examples of handwork from the looms and needles of Virginia women will be featured at the nineteenth annual Woman's International Exposition of Arts and Industries at Grand Palace in New York October 26-31.

Winners in the needlework competition of the exposition will be awarded a total of $3,925 in prizes, offered by Woman's Day Magazine of New York, which is sponsoring the contest. The first prize for the outstanding piece of needlework by an amateur will be $1,000, with 33 additional prizes amounting to $1,925.

Sweepstakes Prizes
Finalists for the New York competition will be selected at the needlework exhibition in the Virginia State Fair at Richmond September 28 to October 3. For this event Woman's Day Magazine is offering sweepstakes prizes in each of these classes: crewel work, patchwork, hooking, cross-stitch, knitting, applique, quilting, crochet, weaving, needlepoint and outline embroidery.

War is giving considerable impetus to needlework and the home arts, according to Miss Margaret Kohl, exhibition editor of Woman's Day, who recently completed visits to states where preliminary contests are being held at the state fairs. "Women are more home-minded than ever before, because they have a new appreciation of the security and peace of a home in a democratic country," she says. "They also have a new sense of economy as a war measure and are showing truly American ingenuity in converting scraps and left-over bits of materials and yarns into beautiful pieces of work. We expect the forthcoming contests both at the state fairs and the finals in New York to set new standards of beauty for the art of American needlework."

Free Labor and the War

The most momentous Labor day in history will be observed by the American people on September 7. On this day millions of American workers will signify their determination to out-produce the slave labor of Axis-dominated Europe and Asia in the manufacture of war weapons. This day will be a summons to rally around the slogan, "Free Labor Will Win."

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, recently issued a report covering the progress of the war effort in the first six months of 1942. He showed that American industry and labor are turning out munitions of all kinds at a rate almost three times as great as that before the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor. Nelson's report was no Pollyanna decoupage. He admitted that a long, hard road stretches ahead and warned that "too much boasting" about our achievements was "altogether premature."

The WPB report detailed the gains in production as follows: The output of all munitions for the first six months of 1942 was 1 1/2 times as great as that of the 12 months of 1941. Production of aircraft in these six months exceeded that of the entire 12 months of last year. Merchant ship tonnage delivered was 153 per cent greater than in 1941.

The number of anti-aircraft guns manufactured was about 3 1/2 times greater than that of the entire previous year.

The production of tanks showed a tremendous increase. The production of machine tools

FARM DELIVERY POOL PROPOSED

Gas and Tire Rationing in Rural Areas Makes Cooperative Program Imperative

RICHMOND, Sept. 3—(ANS)—In an effort to postpone the day when entire farm neighborhoods are without facilities for moving produce and supplies because of the tire and gasoline situation, the Board of Directors of Southern States Cooperative has approved a cooperative farm delivery pool program which contemplates the setting up of farmer committees on a neighborhood basis.

"Such pools to be set up in various rural communities," said L. E. Raper, director of membership relations, "would make it possible for farmers living close to each other to develop and carry out a program organized and controlled by them to make tires last longer and gasoline go farther."

"The plan provides for several committees of farmers. The trading area committee is to be composed of a farmer from each community within the trading area. Each of these committees will appoint a neighborhood chairman who in turn will designate men to serve on the neighborhood committee. Through this network of committees, neighbors will alternate with each other in the use of trucks, cars, and wagons for carrying produce to town and supplies from town to the farm."

"It may be necessary sometimes to pool tires from one or more trucks or cars. Neighborhood clearing houses, possibly certain homes with telephones, will receive messages about errands the other families will make and will transmit these messages to the drivers. Also, the clearing house will notify the neighbors of trips that are being planned. This arrangement will cut down the usual indiscriminate traveling to town, and will do much to conserve the precious tires which probably often cannot be replaced even though the vehicle owner secures a Rationing Board purchase permit."

Need Farm Storage
Storage on the farm remains the most feasible means of housing record 1942 crops of small grains and beans produced in support of the nation's war effort, says the USDA. At least 400 million bushels of additional storage space is needed to take care of crops this year. Principal commodities affected are wheat, oats, barley, rye, grain sorghums, flaxseed, soybeans, dry edible beans and rice.

Apples are Special
Fresh apples will be a Victory Special September 17-26, and will be merchandised and featured in store advertising and displays. Fresh tomatoes played a return engagement as a Special August 24 - September 5.

Indoor Games, Sports Equipment Requested

The American Red Cross Chapter of Virginia Beach opened a drive this week among vacationists and residents at the Beach for all kinds of indoor games and sports equipment for use of men at Camp Pendleton.

The drive is being launched by the Chapter in response to an urgent appeal by officers that there is a great lack of equipment to enable the men to participate in sports and other games.

The public is asked to donate victrolas, radios, darts, indoor games, cards, card tables, ping pong tables, volley balls, boxing gloves, punching bags and any other kind of equipment they wish to give for indoor or outdoor amusement.

Local Boy Prepares For Engineer Duty

Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.—William M. Lee, 121st Street, Virginia Beach, who recently entered military service, has arrived at the Engineer Replacement Training Center here for an intensive training program in preparation for combat engineer duty.

Training will include basic subjects like close and extended order drill, manual of arms, rifle marksmanship and combat principles as well as the functions of military engineering—use of tools and equipment, building of fixed and floating bridges, demolitions and construction of roads and obstacles. Soldiers go from here to tactical units or to special training officer candidate schools.

Dear Mr. Harris:

The Harris Auto Head-Light Control hood appears to me to be the best method for blacking out headlights that I have seen. It has the added advantage of being reasonably priced.

I will certainly recommend this hood to the people of Norfolk as being the most economical and effective blackout attachment I have seen.

Sincerely yours,

Robbery goods of all sorts, of course, will be at a premium. The old hangers must be cherished. The new hangers now have a right to a small deposit for their return, unless the customer brings old. Paper dress patterns for home-made dresses will have to be no larger than the garments sold in stores. Cattle hair, the best material for bunk mattresses where the climate is damp, will go to the boys who have to fight in steaming jungles. Veneer made from white oak lumber will be missing from store shelves, and all grades of power, though desirable from the standpoint of production, will go into our national stockpile of vital materials—steel, copper, and the like. Construction in the field, therefore, has been halted. Fortunately for the Pacific Northwest, the Great Bonneville-Grand Coulee Dam systems were completed in time to furnish power for the fifth war aluminum plant in that region. In many parts of the country consumers of electric light and power already are being urged to cut unnecessary use of electricity.

Users of fuel oil will join buyers of gasoline in a broad program to save these liquids, a program brought about by the shipping shortage. The tankers sunk off our Eastern Coast have drawn into their vortex consumers of fuel oil and gasoline from Maine to Texas, from North Dakota to Louisiana. Regulations designed to free some 5,000 to 7,000 tank cars for service on the East Coast will affect 20 states in addition to those where rationing already is in effect. We are learning painfully that in total war what touches one of us touches all of us, one way or another.

Power Construction Halted

The development of new sources of power, though desirable from the standpoint of production, will go into our national stockpile of vital materials—steel, copper, and the like. YOUTHS URGED TO INVESTIGATE AVIATION CADET TRAINING PLAN

An appeal to young men to take advantage of the three ways offered by the Army Air Forces for Aviation Cadet training, was made yesterday by Lieutenant Colonel Leland W. Skaggs, chief of the Recruiting and Induction Service in Virginia.

There are so many attractive inducements being offered potential Aviation Cadets, Colonel Skaggs asserted, that the young men of Virginia should not ponder about applying for appointment, but should only attempt to determine which one of the three methods is most advantageous. The three methods are as follows:

1. Qualified men may enlist as privates in the Army Air Corps (unassigned) and serve there until their turn comes for Aviation Cadet training.
2. They may enlist in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve and wait until they are ordered to report for Aviation Cadet training.
3. College men (and high school seniors about to enter college) may enlist in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve and continue their schooling, provided they maintain satisfactory scholastic standings. Upon graduation or withdrawal from college, men will be assigned to active duty at training centers as facilities become available.

Virtue in Each Plan

There are advantages in each of the three enlistment plans, Colonel Skaggs pointed out. Because training classes for Aviation Cadets start at stated periods, there is no certainty that a recruit will commence Cadet Training at once. Therefore, those who wish to get into the Service immediately, may enlist, under the first plan, in the Air Corps as privates. While awaiting appointment, these soldiers will be assigned to active duty at training centers as facilities become available.

Parade at 11 O'clock

The parade will move promptly at 11:00 A. M. from a location on Atlantic Avenue at Laskin Road and will proceed southward on Atlantic Avenue to the Pinewood Hotel, where the marchers will disband. All traffic along this route will be diverted to other streets during the parade period.

Many pieces of military equipment used in the parade will be placed on exhibit during the afternoon in a roped-off section of 25th Street, with special details assigned to explain their operation to the visiting public. The parade will climax the close of the summer season at Virginia Beach and is expected to be witnessed by a huge crowd of vacationists from all parts of the country.

In the afternoon, between the hours of 2:00 and 4:00 o'clock, the band from Camp Thalia will play a program of concert and martial music on 25th Street.

phased, once they are appointed Aviation Cadets and called for training, their status is identical. Aviation Cadets, while training, receive base pay of $75 per month and a ration allowance of $1 per day. They are also furnished quarters, medical care, uniforms and other clothing and equipment. They are given a $10,000 Government Life Insurance policy at Government expense while undergoing training.

All Cadets who complete their training are commissioned second lieutenants or flight officers in the Army of the United States and are immediately assigned to active duty with the Army Air Forces. They are given an allowance of $150 for uniforms when called to active duty.

Pay is Generous

Monthly pay and allowances of flight officers and second lieutenants are as much as $391 for single officers and $327 for married officers, which amounts include base pay of grade, flying pay, and allowances for rations and quarters. Ground officers serving as second lieutenants receive up to $216 per month for single officers and $252 for married officers.

All applicants for appointment as Aviation Cadets must be between 18 and 26, inclusive, except those who wish to enroll for training as meteorologists, for whom the age limits are from 18 to 30, inclusive. Applicants under 21 must obtain the written consent of their parents or guardians. Candidates may be single or married. In general, physical requirements vary with the special training sought for by the applicants. All candidates for air crew training—bombardiers, navigators and pilots—are re-examination, a "common sense" test. No definite amount of formal schooling is required. Applicants for training as ground officers—armament, communications, engineering, meteorology or photography—are required to submit transcripts of college credits.

Applications may be submitted to any of the Army Recruiting Stations in the State, or to either of the Aviation Cadet Examining Boards, one at 310 W. Campbell Avenue, Roanoke, and the other at Room 204, Lyric Theater Building in Richmond.

"It's essential that the United States compile a backlog of well-trained young airmen," Colonel Skaggs declared in closing. "How soon the tide of battle turns, and how quickly we can end this war triumphantly may depend, largely, on how well we keep 'Em Flying!'"

HOTELS EXPECT GOOD BUSINESS FROM MILITARY IN SEPTEMBER

Late Season Patronage Probably Will Be Confined Largely to Members of Service

BUSINESS OFF FROM LAST SEASON BY 25 PER CENT

Few Houses to Close Before October; Many Reservations Received for Fall

Although the summer resort season closed officially upon the conclusion of the Labor Day holiday, present indications for sustained business throughout the fall months are evident. Don Seiwel, managing director of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, reported yesterday. Reservations and inquiries for late summer accommodations are running substantially ahead of last year in many of the hotels, he said, and a continuation of warm weather is certain to swell weekend crowds to new high levels.

Looking back over the season just closed, it is Mr. Seiwel's opinion that hotel and cottage business fell off about twenty-five per cent from the record established last year. Some hotels report greater decreases in patronage, while others insist their records compare favorably with 1941, but the average is definitely off as a result of restrictions on travel.

Business Off Elsewhere

However, as the Chamber of Commerce sees it, these figures reflect better business at Virginia Beach this summer than elsewhere along the Atlantic coast, where attendance records dropped as much as fifty per cent. Proximity of many Army camps and Navy stations to the Beach is credited with maintaining a normal season here, for service men with their families and friends have been very much in evidence since the spring months.

Because of the transportation facilities, feeding—the Tidewater area from all sections of the country, Virginia Beach has maintained a greater percentage of its resort business than most summer vacation locales elsewhere in Virginia. Figures recently released by the National Park Service show that patronage on the Skyline Drive dropped off as much as 95 per cent during the summer, with comparable decreases reported by the caverns and other inland tourist attractions. Tourist cabin and tourist home business along the main roads has dropped almost to the vanishing point.

Military Business Seen

Anticipated fall and early winter patronage is expected to come mostly from the military and naval personnel and their families located in this area. A considerable volume of such business, it was recalled, was developed last fall, and the outlook for a continued volume of business from this source is said to be encouraging. Special fall rates have gone into effect in all hotels and cottages this week, and some late season vacationists are expected to be attracted by them.

Although some few of the smaller hotels and open-front cottages are now in the process of closing, a survey made this week indicates that most of the facilities of the Beach will be available at least until October 1st. A few houses which normally close during the winter are expected to remain open on an all-year basis, providing adequate help can be found to assure their operation.

4 WORK ROOMS OPENED HERE

Increased Production Quotas on Surgical Dressings Announced by Red Cross

Increased quotas of surgical dressings for the fall months received by the Princess Anne Chapter of the American Red Cross from national headquarters necessitate the opening of new work rooms throughout the county in order that those quotas may be completed in time, it was announced this week by Miss Eleanor Gibson, executive secretary of the chapter. September's quota has been established at 46,000 surgical dressings, she said.

The work room in the Virginia Beach headquarters, located on Atlantic Avenue between 15th and 16th Streets, was opened on Wednesday morning, when production work on the new quota began. Mrs. K. C. Johnson and Mrs. Charles A. Kline are serving as chairman of this unit.

Work Room at Fort Story

The Red Cross center in the Kempsville District, located in the home of Mrs. E. N. Herbert, at the Norfolk City Waterworks, opened on Tuesday morning. Chairmen of this unit are Mrs. Rufus Parks and Mrs. J. D. Gregory.

Another work room will be established at Fort Story in the near future for the wives of officers and men stationed at that Post. It will be under the direction of Mrs. E. G. Mulling and Mrs. David P. Hardy.

Other Workers Needed

Still another room, also scheduled for opening in the near future, will be located in the Oceana section under the chairmanship of Mrs. DeKoven King. The place and date of opening will be announced later.

HARDY REVIEWS TROOPS

Many Civilian Units From Town and County

It was an impressive "All Out for Victory" theme suggested by Virginia Beach's Labor Day parade last Monday morning, as soldiers, sailors and civilian workers marched along Atlantic Avenue in this community's first such demonstration in many years. Adding to the impressiveness were the many guns, both large and small, and other mechanized equipment which the Army contributed to the celebration.

Army units, led by the Harbor Defense Band from Camp Pendleton, and numbering more than one thousand swung smartly by the reviewing stand, where Brig. Gen. David P. Hardy, members of his official staff from the Harbor Defense Sector, Mayor Walter W. Elliott and other town officials took their salutes. The review stand had been erected on the west side of Atlantic Avenue between 17th and 18th Streets, and from this location a public address system told of the various units and organizations as they marched along the route.

Many View Exhibits

Rain threatened to fall during the morning, but held up long enough for the parade to reach its announced destination and for the large crowd of spectators to get back to their holiday headquarters. During the afternoon, thousands of persons lined the boardwalk to listen to the concert played by the Camp Thalia band and to inspect the mechanized equipment which had been placed on display by the Army on 16th Street.

Other groups participating in the line of march included the bands from the military posts at Fort Story and Camp Thalia and the Navy band from Camp Allen. Civilian units included the motor corps, surgical dressing and production groups, canteen service, home nurses, first aiders and the newly-acquired portable surgical trailer from the Princess Anne Chapter, American Red Cross.

Civilian Defense Units

From the Virginia Beach Civilian Defense organization came auxiliary policemen and firemen, with their fire-fighting equipment, air raid wardens, motorized repair units, rescue squads, aircraft warning service representatives and public works groups. Other representatives from the county civilian defense office, headed by Floyd T. Deary, coordinator for the county, also participated.

Garden Club to Meet On Monday Afternoon

The Princess Anne Garden Club will hold its first fall meeting on Monday, September 14th at 3 P.M. at the home of Mrs. Edward M. Hardy on Avenue C. Miss Elizabeth Gregory Hill, president, will preside.

There will be a discussion of plans of garden work for the coming year. The newly elected officers, chairmen and their standing committees will be presented to the club.

LEAGUE CROWN TO GREENWOOD

Volleyball Trophy Awarded by Recreation Department to Winners of Tourney

The Virginia Beach Recreation Department closed the hotel and cottage Volleyball League season on Sunday with the final championship match in which the Greenwood won over the Avamere, three out of five games, 22-20, 21-16 and 21-9.

The final match was played before a cheering crowd of spectators representing both cottages, and many others who lined the boardwalk and beach at 20th Street.

Cook Is Captain

The Greenwood team, captained by Allen Cook was composed of players George Porter, server, Bill Patton, Bill Tarr, Freddie Malina, Johnny Mallard, Allen Miller, Billy Carr, Floyd Malzer, Fritz Sharp, Hoyet Williams and Jake Lowenberg, which includes the substitutes.

The Avamere team with Captain Bill Seawell, had James Kitchen, server, Dick Nickols, Doug Jones, Hugh Kitchen, Clarence Smith, Henry McKimmon, Edward Hyman, Tony Burk and one substitute, "Gump" Haynes who filled in for Edward Hyman in the second game.

J. P. Robinson and Jacob B. Lowenberg acted as referees. The trophy, awarded by the Recreation Department of the Town of Virginia Beach by Miss Marjorie Kerfoot, assistant director and manager of the Volleyball League, will be displayed by the Greenwood team for a year, and will automatically revert to the Greenwood for ownership upon the championship of three successive years in the Volleyball League.

Contrary to official volleyball rules, the Volleyball League games are played according to "Virginia Beach rules" and do not call for pivoting of players, nor of service. Eight players constitute a team in the League with nine players in any final championship match. Substitutions may be made at any time, and as long as both teams agree, any rule goes.

The Recreation Department, headed by Hugh Lynn Cayce, plans to continue the hotel and cottage Volleyball League next summer on even a larger and better scale.

MARSH NIMROD BAN IS STUDIED

Proposal to Limit Marsh Shooting as War Measure Being Considered by Group

A study of the effects of a proposed move to prohibit all marsh shooting in Virginia within 30 miles of the Atlantic coast is now being conducted by William S. Snow, chairman of the State Game and Inland Fisheries Commission, according to word received this week from Richmond.

Chairman Snow reported that he had been apprised of a plan by the U. S. Coast Guard for the imposing of such a ban, and he promised to give it his immediate consideration. A thirty-mile zone would prohibit all waterfowl hunting except in areas far up tidal rivers.

The proposal was classified as a war move to afford greater protection against the possible landing of saboteurs along the coast, and will be presented shortly to Governor Darden in the form of a request that the area be closed to hunting.

Similar requests, it is understood, have been sent to the Governors of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

SPECIAL POLICE DETAIL IS OPEN TO LOCAL MEN

Navy Needs Recruits Trained in Police Work for Important Guard Assignments

REGISTRATION MONDAY

Should Apply to Norfolk Recruiting Station

Lieutenant Charles L. Kessler, head of Navy Recruiting in Virginia, announced today that Chief Petty Officer Ted Miller, USN, will be at the Navy Recruiting Station in Norfolk, on Monday, September 14, for the purpose of interviewing applicants for a special Navy police detail.

These men will be enlisted in the Naval Reserve for the duration of the war and will be discharged as soon thereafter as practicable. Men between 25 and 45 years of age with previous military police or civilian police experience are eligible. Accepted applicants will be enlisted in ratings from Second Class Boatwain's Mate up to and including Chief Boatwain's Mate. The base pay for these ratings ranges from $96.00 to $126.00 per month. With Allowances, the pay scale runs from $178.50 to $208.50 per month.

Draft Status Changed

Lieutenant Kessler said indications are that many men who previously had thought they would not be subject to military draft now find themselves being reclassified and subject to call in the not too distant future. These men in particular should give early attention to the thought of what branch of the armed services they see fit to serve in.

Lieutenant Kessler pointed out that the Navy did not desire to "raid" the police department of any community in order to obtain men and suggested that men now engaged in police work should check with their superiors as to their future status with their department at the conclusion of the war before enlisting. He said he felt there was little doubt that if a man faced with the possibility of being drafted soon, desired to enlist in the Navy at this time without endangering his future connections with the police organization.

Important Assignment

This particular assignment, the lieutenant said, would provide qualified men to render the kind of service for which their training best equips them, and that it is a recognized fact that the guarding of our arsenals and key bases is of such paramount importance as to not require further elucidation.

Lieutenant Kessler emphasized that the first assignment of these men would be under the Commandant, Fifth Naval District, Norfolk, Virginia.

SURGICAL UNIT GIVEN CHAPTER

Presentation of Portable Trailer Made to Red Cross on Sunday by George Russ

"An insurance policy against possible need" which he hoped would never arise was the characterization given by Major M. L. Todd to the mobile emergency first aid unit presented to the Princess Anne Chapter of the American Red Cross at ceremonies held last Sunday afternoon at local Red Cross headquarters. The trailer was a gift from George D. Russ, of the Russ Equipment Company, Norfolk.

Preservation of the trailer on behalf of Mr. Russ, who could not attend the ceremony, was made by H. W. Chaffee, chairman of the Red Cross Chapter, and was accepted by Wallace Clark, chairman of the disaster relief committee of the organization. Dr. H. H. Zimmerman, vice-chairman of the chapter, served as master of ceremonies and presented the speakers to the gathering of townspeople, soldiers and visitors.

Chapter's Work Praised

Praise for the work of the Red Cross in this area was voiced by Russell Hatchett, treasurer of Virginia Beach, and by Floyd E. Kellam, who represented the board of supervisors of Princess Anne County. During the program music was furnished by the Harbor Defense Band from Camp Pendleton, led by Chief Warrant Officer Fred S. Bear.

Major Todd, who serves as chief medical officer of the Office of Civilian Defense of Princess Anne County, told of the splendid work program accomplished since the outbreak of war by the local Red Cross Chapter. Particularly did he stress the spirit of cooperation which exists between the civilian (Continued on Page Four)

CAVALIER SOON TO PASS INTO NAVY USE FOR WAR DURATION

Facilities to Be Used as Hospital or for Use of Officers on Leave from Fleet

OTHER HOTELS ARE SAID TO BE UNDER SCRUTINY

Rumor of Consideration of Beach's Largest Confirmed By Navy Department

Dame Rumor repeatedly has said it would happen—and this week an unnamed individual in the Navy Department in Washington has confirmed it.

The Cavalier, showplace of Virginia Beach, is soon to become the property of the Navy, at least leased to it for the duration of the war.

Two Bureaus Interested

A story given out on Labor Day by David Pender, president of the hotel corporation, and confirmed later by a Navy Department spokesman, recites the following facts concerning the pending arrangement. That it will be acceptable to all parties concerned seems to be a certainty.

Two different bureaus of the Navy Department are engaged in negotiations to obtain The Cavalier and its facilities for the duration of the war. One group has been working for some time with a view to converting it into a Navy hospital, for which a very real need is said to exist, while another group began separate negotiations to use the hotel accommodations for officers of the fleet and their families.

Other Hotels Mentioned

In the meantime, another report, as yet unconfirmed, is to the effect that the Gay Manor and Pinewood Hotels, next largest hostilities on the Beach, will follow The Cavalier into the Navy camp. That may be nothing more than rumor, but the rumors persist with an unwavering quality that suggests the truth.

Mr. Pender said that representatives of the Navy Department have been at Virginia Beach on several occasions recently, but he stated that no definite proposition as to the purchase or leasing of the hotel has yet been presented. He said, however, that he understood that the Government had appointed a committee of appraisers to set a fair market value on the hotel property.

If The Cavalier should be continued at a hotel, under one of the plans currently being studied, its (Continued on Page Eight)

"THE VOICE of a majority, swaying the course of government does not insure good government except it be the voice of a well-informed and well-intentioned people."

THE WAR MOVES NEARER

The announcement made this week that The Cavalier is expected to pass into the hands of the Navy in the near future brings the many rumors of recent months to a climax as concerns this hotel, and paves the way for similar announcements of other hotel acquisitions during the approaching fall season. Thus does the War move even nearer to Virginia Beach, profoundly affecting the resort's fortunes in the days that lie immediately ahead.

Since the opening of The Cavalier fifteen years ago, its story has been one of continued service to this community. The luxury and quality woven into the brick-and-steel pile appealed to many thousands of vacationists that never before had considered Virginia Beach as a vacation land, and its construction provided a desired impetus to other operators to improve the quality of their offerings and to seek business in other than the restricted local area. Though nothing of similar size and sweep has been projected since the day when The Cavalier opened its doors, its influence has been felt in all subsequent construction to the infinite betterment of the Beach's available accommodations and, of course, in the increasingly profitable operations of the entire community.

The building of The Cavalier opened a new era in the resort's history. Those who guided its destiny in the earliest days rejected the provincial attitude then generally prevailing and resolutely turned their eyes to a larger and smarter field, spending what were then unheard of funds for advertising and other types of promotion and going a long way to make the East, South, Northeast and Middle-west "Virginia Beach conscious." And the gains were not alone registered at The Cavalier, for the entire resort benefited from this exploitation of local facilities.

The Cavalier did not "make" Virginia Beach, for its primary attractions have been here since the beginning of time, and were even then, in 1928, becoming known to an increasingly wider circle of patrons. But none can deny that the money spent for advertising this "Dominion of Pleasure" greatly aided the marked upsurge of vacationist patronage which followed for the entire Beach. As a showplace it has been of incalculable value to the operators of smaller and less pretentious houses.

Now, as might be expected, The Cavalier takes the lead in fitting into the modern War picture. Its facilities are needed by the Navy, either for the hospitalization of the sick or as quarters for officers and their families. It is fitting that the hotel should be offered for such use in these days, and it is proper that it should be accepted by those in authority. Its passing from the competitive scene will be a blow in many ways to the community, but there is none who can question the merit of the move. Whatever may be its future, this is one investment that has paid rich dividends to the resort in which it has held such a conspicuous part.

There is no authoritative information concerning the acquisition of other hotels, but it can be expected that the taking over of The Cavalier is only the first step in this direction by the War and Navy Departments. The gossip grapevine has it that Gay Manor and the Pinewood Hotel, and, possibly, the New Waverly soon will close their doors to civilian patronage, and it is not unlikely that other than tourist uses will be found for some few of the other large and modern hotels that can be operated on a year-round basis.

This is War, and these things can be expected. Ever since the blasts at Pearl Harbor shook the nation and started us off on an all-out-for-war schedule it has appeared probable that the housing facilities available at Virginia Beach would be utilized by the military and naval authorities. The announcement concerning The Cavalier, therefore, is neither unexpected nor unforeseen.

VIRGINIA BEACH IN SEPTEMBER

From the columns of the Roanoke Times comes editorial comment concerning virtues of a fall vacation at Virginia Beach that far surpasses our own poor powers of description. With a gesture of gratitude to our unknown promotion man, we reprint his words for the benefit of all and sundry.

"The Man Who Has Just Been There," he says, "dropped around by the office yesterday to tell us that Virginia Beach is an ideal place to spend a vacation in September, provided you are looking for a good rest, healthful recreation and don't crave too much gaiety and excitement.

"Old Sol is still doing his stuff, though he doesn't bear down on it as fiercely in September as he did in July and August, and sun-bathers find the sand an ideal place on which to roll and sop up the violet rays that are supposed to energize the human system and restore vitality to tired bodies and jaded nerves.

"The ceaseless roar of Father Neptune, as the waves break on the beach, has an indescribably soothing effect, once the visitor from the hinterland grows accustomed to it, and combines with the salt-laden sea breezes to induce sound and restful slumber. The aforesaid s.l.s.b. do something to the appetite, too, causing the visitor to enter the dining room three times a day with the conviction that he could eat a horse, only they don't serve horse-meat at the Virginia Beach hotels, but a variety of appetizing dishes, featuring a succulent seafood menu principally, calculated to make a gourmet out of the most confirmed dyspeptic alive. As for the bathing, it's equally as invigorating and delightful in September as it is at any time during the summer.

"All in all, it's hard to understand why the season at Virginia Beach is supposed to end on Labor Day. Last Saturday and Sunday the crowds on the beach were equally as large, according to our informant, as at any time during the preceding three months and pretty girls, athletic young men, as well as men neither young nor athletic, women pleasantly plump as well as women merely plump, and, of course, the usual assortment of children and dogs, were idling on the sand under the beach umbrellas or disporting themselves in the surf with apparently no thought to the coming winter or, for that matter, with practically no thought at all save to forget care and enjoy themselves.

"It's a lazy life, but a pleasant one. Probably it wouldn't be well to surrender one's self to that sort of an existence for too long a period — one might not want to snap out of it and return to the stark realities of the present-day world. But for a week or a fortnight it's a fine and healthful thing for human beings to forget that 'life is real, life is earnest,' and surrender themselves to a pleasurable, lazy, inconsequential mode of living in which the chief topic of interest is the school of porpoises at play a few hundred yards from shore or the squadron of planes from the Naval Base at Norfolk thundering overhead.

"Yes, Virginia Beach in September is a pleasant place to spend a vacation. Most of the summer's revelry is a thing of the past but the Beach's two greatest assets and principal attractions, the sun and the ocean, are still on the job — and how!"

WAR — POLITICS — AND TIME

(New York World-Telegram)

We obtained permission from the author to republish below a letter to a Congressman. We think it eloquently speaks volumes in this perilous period, when time is so tragically precious and when so many vital things to be done are being left undone because they are being put off "until after election." The letter:

This letter is democracy at work. This letter represents what we are fighting for. This letter is the first I have ever written to you or to any government official.

For years I have sat back and watched selfish little individuals and pressure groups write, telegraph or travel to Washington to ask for favors.

For years I have wanted to write or to ask you for just one favor — good, honest government for me and for the people.

But I wondered what my one lone letter — just like my one lone vote — could do. So I didn't write. I didn't ask.

Now at long last I am stirred up — the cause is so vital that I am writing my first letter — asking my first favor. It is this:

You don't realize how much more willing I am to make sacrifices to win this war than you think I am, and that goes for millions of Americans like me who have yet to write their first letter. You underestimate us.

So get us straight. Vote that $6,000,000,000 tax bill that doubles my income tax.

Withhold 5 per cent — 10 per cent — of my savings next year.

Make War Savings Bonds compulsory. (I am already investing 11 per cent of my salary).

Put a ceiling on wages and all prices.

Ration my gas — take my spare tire — take my car if you need it.

Ration my food — my clothes — my fuel. My great-grandfather got along on what I waste.

Help Leon Henderson — he's got hold of a tail by the tail. Help him hold it or it will cut us all.

For once in your life, forget the folks back home. Vote a clear, firm "Yes" if it will win the war. Let that be your only test.

Do this and you won't have to worry about re-election for the duration.

This letter is democracy at work — a private citizen with no ax to grind — telling you not how to vote, but telling you how he feels so that you may know better how to represent him.

This letter is from a plain citizen with two children, a mother, a job and a home, and a long-neglected right to express the way he'd like to be governed.

There are 10,000,000 like me in the United States. We will decide the election this fall. Don't underestimate us. You vote as courageously as we are willing to sacrifice and courageously in this world can stop us.

With utter sincerity,

Recommended for Parents of College-age Children

Governor Colgate W. Darden, Jr., meeting last week with the President and members of the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary notified them of his intention "to recommend to the General Assembly, when it next convenes, that fraternities and sororities be not allowed to maintain separate establishments to be used as living and meeting quarters."

Governor Darden pointed out to the Board that he had arrived at this conclusion for many reasons, one being that it is most important that members of the student body associate together as much as possible during their college years, with an interchange of opinions and ideas and no line of cleavage between the fraternity and non-fraternity groups and sorority and non-sorority group. "Too much emphasis is placed on the social side of college life, and too little attention is paid to school work," Governor Darden said, which is accentuated by their living apart. "In the matter of expense," he continued, "fraternity and sorority membership entails additional cost annually which almost equals the tuition charged the Virginia student, this cost arising, largely from the maintenance of separate establishments." "Parents often must borrow money to send their children to college," Governor Darden continued, "and they make the added sacrifice for fraternity or sorority expenses because they believe that their child will feel hurt and humiliated if not permitted to join. Certainly there can be no justification for it in a State supported institution," Governor Darden added.

The full text of Governor Darden's statement is as follows:

"I have today advised members of the Board of Visitors of William and Mary College that I expect to recommend to the General Assembly, when it next convenes, that fraternities and sororities be not allowed to maintain separate establishments to be used as living and meeting quarters.

"The detailed and interesting study of these organizations at William and Mary, made last year by the Committee on Social Direction and Organizational Activities, points out several weaknesses which require attention and correction. The suggestions made by the Committee are, I think, with one exception, excellent. The exception is the recommendation that fraternity and sorority houses be continued, but placed under closer supervision.

"I believe that their elimination altogether would be more advantageous both to the College and the Organizations which now maintain them.

"Such a move would, in my opinion, contribute immeasurably to the spirit and unity of the student body as a whole. The indefinable and intangible 'esprit de corps' which is so much to be desired in college life, flows from congenial association and happy companionship. It can only come to those who as a group cherish similar ideals and who share in general, like sentiments. For this reason I think it most important that the members of the student body associate together as much as possible during their years at college.

"While the primary obligation of a student is close application to his studies, yet no small part of his education comes from the interchange of opinions and ideas with those with whom he is thrown in his school work. Anything which tends to interfere with this process should be discouraged because it actually hinders the full development of the student.

"As matters now stand at William and Mary some of the students, about one-third, shortly after entering college are asked to join one organization or another. Upon their acceptance they immediately find themselves members of a tightly knit group, frequently living apart from the other students. They quite naturally spend much of their time at the houses of the organizations which they have joined, and doubtless they there find a small group of pleasant friends. But this of necessity severely restricts the opportunities which they have of making friends among the members of their own college class, and also among the student body as a whole.

"As time goes on they become more and more engrossed in the small group to which they belong. If they actually live in a fraternity or sorority house they find that their time is absorbed in helping to run the establishment which has become their world and their home. Unconsciously they lose touch with the college and the student body. Too much emphasis is placed on the social side of college life, and too little attention is paid to school work. They fail to reap those inestimable rewards which flow from pleasant friendships made among their fellow students, and two-thirds of those in college who never affiliate with any fraternity or sorority are the poorer because they are deprived of associations that would be of great value to them.

"There also develops a line of cleavage between the fraternity and non-fraternity, between the sorority and non-sorority students which is accentuated by their living apart. This line of cleavage artificial and trivial, is harmful. The spirit of comradeship which, if taken advantage of, offers so much to those attending college, succumbs to cliques and combinations which have little to recommend them.

"Then, too, there is the matter of expense which is going to become increasingly important now that such frightful burdens have been added as a result of the war. The study of the Committee shows that the fraternity or sorority membership entails an additional cost annually which almost equals the tuition charged a Virginia student. This added cost arises in large part from the maintenance of separate establishments. I can see no justification for it. In many cases it represents money that the parents can ill afford to spend. In a large number of cases parents borrow money in order to send their children to college. They make the added sacrifice for fraternity or sorority expenses because they believe that their child will feel hurt and humiliated if not permitted to join. This added burden should be lifted from their shoulders. Certainly there can be no justification for it in a State supported institution.

"As a matter of fact the organizations themselves will profit by the change. Now many desirable students are unable to join because of lack of funds. In order to pay expenses, invitations are extended at times to students not especially congenial.

"I know that it is not necessary for me to point out that my activity which adds materially to the cost of attending college should not be encouraged unless its value is beyond question. No such case can be made out for fraternity and sorority houses.

"I have also suggested to the members of the Board that the keeping of automobiles by students be prohibited. I think that this should be adopted as a general rule, because of the expense involved, and for the further reason that their use interferes unduly with school work.

"However, in addition to these reasons we are now confronted with the necessity of saving both gasoline and rubber, and consequently for the duration of the war every effort must be made to avoid unnecessary driving."

ON THE ROAD TO VICTORY

Miscellaneous News and Views On the Conduct of the War

County and State Fairs

The Victory through Food campaign now being waged throughout this country needs no explanation or clarification as far as most people are concerned. "Food will help win the war" is a slogan so accurate and obvious that it would seem needless to talk about it to a nation already well aware of the vital importance of foodstuffs for the duration.

At the same time, a great many think it a queer contradiction in terms to laud the farmer and his products on one hand, and ask for a suspension of agricultural fairs on the other. For if any group of enterprises more than pay for themselves, the fairs, county and state, certainly do just that. Farmers can only better their methods, and therefore their crops, by learning the innovations used by other farmers, and the fairs are the only place they ever have a chance to get together to compare notes. Suspend fairs, and you cut the life-line of communication among the producers of livestock, vegetables, and other foodstuffs.

It has been mentioned that the suspension of these agrarian get-togethers will save gasoline and rubber. But as a matter of fact, as pointed out by Mr. George A. Hamid, editor of Fair Times, most farmers do not have to travel a great distance to reach their local fair. In addition, many fairs, such as the New Jersey State Fair at Trenton, of which Mr. Hamid is president, are serviced the year round by regular transportation such as trolleys and buses. In addition, the week at the fair is the farmer's only vacation, and if there is no fair for him to visit, he will choose some other vacation place which probably will yield no benefit to the nation at large in the matter of bigger and better crops.

Naturally, the war effort takes precedence over all else, and any fairs containing large buildings and facilities which the Army and Government might use have already offered their grounds for the duration. But those that remain, have not asked for any priorities of special considerations. All they want is the privilege of continuing their excellent work in promoting agricultural livestock and other kindred interests, and of building up one of the most important organizations in the world, the 4H Clubs of our young people of farms throughout the country.

Obviously, there is more profit for the nation as a whole to be derived from fairs than from baseball games, racing tracks and other similar entertainment still in full swing throughout the nation. The gasoline used in transportation to and from a race track on a single day would probably more than supply the needs of the farmers en route to a local fair. In addition, the Government will find itself without many thousands of dollars revenue from admission taxes should these fairs be discontinued.

Fairs have been the guiding spirit to civilization since Biblical days. They are educational. The city dweller and the farmer alike benefits from the interchange of agricultural information. Crops do not raise themselves, and if food is to really help win the war, we cannot expect the farmer to raise his crops in an agricultural vacuum.

Your Senator or Congressman would appreciate a letter that would tell him you feel about this all-important matter. Better still drop in to see your local representative who is probably back from Washington these days and tell him what you think about your local fair. It is up to you to do something about it!

Not "Dry" Statistics

Leon Henderson observes: "Cost-of-living figures are not just dry statistics. Every advance means that Americans are spending more dollars and cents to live; every decline is a victory to keep the cost-of-living down." It is not a dry statistic that price increases "in uncontrolled foods are drawing a dangerous pattern" — it is a condition that calls for control, before prices mount to an average of 30 per cent which is something Mr. Henderson fears may happen.

If Mr. Henderson succeeds in keeping down mounting averages then we'll all be willing to admit that statistics are cheerful, if the prophecies attached to them come true. Otherwise they are "just dry statistics" with many kids to be expected from the folks who just "told you so."

Save The Goose

The Federal tax bill for $62,710,000.000 that was framed by the lower branch of Congress hasn't gotten by the Senate Finance Committee. As big as those figures may look to your normal eyes they are not large enough in size to pay the bills that are piling up by millions, and billions. Senator George, chairman of the committee, points out that the measure does not take into account the preservation of the Nation's business structure.

He will undertake to persuade the Finance Committee to work out a tax bill around this basic principle. The committee, he said, should frame a tax measure that would yield the $6,700,000,000 a year of additional revenue that the Treasury asks, or even more, if it is possible to do this without obstructing war production or crippling the Nation's business.

He believes in keeping the goose laying eggs.

Synthetic Rubber

The very modest supplies of synthetic rubber produced in new factories during the next few months. Apparently most of the methods for manufacturing are experimental, but there will be modest quantities of tires before the end of this year, although it is doubtful whether any of the rubber will be available for civilians.

American manufacturers have accepted the challenge, and while they may fumble for a time—as was the case with dies nearly 25 years ago, it is safe to say that sometime next year there will be abundant production in the United States of satisfactory synthetic rubber.

Should It?

A symposium on the question: "Should Congress Outlaw all Strikes arising from jurisdictional strikes" was of interest to Government officials in Washington.

Congressman Howard W. Smith of Virginia, said "yes," and declared that "the situation demands it and the people are for it." Thomas Watt, of A. F. of L. thinks that the restrictive legislation would not remove the cause of disputes, and he adds: "The 'pass-the-law' theory is really 'pass the buck' theory."

All the answers shoot beyond the mark, because: 1. Congress might pass a law outlawing strikes. 2. The President would certainly veto it. 3. The Congress hasn't votes enough to pass the law over the Presidential veto, because a two-thirds majority does not exist. There'll be no such legislation until the war is over.

THE DAY

CHAPTER IX

SYNOPSIS

Dave Bruce, out on a job, arrives at Wilbur Ferris' Cross-Bar ranch. Curran, the farmer, promises him a job if he can break a horse called Black Dawn. When he succeeds, he discovers Curran expects the horse to kill him. A girl named Lois rides up with Dave for breaking "her" horse. She refuses to speak to Dave even when he uses his savings to pay off the mortgage on the small ranch she shares with her father, a man named Hooker. But when Hooker is shot and Dave is charged with murder, Lois saves him from being hanged. Wounded, she guides him to a mountain cave where he can hide. Curran and the sheriff's posse. Meanwhile, a quarrel between Ferris and Judge Loneragan results in his being killed by his partner, Blaine Rowland, many years before.

Loneragan ushered Ferris out into the street, closed the door, and strode briskly in the direction of the courthouse, outside which a knot of men was already milling. Ferris got on his horse and rode slowly back toward his ranch, taking the opposite direction till he got clear of the town.

Suddenly blind rage filled Ferris' heart. And, according to the nature of the man, it did not show itself upon his face, which became a mask. Stupidly, blindly trying to find reality in this new confusion, Ferris rode back toward his ranch house with a sudden resolution formed.

Weak, irresolute, he was following the traditional line of least resistance in seeking a confidant. And Curran, the foreman, was the man he sought. He was throwing himself upon the mercy of the man between whom and himself there had been undeclared enmity ever since Loneragan made Curran foreman of the Cross-Bar outfit.

"Want to see you in the office," he told Curran, who was taking it easy in the bunkhouse after his night's ride. And when they reached the office, he said, "I reckon you and me haven't pulled together as well as we might have done. I'm in a jam now. Maybe we can work it out together."

Curran's eyes narrowed. "I never bore yuh no ill feelings, Mr. Ferris," he answered. "Course I know yuh didn't exactly like Judge Loneragan's puttin' me in here, but I done my best for yore spread."

"Loneragan's got me by the throat," said the ranchman bitterly, and recounted their conversation of that morning.

"But so far as I understood, yuh've kept up the mortgage interest," said Curran. "And the mortgage has got another eighteen months to run."

"Damn him, he's got something on me!" exploded Ferris. "Something that happened before I came into the valley, that he's got me behind the bars for. He's aimin' to treat me the way he was goin' to treat old Hooker. When he cleaned up on my ranch, how long'd yuh think your job will last?"

"Yeh, I've been thinkin' about that myself," Curran confessed.

Ferris asked the question that he had asked Loneragan. "Why was Loneragan so interested in that Hooker girl?"

Curran grinned. "Most folks think she's his daughter," he said. "Don't bear no resemblance to him, of course, but she may take after her mother. I never seen Mrs. Hooker; she died before I come here."

"I've heard, that story, but I don't believe it."

"You think the sheriff will get Bruce and that girl?" he asked in the meanwhile.

"I dunno," said Curran. "Lois Hooker, she knows the mountains like that herd of broncs she trails after her. If they not enough dogs, they kin hide up till all interest in the affair has died out, so far as the sheriff's concerned. But I'll tell yuh something. I'm goin' to git her."

Curran knew his man. "I dunno what Loneragan's got on yuh, Ferris," he said. "But I ain't trustin' that feller further than I kin see him. And I guess there's plenty of folks in Mescal who wouldn't cry their eyes out if anything happened to him."

The ranchman's eyes met Curran's. "You mean—yuh mean?" he stammered.

"I could do with a share in the Cross-Bar," said Curran bluntly. "I ain't the kind who'd ride yuh down the way Loneragan did. And what I had on you, yuh'd have on me, I guess. A third share's all I'd ask."

"Suppose—suppose Blaine Rowland ever came back?" the ranchman quavered. "He's still half-awake. If he hadn't made that mad break when he thought the Cross-Bar was goin' to smash—"

"Yuh needn't worry about him," grinned Curran. "He won't come back. First place, he'd be facin' a long term in the pen, and second place, he'd have to make restitu- tion for that money he took. What represents purty nigh half the value of the ranch."

"Yuh ain't—ain't cryin', girl?"

"What's your proposal?"

"I ain't makin' none, Ferris. It come from you. I was only sayin' if anything happened to Loneragan, nobody's goin' to lay roses on his grave."

"When—how—what's your plan?" whispered Ferris, spilling a trail of whisky over the floor as he tried to recall his drink.

"Just leave it to me, and I'll keep yuh posted, Ferris," answered Curran.

"I've got to give Loneragan his answer within the next two days," the ranchman protested.

"Stall him off," said the foreman. "Bring him along a day or two more, and if he insists tell him to go plumb to hell. All you need to do is to keep a stiff top lip. I'm glad you and me had this talk. It clears up things consid'able. Yuh won't see much of me the next day or two, because I'll be out on a lone wolf hunt in the mountains. But I'll let yuh know when the trap's sprung."

He went out of the office, reeling slightly, humming a song. Ferris watched him with new, dawning hope.

In the few days that followed Lois regained her strength rapidly. Apart from the quantity of blood she had lost, the wound was superficial one, and youth and the pure mountain air contributed alike to a quick recovery.

They never spoke about the future. It seemed sufficient to both of them to enjoy that perfect comradeship that had sprung up between them. The only shadow over the girl's mind appeared to be her inability to attend Hooker's funeral in Mescal.

Of course, I always knew I wasn't his daughter—at least, not now, after I found that. She detached a lock of hair, a battered gold locket from a cord about her neck, opened it, and handed it to Dave. Inside was the faded photograph of a young woman. It was a pretty face, but rather a hard one, and there was a marked resemblance to Lois.

"I remembered her, after I found this locket," said Dave.

"You say you found this?" asked Dave, handing her back the locket.

"Where did yuh find it?"

"Not a hundred yards away from here, lying on a ledge under a heap of dead leaves."

"It's a hundred yards away from here," said Dave. "Yuh got no idea how it could have got here?"

"I've racked my brains trying to imagine. Unless my mother was some relative of Mr. Loneragan's, and gave him the locket, and he brought it here. You see, Mr. Loneragan made the Hookers adopt me and bring me here. But why should he have come here? He's never been here since, nor anyone. I'm sure nobody in Mescal knows of its existence."

"Well," said Dave, "things have a way of comin' to light. Some day we'll know. You sure had a tough break, girl, not even knowin' yore own dad and livin' up in these mountains. Did yuh ever figure on what yuh were goin' to do in life?"

"I never figured on getting away, Dave, till Mr. Hooker died. 'I hated the man who used to come around me when I was in Mescal, or over at the Cross-Bar.'"

"I've got to keep back the words, but they seemed to come spontaneously from his lips: 'Just before Mr. Hooker died he made me promise that I'd look out for yuh. I told him of course I would. When I first see yuh, Lois, all I wanted to do was to see yuh. I wanted to ride away with you and have you with me for the rest of our lives. Do yuh think—do yuh think yuh'd take a chance on me when we get away from here?'"

Then, suddenly, looking into the girl's luminous eyes, "Dave" knew that she loved him, and that everything was going to be well with them, no matter what trials might still lie ahead of them.

He drew her into his arms and she laid her head upon his shoulder, face upturned to his.

"Yuh ain't—ain't cryin', girl?"

"I reckon I am," she answered. "I'm so happy, Dave. I didn't know I could be happy like this. I never cried for anybody else, and I've cried twice for yuh."

"Twice? I made yuh cry?"

"The first time was when I was sure yuh hadn't killed Mr. Hooker. And both times have made me happy. I don't want to leave yuh ever. After a while he heard her breathing deeply and regularly, and found that she had fallen asleep. He sat there, holding her tightly, till the pale light of dawn came creeping into the cave.

FARM PROGRAM GEARED TO WAR

"Cooperate for Victory" Slogan Adopted by Southern States Cooperative Group

In a redoubled effort to meet their food production goals, the farmer members of Southern States Cooperative throughout the organization's territory of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, and West Virginia launched a "Cooperate for Victory" program September 8 in which substantially all of the 128,000 members are expected to participate.

The program was originated because of the shortage of man power both in the cooperative and in the several hundred local service agencies affiliated with it as well as because of the limitations on travel. Farmers are encouraging cooperation wherever it will be advantageous both to themselves and to the consuming public, giving special attention to the pooling of transportation of supplies going to the farm and of produce going from farm to market.

Savings Seen

"Tremendous savings in both man power and transportation would result from this self help action on the part of many thousands of farmers," W. C. Wisor, general manager of Southern States Cooperative, declared. "It is highly necessary that farmers apply closer attention than ever before to the details of farming if the armed forces and civilian population of the United Nations are to be fed."

"No worker in any plant or place anywhere has a more vital or essential part to play in the winning of the war than the man on the land. Only farm production of heretofore undreamed of magnitude will save this nation and its allies from a fatal food shortage."

"The farmer's assignment is a tough one, but not so tough as the courage, the perseverance, and the ingenuity, the skill, the thrift and the will to win of a people who have planted in faith since the days of the Pilgrim Fathers and harvested with gratitude to Almighty God," Mr. Wisor said.

DENY NITROGEN FOR FARM USE

Essential to War Production, Farmers Are Urged to Use Approved Substitutes

Because nitrogen is a none-tolerant farm material, states that normally use some nitrogen under fall-sown grains will this year be denied commercial mixtures carrying nitrogen. County Agent H. W. Ozlin quotes a recent letter from the War Production Board:

"Every effort is being made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and Land-Grant Colleges to accelerate the recommendations on fertilizer grades (that will conserve nitrogen) . . . to enable manufacturers to begin mixing fertilizers for the remainder of 1942 and the spring of 1943. In the meantime, from the information which we now have, it appears certain that grades for fall sown grains, consisting of 0-14-7, 0-16-8, 0-12-12, 0-14-14, 0-20-20, and 0-24-12, will be among the officially approved grades to be designated for particular crops in prescribed areas from the next fertilizer year."

Legumes Urged

Farmers can help overcome a part of the nitrogen shortage by planting legumes for winter cover crops, Ozlin adds. Neighborhood leaders have a supply of leaflets that give information on the use of crimson clover and vetch.

The county agent also adds that the county AAA association still has a quantity of vetch seed to distribute to farmers who intend to participate in the 1943 program. All that is necessary to get the seed is to sign a 1943 farm plan and an order for the seed. The cost of the seed will be deducted from the payments earned in carrying out soilbuilding practices. There is no better preparation for corn and soybeans in 1943 than to seed the land this fall in vetch to be turned next spring, and with the shortage of nitrogen all farmers should seed every acre of legumes possible this fall.

Let us hope civilian defense will produce cleanliness and order in homes, shops, and city streets.

Some military experts are saying that the recent attack on Dieppe by British Commando, U. S. Ranger, Canadian and Fighting French forces, was just a prelude to what is coming in the way of a second front by the United Nations to relieve pressure on the Russian front. If these opinions are right the above shows the area in which such attacks are likely to occur. The dotted line indicates the route taken by the forces which raided the French port of Dieppe.

WHY MAKE TWO TELEPHONE CALLS when one will do?

Thousands of times each day Virginia Information Operators are asked for numbers which are listed in the telephone directory!

This means that thousands of times a day two calls are made when only one call is needed. That wastes the full working time of many trained operators and it ties up a lot of telephone lines and equipment.

In these critical war times, when every trained operator and all available facilities are needed to handle the tremendous volume of calls, we must ask for everyone's cooperation.

Please consult your directory in every instance and do not call "Information" until you have made sure the desired number is not listed

ENROLLEES GET ACTIVE SERVICE

Five Women Auxiliaries Called to Duty Within Week of Their Enlistment

The Army's great need for women Auxiliaries was brought closer to home as five young ladies, enrolled less than a week ago in the WAAC reserves, were suddenly called to active service yesterday. They will depart from Richmond for Fort Des Moines, Iowa, on Monday.

Lieutenant Colonel Leland W.

Skaggs, district recruiting and induction officer for Virginia, made the announcement. He cited the order as evidence of a demand for Women's Army Auxiliary Corps members.

"When these young ladies left the recruiting station in Richmond last week, after being enrolled in the WAAC, they expressed the hope that it wouldn't be too long before they were called to active service," Colonel Skaggs declared. "Well, it won't be long now!"

The WAACs are Miss Ethel Tackett of Jenkins, Ky., a cook; Miss Dollie Cox of Leesville, N. C., a chauffeur; Miss Helen Stern-ret of Hot Springs, Va., also a chauffeur and the Misses Rosalie Lambert of Staunton, Va., and Dorothy Wood of Amissville, Va., both of whom will perform general duties.

Cooks, clerks, chauffeurs, typists, stenographers and secretaries are still greatly in demand, Colonel Skaggs revealed. There is an unlimited need for other types of women members, also, he said.

FAMILIES URGED TO USE FAST V-MAIL SYSTEM FOR LETTERS

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, today issued an appeal to families of service personnel to use the new, fast V-Mail system for correspondence from the Mainland to forces afloat and ashore.

At the same time, he declared that greater use must be made of this space, and weight-saving air-mail service by officers and men of the Fleet, writing letters home.

Saves Difficulties

The Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet said: "Every soldier, sailor and marine in the Pacific Area should take full advantage of the opportunity offered by V-Mail. Delivery of personnel correspondence by means of 'microfilm' will solve some of our mail difficulties, and should ease the congestion now present in our greatly overtaxed postal system."

In the first Pacific Fleet V-Mail letter, sent by Admiral Nimitz to Secretary of the Navy Knox, this same sentiment was stressed.

Pacific Fleet V-Mail authorities pointed out that speed, privacy and economy should make use of this microfilm service attractive to the armed forces.

Averages Four Days

Whereas regular airmail from the Hawaiian area to Pacific Coast points often takes many days — even going by convey when mails are unusually congested — V-Mail to these same cities averages only four days. V-Mail for East Coast points takes only six days from the time of posting to arrival at its addressed destination.

In the Fleet, mail clerks have been supplied with special V-Mail forms. Letters written on these blanks and posted for censorship are not read again until they reach the addressee.

Hawaiian area V-Mail is photographed on 16-millimeter microfilm spools in Honolulu. These rolls, two of which contain as many letters as an ordinary mail pouch, go to the Mainland by the FIRST AVAILABLE air transportation. They rate highest priority; they go immediately.

By fast mail train, completed V-Mail is then sped to recipients, who get 4-by-5½ inch enlargements of the tiny negatives in official envelopes — without charge.

GAS TAX DROPS IN ALL STATES

Collections Down 15 Per Cent in June Over Figures Reported Last Year

Automobile and tire rationing, slow-driving campaigns and other efforts to reduce tire wear and gasoline consumption resulted in a 15 per cent reduction in gasoline tax collections in the states which have reported June 1942 collections as compared with the same month a year ago to the Federation of Tax Administrators.

Every state reporting to the Federation showed a loss in June collections this year ranging from 25 per cent in Michigan and 24 per cent in Florida to small losses of three per cent in Oklahoma and one per cent in Tennessee. Representative losses in other states included: Georgia, 21½; Illinois, 18½; Indiana, 12½; Kansas, 19½; New Mexico, 14½; North Carolina, 23½; Oregon, 10½; Virginia, 22½; Washington, 9½; and Wisconsin, 16½.

Substantial Decreases

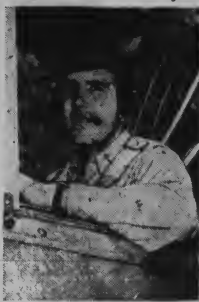

"State revenue officials are 'unanimous,' the Federation declared, 'in predicting substantial decreases in motor fuel collections during the present fiscal year and beyond that period until the need for automobile restrictions will have ended. While accurate predictions of tax declines are impossible in view of wartime uncertainties, several states have made rough estimates of probable declines, assuming limited emergency curtailment of motor vehicle usage.'

"Officials of Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi, South Carolina, and West Virginia have indicated the likely range of gasoline tax declines for the next few months at between 25 and 35 per cent below recent levels. North Carolina was reported to be anticipating a decline of approximately 50 per cent in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943.

Financial Strain

"The loss of motor fuel tax revenues imposes a financial strain on all states, but the problem is especially acute in those which are required to devote a portion of motor fuel receipts to the service of highway bonds. This legal obligation may in many cases effectively prevent an apportionment of declining revenues on the basis of need; and the danger of default will confront any state which has total gasoline tax receipts of less than the amount required by debt service."

The Federation's report declares that some states have announced their intention to "freeze" any sums accumulated in the Highway Fund in past months and devote such "frozen" funds to the retirement of outstanding road bonds. These states include Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, Oregon, Tennessee, and West Virginia.

At the beginning of 1941 there were 44,333 locomotives in the United States, of which 42,410 were operated by steam, 967 by oil, 900 by electricity and 56 by gasoline.

FOR VICTORY

As Others See It

NOW—"GREATER" NORFOLK (Tidewater News)

Estimates of the present population of Norfolk and neighboring cities and smaller communities as compared with the census figures of 1940, compiled by the Norfolk Advertising Board, present a picture of astounding growth in the Hampton Roads area. Although many a small city Chamber of Commerce has made the adjective "greater" ridiculous in straining to stretch Nameville's population from 95,000 to 10,000, the term "greater Norfolk" can now be used without apologies. What was a city of 144,332 two years ago is now a city of 262,450, according to these estimates. When territory closely contiguous to Norfolk, excluding Portsmouth and the population of the north shore of Hampton Roads is added in, a Greater Norfolk emerges with a total count of 299,550, as compared with 166,382 in 1940. When Portsmouth and the Western Branch area contiguous to it is thrown in we have a Greater Norfolk-Portsmouth area of 418,035.

Adding up the entire Hampton Roads area population, including the Newport-News-Hampton section, a total of 734,000 for the Hampton Roads metropolitan area is arrived at. Although several separate local governments, cities, towns and counties are included in this tabulation, for all practical purposes the area is one large city. It is true that this area is divided geographically by the Elizabeth River and its tributaries, and by the James River and Hampton Roads, but no more so than other American concentrations of population like the metropolitan area of Boston, for instance, that is cut up by the Charles and Mystic Rivers and estuaries of Boston Bay or Metropolitan New York, that even includes islands in its area.

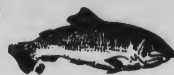

Norfolk's growth at first glance might seem to be without precedent but in the decade from 1910 to 1920 it grew from 67,000 to 115,000, an expansion created by World War I, just as World War the size of the city. The population of Norfolk within the city limits alone (242,407) has made it Virginia's largest municipality, running well ahead of Richmond's estimated 210,000 or 215,000 since the annexation of the Westhampton area and of Roanoke's metropolitan district of 100,000 or more that includes Salem, Vinton and other suburbs in Roanoke County. The multiple problems posed by this giddy mushrooming in Norfolk and the Hampton Roads area are not only matters of regional knowledge and concern, they have made feature articles in many American magazines. The big question for the future is how much of the population will remain after the defense program has slumped.

Normally, an increasing population pays for the new facilities that the municipality has to provide for for it. However, if a large part of the wartime population departs when the war is over the community is stuck with expensive facilities and no adequate property valuation or tax-paying population to pay for them. While it is expected that some of the new housing will be used for residences of people evacuated from slum areas after the war another solution would appear to be an effort to hold as much of the population as possible by the introduction of new industries to take the place of temporary war activity. If such an effort is made, the Hampton Roads area may retain most of its population and well within our lifetimes be admitted into the seven-figure ranks of America's biggest population centers.

A MILLION WOMEN ARE WORKING IN WAR ARMAMENT PLANTS

Like their pioneer ancestors who helped their husbands and brothers fight the Indians so that they might have out settlements and farms along the backwood New England coast and in the forests the American women of today are working day and night in war armament plants throughout the country. Thirteen million women are employed in the United States and of that number almost a million are assisting in building fighting planes, tanks, guns, munitions and other sinews of War.

Copper and Brass and other copper alloys have been withdrawn from the field of commerce for the duration to be used exclusively in our all-out War Program.

In the center picture Miss Lone Freer is shown bending copper tube for use in "Flying Fortresses" and Ventura Bombers "Somewhere on the West Coast." Copper wire and copper and brass for instruments are being used in our fighting planes.

The illustration at the upper left shows two young ladies inspecting brass artillery shells in one of the large munition plants "Somewhere in Canada." Several hundred thousand women have been working in Canadian plants since the outbreak of World War II. On the right a young lady is stamping and packing 75 mm. brass cartridge cases for artillery in one of the U. S. Army Armories.

Not only are young girls doing this arduous work but there are thousands and thousands of women ranging in age from forty to their late fifties who have their shoulder to the wheel. On the lower left are shown two of these pioneer workers making clip springs and body assembly for 30 caliber brass cartridges in a Mid-Western Army Arsenal. On the lower right girls are shown installing copper wire in junction boxes for Vultee fighting planes.

INDUSTRY LEADS HOUSEHOLDERS IN CONVERSION OF FUEL PLANTS

East Coast industrial plants have far outdistanced the domestic consumer in taking precautions against the fuel and heating oil shortage, according to a report from the Petroleum Industry to the Office of Petroleum Coordinator for War, Harold L. Hicks.

John A. Brown, Chairman of the Petroleum Industry General Committee for the East Coast area, reported that the program for converting Atlantic Seaboard industrial plants from fuel oil to coal consumption is making excellent progress, but that neither industry nor domestic consumers fully comprehend yet the gravity of the fuel oil situation.

50 Per Cent of Plants Converted
Mr. Brown informed the Coordinator that East Coast industrial plants already had converted from fuel oil to coal in more than 50 per cent of the cases where conversion is possible, and, as a result, were saving more than 22,500,000 barrels of fuel oil annually.

He said that conversion program in industrial plants should bring about eventually a saving of 42,000,000 barrels, or about 35 per cent of the total industrial fuel oil consumption on the East Coast.

As contrasted with the progress being made in industrial plants, Mr. Brown reported that not more than 1 per cent of homes now heated with fuel oil have been converted. He said that home owners so far had failed to heed the government warning that East Coast homes could be cold this winter unless home owners who can convert their oil burners to coal consumption make the change-over and get their coal supplies ordered and into the coal bin promptly.

Little Public Response

Commenting on the industry report, Deputy Petroleum Coordinator Ralph K. Davies said:

"Our own information fully confirms the petroleum industry's estimate of the disturbing lack of public response to the fuel and heating oil situation along the Atlantic Coast. Only a realization that the 'Atlantic Coast area' means 'my home town' and that facts today do not justify any confidence that severely depleted fuel oil supplies can be built up to meet even minimum needs during the coming winter will stimulate sufficient precaution on the part of fuel oil consumers to avert the threatened distress.

"We know that more than half of the oil burners in use in the Eastern states were previously converted from coal to oil, and that in more than 18 per cent, or about 250,000 homes, the old grates and shaker bars are still on hand. Householders who have this equipment can convert back to coal at small cost and with relatively little inconvenience. Failure to convert is simply flying in the face of serious uncertainties.

"The best insurance against the possibility of discomfit, even impaired health and efficiency, during the winter months ahead is to make sure adequate coal is available in your town, make the switch from oil consumption to coal, right now, and order coal and get it in the cellar while adequate supplies are still to be had."

Home Loan Savings Up In State During July

The public placed $1,167,100 of new savings in Virginia's insured savings and loan associations during July, bringing the total of such investments to $36,129,500, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation reported yesterday. The Corporation protects insured investors up to $5,000 each.

The Virginia associations made home loans amounting to $972,200 during the month, as compared with loans totaling $1,064,900 in June and $1,242,537 in July, 1941. Home mortgage loans on the associations' books now aggregate $40,573,000.

New construction loans amounted to only $277,000 during July—the result of wartime restrictions on building materials—while loans for home purchase totaled $522,300.

YOUR IRON

FOLLOW THESE SIMPLE RULES FOR USING YOUR ELECTRIC IRON!

- Sort the clothes you will iron before you start. Start with those requiring lower temperatures, working up to those requiring the highest temperatures.
- Do not allow the iron to heat longer or at a higher temperature than necessary. The thermostat of automatic irons should be set according to the fabric being ironed.
- Most electric irons will heat to required temperature in less than two minutes. Sort your ironing before you plug the iron cord in the electric outlet.
- Do not wrap the iron cord around the iron, especially when it is hot. In time that will destroy the insulation and break the wires inside the cord.
- Don't let starch or other substances accumulate on the bottom of the electric iron. Remove with a damp cloth and polish with a dry one. Silver polish is excellent in stubborn cases.
- Set your ironing board in such a position that the connected cord always swings free when you are ironing, thereby avoiding acute bending of the cord.

The Farm to the Rescue

It is estimated that about 13,000,000 pounds of bombs were dropped on Cologne and Essen in the two big raids made by the Royal Air Force. Half of this tonnage would be steel and half of the steel would be made from "scrap." Or in other words about 3,250,000 pounds—1,265 tons—of scrap were dumped on the factories of Cologne and Essen in just two big air raids.

These figures give us a rough glimpse of what we are going to need in scrap-iron and scrap-steel to win the war. Every pound of which each one of us can dig up is going to be needed. We have got to have a stock pile of millions of tons in reserve. We can't just keep doing it out to the factories day by day hoping that the salvage collections will keep up with their daily needs. If we handled it in this manner factory after factory would have to close down because they had run short of material temporarily and had to wait for their allotment. This would be the way to lose the war.

Over and above the terrific load which has been placed upon the industries is a new job which they have taken on voluntarily and in a spirit of patriotism of which Americans can be proud. Volunteer committees of business executives are already operating in over 400 industrial centers in a tremendous drive to salvage every ounce of useful material which the factories can spare. Obsolete machinery, tools, stocks and dies, fixtures, etc., are being gathered for the national scrap heap. Stuff which "mums" come in handy some day" is going in with the rest of it. "Some day" must take care of itself—"today" is the all important moment! But the industries can't do it all—they haven't got the amount of scrap we must have to win this war. The six million farms in the United States must do the rest—and they will do it and are doing it. In small towns and big towns, all over the country, scrap committees are being formed. Towns, counties and states are running an imaginary race to outstrip their rivals. It should be made a real race with public honors to those who lead.

But it takes the individual farmer to make the town scrap heap. If he puts his contribution off week after week—the scrap heap won't grow. If he thinks "it may come in useful some day"—we may lose the war some day. Every piece of useful material which we own but which we can do without at this time should go toward victory. If we put all the money we can possibly spare in savings banks and war bonds we can buy new and better things when the war is won. And won it will be—if we do our full share. If every farmer throws something on the town scrap heap every Saturday when he comes to town, if every town farmer's committee to push the drive and keep it going and if we "do it now" and keep on doing it.

Our county war board or farm improvement dealer—can advise us how to start a town scrap heap and how to sell it. The proceeds can go to some Town Institution or Charity. If no one knows what to do to get started—write The Conservation Division, War Production Board, Railroad Retirement Building, Washington, D. C., for advice.

WOMEN

NEWS
by Janet Cupler

WOMAN of the Week: In Phillipsburg, Kan., where she practices, Miss Townsend-Glansen, M. D., is known simply as "Dr. Mary." Her office is a four-room frame house, and she sees patients there from nine to six. After that her calls may take her 20 miles into the country. Her husband, publisher of a weekly newspaper, goes along to drive the car. The people of Phillipsburg are not at all prejudiced against her because she is a woman. They aren't even surprised that she chose to be a doctor. But they are amazed at her ability to carry on her strenuous practice and still find time to teach first aid classes, write a book on home remedies, be a Girl Scout leader, Women's Medical association, and the mother of two children.

EUROPE AT WAR: According to the Belgrade paper, Novo Vreme, women are forbidden to drive motor cars or ride bicycles without special permission from the German military commander. Onions were advertised in a Norwegian radio broadcast as being for sale for 40 cents for about 35 ounces. . . . A Belgian woman kept her savings at home instead of in a bank. According to the Belgian newspaper, Volk En Staat, she was fined by the German military authorities.

TALENT SCOUT: That break you've been hoping for may come in an unexpected way. About three years ago Helen O'Connell was singing in a small night club in New York's Greenwich Village. Someone heard her and promptly told Jimmy Dorsey, the orchestra leader, about her. Who was that someone? Dorsey's secretary!

CHILD CARE: The Office of Defense Health and Welfare is at work on a program for care during the day of the children of women employed in war work. Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission said in explaining the purposes of the program, that women with children should not be encouraged or compelled to do work which deprives them of essential care. But if such women are employed, he said, adequate care for their children should be provided.

SUNNY SIDE UP: If you are "the girl left behind," you may be interested in knowing that at least one expert believes that the women left at home have enough to do to keep them out of mischief. He is Prof. Ernest W. Burgess, University of Chicago, and a noted specialist in family relations.

Significant Changes Observed In Spending by Rural Families

Rural families have made significant changes in their spending for living since 1935-36, the department of agriculture has announced in reporting a Bureau of Home Economics survey that described the situation in 1941 and the first quarter of 1942.

In 1941 farm families put more than twice as much into savings as they did in the earlier period. The outlays for living were increased by approximately one-third.

Net money incomes of farm families averaged 46 per cent higher in 1941 than in 1935-36. Increased agricultural production and rises in prices paid to farmers for their output moved many farm families from lower to higher income classes and made possible higher total expenditures.

Farm families with money incomes between $500 and $1,000—the model group in 1941—used about 7 per cent of their income for furnishings and 16 per cent for clothing in 1941 as compared with 5 and 12 per cent, respectively in 1935-36.

On the other hand, families in this income class spent less for automobile purchases and operation—11 per cent in 1941 as compared with 13 per cent in 1935-36.

Despite the increases of recent years, total net incomes of rural families (including single persons) in 1941 and the early months of 1942 were much below those recently reported for urban groups by the U. S. bureau of labor statistics. Although national income from agriculture was approaching a record level in 1941, more than a third of the farm families and almost a quarter of the rural nonfarm families had net money incomes from all sources amounting to less than $500 in that year. Even after adding in the value of food, housing, fuel and other items obtained without direct money payment, nearly 40 per cent of the rural families had total net incomes of less than $1,000. Only 20 per cent of city groups had incomes equally low.

Both in average amount of income and in distribution of families by size of income, rural nonfarm families as a group are more like farm than urban groups. In 1941, the average incomes (money and nonmoney) amounted to $1,539 for rural nonfarm families, $1,664 for farm, and $2,347 for urban. Of these amounts, $228, $518 and $519, respectively, represented the value of noncash income such as that represented by food and other goods produced at home or received as gift or pay and the value of occupancy of the farm house or of the owned nonfarm home.

HEALTH NOTES

"There perhaps is no greater single human tragedy than a maternal death. In the majority of instances the mother is comparatively young, is greatly needed by her family, and the loss to the newborn if surviving is almost irreparable. In 1941, there were 229 maternal deaths. While this figure represents the lowest ever to be recorded in this Commonwealth, the significant fact is that by far the majority of these deaths were preventable. Lack of proper medical attention before, at and after the birth of the baby can be blamed for many of these fatalities," states Dr. I. C. Riggins, State Health Commissioner.

"The scientific safeguards now available to the expectant mother and the highly developed procedures associated with delivery and after-care have been responsible for much of the reduction in maternal deaths.

A study now being made by the Committee on Maternal Health of the State Medical Society, in cooperation with the State Department of Health, reveals that there is a smaller number of fatalities among those women who have prenatal care. The study also shows that some of these deaths may have been prevented by having a trained attendant of the time of delivery.

"Prenatal clinics exist in 48 counties, comprising approximately 65 per cent of the population. However, there are still 52 counties, comprising 35 per cent of the population, where such services are not available due to the war, extension of existing services is unlikely. While in these latter jurisdictions, local physicians would be willing to participate, lack of full-time health departments in the majority of these areas prevents the development of such services.

In short, prenatal care, adequate service at delivery and proper attention after delivery, if made more generally available, could reduce deaths. However, ignorance or carelessness on the part of the mother, the maternal deaths to a minimum. And, if coupled with realization of the great danger to life of self-induced abortion, the total deaths associated with maternity definitely could be reduced.

"The medical profession, public health officials, and others interested in the problem are working to eliminate preventable maternal public must be overcome if progress is to be made."

IRATE PARENTS SEEK IMPROVED FACILITIES FOR BAYSIDE YOUTH

Overcrowded School and Unsanitary Conditions Are Protested at Mass Meeting.

To Meet With Board;
Mothers Out On Strike

Many Children Forced to Walk to School; Buses Said
Unsafe Because of Crowds

Parents in the Bayside section of Princess Anne County last night served notice on the county school board that their children would remain away from the Bayside and Old Kempsville school buildings until overcrowded conditions were eliminated in the former building and the latter structure placed in more sanitary condition. A protest meeting was held last night at the home of one of the school's patrons, and it was then agreed to hold another indignation meeting at the Bayside school on Friday night.

Dr. Harold T. Cook, of the Virginia Truck Experiment Station, presided over the session. He said that those parents who were present were in agreement that they would not send their children back to school until satisfaction was secured from the school board.

Both Schools Overcrowded

Both the old and new schools at Bayside are overcrowded, he said, with 54 children seeking instruction in the first grade, more than 400 pupils were registered on the opening day of school, and since then a number of others have been enrolled.

Conditions are so crowded at Bayside the school authorities today transferred the fifth and sixth grade classes to the old school at Kempsville. Dr. Cook said.

"This building is unsanitary and practically unsafe. There are only two windows in the room in which these classes were housed. One of these windows fell out when an attempt was made to raise it."

"Both windows are over the coal bin, and when the children came home today, their faces were covered with coal dust."

Buses Said Unsafe

"There were no accommodations on the school buses for the children forced to attend the Kempsville school, and they had to walk to their homes at Chesapeake Beach, a distance of about eight miles."

"The school authorities have failed to provide proper means of transportation for the children. One of the buses packs 120 children in it every day. The bus is so crowded the driver has said that sometimes he can not see out of the side windows, and cannot operate in safety. He says he frequently has to stop the bus in order to get the children to move back so that he

First Dance At Camp Thalia Draws Enthusiastic Response

Floor Donated by Virginia Beach Businessmen is Scene of Entertainment; Other Festivities Are Planned for the Near Future

The opening dance at Camp Thalia on the new floor presented to the camp by merchants of Virginia Beach under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce was held last Friday night, and was reported to be one of the most successful social dances yet staged in the area.

The ceremonies began with a grand march led by Lieut. Col. James M. Kelly, commanding officer of the 111th Infantry, and Mrs. Basil Massey, of Virginia Beach, chairman of the dance committee. This was followed by a Paul Jones and tag dances, permitting the soldiers and invited girls to become acquainted and to adjust to the regular dance session that featured the rest of the evening. Mrs. Helen R. Barrett served as mistress of ceremonies.

Many in Attendance

More than 400 soldiers and 150 girls were in attendance, brought to the scene of the dance by army trucks and private automobiles. During intermission refreshments were served.

Music, furnished by the Camp Thalia Band, was under the direction of Warrant Officer Ralph Church. A feature of the night's entertainment was a performance of the drums by Victor Hugo, which brought rounds of applause from the assembled spectators.

Committee in Charge

Mrs. Manly served with the following committee: Mrs. F. Shepherd Reyster, Jr., Mrs. James A. Devereaux, Jr., Mrs. Morris S. Hawkins, Mrs. Maclini Simmons, Mrs. John Winn, Jr., Mrs. H. Holmes Harper, Mrs. Lloyd B. Wickersham, Mrs. C. S. Sheford, Mrs. William Sloane, Jr., and Mrs. E. C. Washburn.

Chaperons included Mrs. Cornelia Blair Strilling, Mrs. Winifred Dixon Greene, Mrs. Benjamin F. Smith, Mrs. G. Benson Ferebee, Mrs. James Vass Brooks, Mrs. Lawrence Tucker, Mrs. Henry G. Lohring and Mrs. Morris S. Hawkins. Major Lester R. Moffatt, of Camp Thalia, was chairman of the reception committee.

The committee plans to hold several more dances at the camp in the near future.

Merchants who have not yet made their contribution to the dance floor are asked to do so as promptly as possible in order that the expenses incident to the construction can be paid in full.

Local Children in Arts and Crafts to Send Handiwork to Chinese Youngsters

On Saturday, September 12, in the Fuel and Feed store window at Virginia Beach, approximately forty dolls were put on display.

Under the direction of Mrs. Anna B. Riley, WPA Recreation Leader, a group of twenty girls, ranging in age from six to thirteen years old, formed into an Arts and Crafts Club for the summer months and have met in two groups one daily on the grounds of the Willoughby T. Cooke School for the past two months.

Dolls Go To China

With the idea of each girl making two dolls, one to keep and one to send to the children of China, the Craft Club has worked diligently, making the dolls with fine stitches from scraps of material. Not only did the children make the dolls, but also dressed them.

Half the group met in the morning and the remainder in the afternoon to learn the principles of sewing and the spirit of play.

Dressed in every color of the rainbow, the dolls make a showing equal to that of a toy shop. Proud are their owners and designers, (of the younger girls) Mary Lee Ward, Beverly Bell, Betty Hope Henley, Marion Hoback, Doris Hareum, Jean Peterson, and Barbara Merivis. (In the older group) Florence Whitehead, Betty Brown, Mildred Scarborough, Vivian Whitehead, Marjorie Brown, Betty Ward and Lynn Drinkwater.

Local Judges

The judges, Mrs. H. Cole, Mrs. Grayson Willis and Mrs. R. S. Watson, selected for first place and blue ribbon, Betty Hope Henley of the younger girls and Betty Ward of the older. Taking second prizes were, Mary Lee Ward of the younger group and Betty Brown of the older.

Following the judging, the Craft Clubs celebrated the completion of their first project by an all-day picnic and swim at the Casino with free rides on the merry-go-round donated by Nucio, the owner.

Reserve Military Unit Proposed for County

An organization meeting of a Princess Anne County unit of the Virginia Reserve Militia was held last night at the Court House, when plans were perfected for the preliminary work of enrolling an adequate force.

FALL PROGRAM OF RECREATION PLANNED HERE

Physical Education Plan of Town Department Sponsored by Parent-Teachers

Physical Achievement Standards Are Set

Certificates of Merit Will Be Given Children Completing Course of Activity

The Virginia Beach Department of Recreation has planned and has now underway a complete recreation program in cooperation with the Willoughby T. Cooke School and the Parent Teachers' Association of the students.

In a time when physical fitness is so important, the program, well balanced from the standpoint of recreation, provides for physical education as well as various other forms of recreation. The program includes a supervised recreation period on how a day for both boys and girls of the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh grades.

Choice of Activity

Two periods each week will be devoted to sports and organized team games of which each child has a choice between two. For the boys the sports will be football and soccer; for the girls there will be captain ball and soccer. One period each week will be scheduled for mass games of low-organization with the other two periods for testing in the National Physical Achievement Standards.

In use for the second year at the Beach school, the National Physical Achievement Standards, graded according to age are set up by a national committee, and are divided into four general classifications: Game, skills, track and field, gymnastics and water sports. Subdivisions include tests for speed, distance.

TRAFFIC DEATH FIGURES GIVEN

Route 170, South of Norfolk, Reported to Have Highest Accident Record in State

What is the most dangerous highway in Virginia?

The Department of State police has tried to answer that question in a study just released showing traffic deaths in 1941 compared with traffic volumes on 21 Virginia highways.

Route 170 Has Highest Rate

The highest mileage death rate found was 59.7, on Route 170, and the next highest was 49.8, on Route 168. Route 170 runs southward to the North Carolina line from Norfolk, via Great Bridge and Hickory, and Route 168 leads from Newport News to a junction with the Richmond-West Point highway near Baltimore, via Toano.

The best records were for U. S. 211 (New Market to Washington, D. C. via Warrenton) with a rate of 12.6 and U. S. 50 (Washington to Winchester) with a rate of 14.1. The record for U. S. 1 (Washington-Richmond-Petersburg-South Hill highway), often regarded as the most dangerous in the state, placed it in fifteenth place, with a rate of 37.2, out of a total of 21 roads studied.

Traffic Toll Higher

Closer to Virginia Beach, traffic tolls ran higher than the average, which was 27.8. U. S. Route 58, running from the Beach to the Tennessee line, had a death rate per one hundred mile vehicle miles of 31.4; U. S. 60, from Virginia Beach to White Sulphur Springs, 26.4, and U. S. 450, Ocean Park to Roanoke, 38.8.

The Ocean Highway Route, U. S. 13 north from Cape Charles, was in fifth place with a rate of 21.3.

Reduced speed limits and a marked reduction of vehicular traffic, during recent months have brought the accident rates far below those quoted here. As a consequence, the record for 1942 will be greatly improved over the past few years.

Strict Enforcement Of State Stop Law Is Asked By TAA

Section of Virginia Code Requiring Motorists to Come to Full Stop When School Buses Are Loading and Unloading Is Said Disregarded

An intensive educational campaign looking to strict enforcement of the State law requiring motorists to stop when approaching school buses loading or unloading passengers will be sought by the Norfolk-Portsmouth board of the Tidewater Automobile Association. The law, passed by the last session of the General Assembly, became operative with the opening of schools for the fall, 1942, term.

A three-point program was approved by the board at a meeting held last week to further the campaign against passing school buses discharging passengers. The board will recommend to its parent organization:

Three-Point Program

1. Place of signs along the highways warning motorists to stop when approaching halted school buses from either direction.
2. Painting of stop signs on both the front and rear ends of school buses. This precaution already has been taken by the school board of Princess Anne County.
3. A warning campaign to be conducted by State policemen, to be followed by strict enforcement.

This would be facilitated through the operation of school safety patrols, with patrolmen stationed on each bus. The association again will organize such patrols throughout the Tidewater territory this year.

Law Said Disregarded

The action taken by the board was based on the observations of its members, who agreed that at present there is a "total disregard" for the law.

"The protection of school children who ride twice a day on school buses is one of the most important jobs," Major C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police declared. "We believe that enforcement of this stop law will help to keep these children from getting hurt."

"Boys and girls don't always think, and when they forget to be careful they run across the road without looking. If a driver is passing a bus at only five miles an hour, an accident can happen. There were more children hurt last year by this type of accident than hurt while riding in school buses."

MARSH NIMROD BAN CLARIFIED

Identification Cards and Permits for Sportsmen to Be Issued by Port Captain

Duck hunters will not be banned from their favorite marshes and blinds during the coming season, according to Comdr. R. B. Hall, U. S. C. G., Captain of the Port of Norfolk, provided they can obtain proper identification cards and permits from his office.

This announcement was made last week, following a conference with the Captain by a committee from the Norfolk Chapter of the Isaac Walton League, who sought clarification of a report of a proposed move to prohibit all marsh shooting in Virginia within 30 miles of the Atlantic Coast. First notice of such a move had been given by William S. Snow, chairman of the State Game and Inland Fisheries Commission, who reported that he had been apprised of a plan by the Coast Guard for the imposing of such a ban. A thirty-mile zone would have prohibited all waterfowl hunting except in areas far up tidal rivers.

No Onerous Regulations

Commander Hall said that it was not his purpose to impose any onerous regulations on any class of people, and particularly on wildfowl hunters.

"Right now, no regulation has been adopted restricting duck hunting in any of the favorite feeding grounds in this section," he said, adding that no statement on the subject, other than one issued on August 27th relative to the carrying of firearms and cameras in boats, had come from his office.

That statement said that "no boat, yacht or small craft shall carry on board cameras or firearms without written authority from the captain of the port. The captain of the port is authorized to designate areas in which duck shooting and other sports involving the use of firearms may be conducted by persons carrying means of identification satisfactory to the captain of the port."

Must Obtain Permit

"Persons who go duck hunting this year must obtain a permit from the office of the captain of the port," Commander Hall said. "This action is being taken so that if it becomes necessary to close the duck hunting areas it will be a simple matter to notify those who have permits to send them in. We will know at all times who is authorized to carry firearms in duck hunting marshes."

Local hunters expressed themselves of the opinion that no attempt would be made by the military authorities to do anything that was not considered necessary and proper for protecting the duck hunting areas.

SCRAP RUBBER METALS DRIVE IS SPONSORED BY NEWSPAPER

Virginia's Daily and Weekly Journals Offer Prizes Totalling $4,000 in Bonds

Is Answer to Salvage Demands By Industry

Blast Furnaces Must Shut Down By January 1st If Need Is Not Met

Citizens of this community have been challenged to lead the state and the nation in the collection of scrap metals and rubber in a campaign sponsored in Princess Anne County by the Virginia Beach News and throughout the state by the newspapers of Virginia in cooperation with the State and Local Salvage committees. Awards of $4,000 in War Bonds are to be given by the newspapers to the largest collectors of scrap in many classes.

Accepting the challenge of the War Production Board to do all they could to avert a crisis in war industries caused by certain shortages of metals, the newspapers of the state yesterday announced an all-out drive from this weekend to October 10th for scrap and offered $4,000 in War Bonds as prizes to individuals, organizations, business firms and cities and counties turning in the greatest amount of metal during the campaign.

Everyone Is Eligible

Every individual, group and business firm in this county is eligible to participate in the contest and the campaign, the only exception being those persons and firms engaged in the business of dealing in scrap. There are twenty awards in ten different classes for those who turn in the greatest amount of scrap.

They follow:

- Counties, per capita poundage: First, $1,000 in war bonds; second, $500.
- Incorporated Municipalities, per capita poundage: First, $750 War Bond; second, $250.
- Adult agricultural organizations, per member poundage: First $100 War Bond; second, $50.
- Youth agricultural organizations, per member poundage: First, $100 War Bond; second, $50.
- Women's organizations, per member poundage: First $100 (Continued on Page Four)

REMOVE THAT TRAFFIC HAZARD!

Norfolk Southern's first contribution to the nation's steel scrap pile should be the useless—but dangerous—steel rail that now serves as a traffic hazard to motorists using the east lane of Pacific Avenue between Sixteenth and Seventeenth Streets. No one has been able to justify its continued use as necessary to the movement of trains and rail buses, and it has been universally damned as an obstruction dangerous to passing cars, particularly under dimout regulations.

If the Norfolk Southern executives must continue to refuse our pleas for the elimination of the upright rail as a traffic menace—and so far they have shown no disposition to cooperate with the local demand, then let them give evidence of their patriotism by contributing that rail to the local salvage committee. Better that it should be cast into bullets to whip the Axis than that it should continue to ruin cars at a time when they are irreplaceable.

As a practical suggestion to the Norfolk Southern, we suggest that the steel rail be taken up and a small concrete curb placed around the switchbox, into which concrete should be sunk a number of warning reflectors. Were this done, and the expense would be negligible, passing motorists would be apprised of the hazard in proper form and could easily avoid it. As it now stands, one unaware of the steel rail knows nothing of its presence until it is firmly imbedded in the understructure of the car.

That rail must be removed! Its contribution to the salvage scrap pile will be a gesture appreciated by everyone familiar with its potential—and actual—danger.

THE "WHY" OF SCRAP

As furnaces are roaring to produce more steel for tanks, planes and guns, Uncle Sam's scrap pile is rapidly diminishing. The need for scrap and more scrap is daily becoming more critical, and that need must be recognized by each and every citizen.

It might be asked why in this land of plenty, with its huge deposits of iron ore, there is such an urgent and unprecedented demand for scrap iron and steel. There are good reasons. Steel is made of scrap and pig iron—metal melted from iron ore. Even in normal times scrap supplies about one-half of the raw material for steel production, and the reason behind it is that scrap contains much valuable alloy material which is recovered in steel production. Such as nickel, tungsten, chromium and other metals needed for many types of alloy for the production of weapons. Such recovery becomes all the more imperative. Too, while there is abundant ore available for the production of pig iron, much labor and extensive transportation facilities are needed to mine, purify and transport the ore to the steel mills.

These are only a few reasons why scrap collection of the ferrous metals and other materials is essential to war production. The salvaging of scrap is a job for every man, woman and child in America. We must dig, and dig deep, in the "mine-above-the-ground," the rich reserve of junk which wasteful America has accumulated through the years. Those mining operations may well determine whether—and how soon—we will win the war!

As announced elsewhere in the news columns, the scrap drive in Virginia Beach will be handled by the members of Boy Scout Troop 60, under the direction of Scoutmaster Hugh Lynn Cayce. These boys are interested in the job ahead of them—they have pledged themselves to salvage every possible piece of scrap metal to be found in the community—but the task can be made immeasurably easier by the full support and cooperation of all who live here.

Cellars, attics, garages, tool rooms and kitchens—even in the children's play rooms—make ideal places in which to poke for the needed metals. To the extent that each person will assume his share of the responsibility of digging out the scrap pile will the steel industry of America benefit. If you do your part, all will be well!

Finally, we would add this warning. The time for each of us to act is now. The situation is most critical. We've sent our boys to the far-flung battleposts of the world and told them to win. We have promised we would give them the best of everything to fight with —and we need all the scrap in America to make that come true—right now when it means their very lives and perhaps a much longer war if it doesn't come true.

A PLEA FOR MORE FLAGS

Most striking lack, as we saw it, on the streets of Virginia Beach during the time of the Labor Day parade was the absence of American flags from before business and residential properties. This lack of display of the national emblem was apparent not only to ourselves but to many visitors as well, for many comments were made by those who strolled along Atlantic Avenue both before and after the marching men and women had passed.

As the symbol of our freedom and our hopes for the future, the flag takes on a deeper meaning in these troubled days than ever before. Its brilliant colors streaming in the summer's sun bring a message of courage to all who look upon them, and it is both fitting and proper that they should be displayed frequently and regularly in all cities of the land.

So do we plead for more American flags on the streets of Virginia Beach. Let's acknowledge our faith and pride in this glorious nation of ours by a proper display of the emblem that will wave on high long after those of our foes have been trampled in the dust.

THE FARMER

The farmer is the world's No. 1 goat. He raises his crops and sells them at prices fixed by the consumer. He has to fight blue mold, hoppers, corn borers, bean beetles, army worms, politicians, peddlers who sell stuff at 10 times its value, and furthermore—he has to take the weather as it comes, hot or cold, wet or dry; and in the end—he must live on the little that is left after he pays his debts, and it has always been very little left. He has no 40-hour weeks, no half-holidays, no bonuses, and no social security. But he has his bunions, sunburns, and hay-fever in season.

He pays a high price for fertilizer which is often half sand. His taxes are assessed on his property at almost actual value, and if he doesn't make enough money to meet his taxes, a nice little "ad" soon appears offering his home for sale. He rises early and works late. The only comfort he enjoys is an occasional chew of Brown's Mule and a gourd of cold water from the well. When his house leaks, he has it to cover. When his mule dies he has to buy another one, but it is not so with the industrial worker. The industrial worker sees all and gets all... or else.

The industrial worker works only 8 hours a day. He usually lives in a house owned by the company. If it leaks, the company covers it. His average wage is 72c an hour against the farmer's income, per hour worked of 4c, while his wife and kids possibly earn from 4c to 6c per hour... and they all work too. The farmer has no C. I. O. to order a strike. He has no "rocking-chair income" if his crops fail. The unemployment office has not yet discovered him. When he gets old enough for an old-age pension, he is sent to the poor house.

For every dollar the average industrial worker is paid the farmer possibly receives 10c, a day, day in and day out. He has a few apparent friends in political years. He feeds the world by toil and sweat, but the world knows him not. He is not counted a cog in the wheel of progress; he's just the grease on the axle. He is cursed and condemned by all who eat, especially when the said eaters have to pay him a living wage for what he produces. There ought to be an "easy" heaven for a farmer. He catches enough of the other side on earth. And when conditions so change that the farmer is paid about what his produce is worth, he is hailed by all non-farmers as a cheat and a robber.—Mike Larkin in the Pittsylvania Tribune.

SEPTEMBER

(Christian Science Monitor)

Mist across the valley. Yellow elm leaves floating down. A red branch on swamp maple. Wild dematis on old stone walls. Starry asters in the woodlands. Goldenrod along the roads. On the hillside, purple thistles and the milk-weed's airy plumes. On the millpond, water lilies. In the gardens, marigolds. Yellow cucumbers and squashes. Purple grapes and yellow pears. In the orchard, pink-cheeked Pippins, Northern Spies and big Pound Sweets.

Gray squirrels busy with their hoarding. Swallows in long rows on wires. Bees zig-zagging, honey-laden. Butterflies in sunshine sailing. Locusts milder with their humming. Goldfinch round the sunflower halos. Crickets slowing up their fiddling. Crisp and cool the early evenings. Sharp Katydids all night debating.

And wet the morning hours. In the air a fruited fragrance. Everywhere a tang of living.

ANOTHER FISH STORY

This is a true story: At a Long Island resort a girl landed a fish weighing 120 lbs. It was five feet and six inches long, wore plus four knickers, and has already spoken to her father.

Candidates for Congress will receive enough extra gas under the new rationing to permit them to campaign. Presumably they will furnish their own air—Pathfinder.

FACTS AND FIGURES ON WAR FINANCE

From the Tax Foundation in New York comes an interesting and informative discussion of the War and the means which must be taken to finance its operation. We who remain on the Home Front must shoulder a great part of this tax burden, and it is to our advantage to know just what is going on and what is expected from us if we would approach this matter intelligently.

Consequently, for this and the succeeding two weeks we will devote this column to a Question-and-Answer Forum on Facts and Figures of War Finance. It is our hope that a careful reading will be of interest and of value in following future discussions as they are reported from the Congress.

By way of an introduction to this discussion, the Tax Foundation experts have written as follows:

To the task of victory, this nation, its people, their enterprise and industry have dedicated themselves. The price will not be cheap. Victory will be bought by blood and tears that are beyond valuation. It will also be bought with dollars—more billions of dollars than have ever been spent by any nation on earth—more billions than any people have ever found themselves called upon to provide—so many billions as to be beyond the comprehension of all but a few.

Nothing must detract from our concentration on the job ahead. At the same time we must not for an instant forget, or lose sight of the fact, that a great part of the battle must be fought not with guns and planes and tanks on foreign soil but with common sense, vision and courage right here at home.

The Nation must find the dollars to pay for the war without destroying or seriously impairing the very economy by which it has been free. To do this job on the home front, the American people must not only accept, but must rather see to it, that the Nation adopts several fundamental policies:

1. The saving of every possible dollar not necessary to the war and not absolutely essential to the needs of the people. This means immediate and rigid economy on the part of government, federal, state and local.

2. The imposition of maximum necessary taxes upon all of the people and their industry without working inequitable or unbearable hardship on any part and without destroying or stifling the system of free enterprise which produces the nation's income through which it has achieved the highest standard of living ever known and only through which, after victory, it can advance to new frontiers.

3. Along with a broadly based, realistic system of taxation—one of the most equitable and effective bars to inflation—to adopt all other practical anti-inflationary measures.

4. To conserve all national resources, human, natural, financial and, while winning the victory for Democracy, to also preserve and prepare Democracy for peace.

So much for the objectives. Now let us begin consideration of facts as they actually exist in our current picture.

1. What is the over-all size of our present war program? The program of War funds expended, authorized and requested to date amounts to $222 billion, more than the total of all the ordinary expenditures of the Federal Government, including all past wars, from 1789 through 1940.

2. How much has been spent to date? In the fiscal year 1941 (the year ending June 30, 1941), nearly $6 1-2 billion was spent; in the fiscal year 1942 this sum increased to $26 billion, a total, since the beginning of the defense program, of nearly $35 billion up to July 1, 1942. According to present plans, this leaves over $187 billion still unexpended.

3. How much are we spending now? In July, war expenditures were at the rate of $4 1-2 billion a month, and this is expected to increase to $5 or $6 billion a month by the end of the year. The estimated war expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, have been placed at $67 to $71 billion. This is four times the amount spent in the war year 1918-1919, and is practically equal to our entire national income in the year 1940.

4. Is this all we have to spend? Probably not. Expenditures totaling over $100 billion have already been authorized for the period beyond June 30, 1942. Expenditures for war purposes alone will probably amount to $72 billion between July 1, 1943 and June 30, 1944. How much will be needed beyond that point depends on how long the war lasts. Other considerations are the changing needs of our fighting forces and those of our allies, and the control of prices so that the nation will not suffer a major inflation. Naturally, if prices go up, a great many more dollars will be needed to buy the same quantity of war goods. Another most important consideration is the problem of how much we can produce—the limitations of raw materials and man power on the quantity of goods and services we can turn out for war purposes.

5. What is the maximum we can produce? Out total production is most easily measured by relating it to the figure which we call the "national income." This is the total income received for all the goods and services produced by all the people of the country during any year, after certain allowances and deductions. The size of this national income depends primarily on our man-power—the number of people we can put to work—and the availability of materials. In the year ending June 30, 1942, our national income reached a net figure of approximately $104 billion—nearly one-fourth more than the previous greatest year, 1929. Probably by the time the peak of production is reached this figure will rise to $120 billion. Thus, a glance at the expenditure estimates given above will show that we are planning to devote about 60 per cent of the total production of the country to winning the war. This compares with 25 per cent, at the peak of the war effort during the first World War.

6. What about "normal" government expenditures? During the next fiscal year the Federal Government will spend a little over $6 billion for nonwar purposes. Some economies have already been made in these appropriations, but, obviously, every dollar saved in nonwar spending is a dollar which can be spent to help win the war. In addition, it must be remembered that our state and local governments are spending about $10 billion a year, and these expenditures must be met through state and local taxes.

7. How can the nation meet the costs of this tremendous war effort? By taxes and borrowing. Of course, the safest way would be through taxes, but it is usually not possible to raise such tremendous sums by taxation alone and the war burden must always be spread over future years by borrowing.

More facts and figures on the financing of the war, as gleaned from the latest report of the Tax Foundation, will appear here next week.

DAILY VISITORS

ON THE ROAD TO VICTORY

Miscellaneous News and Views On the Conduct of the War

As the machinery of war production moves at a steadier pace, with fewer starts and stops and less grinding of gears, plans that were only on paper a short while ago become realized facts. One question long under discussion was how to combine the productive resources of pants manufacturing similar, competitive articles so that a limited supply of these articles still would be available after most of the plants had turned to making war goods. The British have had a system of pooling industrial resources for some time.

America's first real test of the new method of operating "surviving" plants comes in the bicycle field. Last year's output of these machines averaged about 150,000 per month. This year the figure has been steadily reduced until it is now set at no more than 10,000 bicycles per month, with army, navy, maritime commission, war shipping administration and lend-lease having first call on those produced. Ten of the dozen bicycle plants already have been converted strictly to war manufactures. The two plants will continue to make bicycles but only the Victory Model, a light machine that uses a scant amount of critical materials. The two makes will be alike, distinguished merely by the letter "W" or "H" before the serial number.

LACK OF FUEL OIL CREATES NEW PROBLEMS

War needs are like ten pins, a "strike" from one direction setting in motion a whole series of effects in like or even unlike fields. The drain on our fuel oil supply, for instance, has affected the demand for artificial gas to such an extent as to require restrictions of gas supplied to new industrial and domestic consumers. The natural gas fields of the midcontinent are feeling the pull. At the same time, however, drilling of new wells in Kansas and Oklahoma—except by direct permission—has been halted in order to save materials, compel wells opened but not producing to connect with pipe lines.

YANKEE INVENTIVENESS OVERCOMES OBSTACLES

Yankee inventiveness is beginning to overcome many handicaps caused by shortages. New types of containers have been developed by the container industries—heavy paper cartons for overseas shipments. Many kinds of canned goods now come in jars and bottles. Paper containers are substituted for scarce burlap bags, and paper "cans" with metal ends are used for packing some brands of baking powder and dried fruits.

A manufacturer of molasses powder for ginger bread mix, forced by restrictions to use a new type of molasses, worked out a higher quality of powder and was granted an increase of 1 1-2 cents a pound on his product. With bed springs confined to 30 pounds of steel per spring, manufacturers have been encouraged to make four war models of wood-frame coil bed springs. Ceiling prices have been placed on these models.

The Bureau of Mines will build the first pilot plant for making sponge iron, a substitute for scrap iron in steel manufacture. In spite of the millions of pounds of scrap turned in through salvage campaigns, the supply is below the pressing needs of the steel industry. Scrap rubber goes from V-1 to V-4, according to quality, and the prices at the shoe repair stores will be fixed. Government control of the size and cut of women's wartime clothes has saved about 100 million yards of cloth a year, but housewives can save still more by choosing practical wartime styles—and by taking care of the clothes they have.

WAR PRODUCTION DRIVES SHOW FAVORABLE BALANCE SHEET

War production drives also show a favorable balance sheet, with Labor-Management Committees established in 1,309 war plants, and other industries, including the first major railroad to adopt this form of cooperation, the Illinois Central Railroad, and the first of the large lumber companies, the Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. Government geologists and engineers have blocked out more than 500,000 tons of valuable bauxite in Georgia, and other experts are exploring the "black" sands of the Oregon coast for metals. There will be more sugar for workers in areas where the population has jumped because of war industries. Apple processors may raise the price of canned apple sauce, applejuice, cider and dried apples to cover the increased cost of producing and harvesting apples. Ceiling prices for dry cleaning, shoe repairing, laundering and other common services must be posted for public inspection. Retail prices for footballs, basketballs, and other autumnal goods will be cut. Boys and men will have to get along with whatever woolen lounging robes are on hand, but mothers need not worry about woolen robes for infants, sizes 1 to 3. And over-size persons can have their woolen garments built to fit. Measures to protect the Nation's Federal buildings against air raid hazards and sabotage are being taken by the Federal Works Commission. Two problems—to prevent escape of prisoners from Federal Prisons, and of dangerous animals from bombed zones. Violators of the Men's and Women's clothing simplification orders who make expensive "zoot suits" and "jukes" coats for male and female jitterbugs face WPE trouble. The third anniversary of the German invasion of Poland found that tortured country still defiant and unconquered, with more than 150,000 of its fighting men in action on United Nation fronts.

The board minimizes the importance of these strikes, stating that only 3.5% less than 5 per cent of the war workers were out of work, but an analysis of the re-

The board admits that there was a temporary lull in strikes during January, following Pearl Harbor, but that since then the number of men lost by strikes has increased sharply. In January, according to report, there were only 31 strikes, only 13,000 workers involved and 46,000 man-days of work lost. In July, however, there were 10 strikes, 81,000 men involved and 100,000 man-days lost.

The national union leaders are demanding more power in the direction of war production. VIRGINIA BEACH SHORE IS FREE OF RESTRICTION

Order Prohibiting Public from Ocean-Front Exempts Area Outside of Camps

ALL OF COAST AFFECTED

Precaution Taken as Trap for Spies

A new lease on life was given to Virginia Beach late last week when the oceanfront territory between Camp Pendleton and Fort Story was declared unrestricted by Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the Eastern Military Area. This stretch, so far as could be determined from a careful reading of the order which designated 905 prohibited zones and 49 restricted zones in the 16 seaboard states, remains as Virginia's only unrestricted bit of ocean-front territory.

Other coastal territory lying between Maryland and North Carolina state lines becomes a sort of "no-man's land" for the public between the hours of sunset and sunrise, with a strip one hundred yards in depth back of the mean high water mark marked as particularly forbidden. The only exception to this regulation is in the case of a public thoroughfare, such as a road or boardwalk, lying within the 100-yard area.

Trap For Spies

Military authorities reported that the precaution is taken at this time as a trap for any spies or saboteurs who might attempt landings along the coast under the cover of darkness, and to hamper possible attempts at communications between persons on the beach and ships at sea. Prohibited zones may not be entered by the public at any time without military pass.

In addition all who enter either prohibited or restricted zones, except members of the armed forces of the United States, are banned from possessing certain articles, among which are firearms, explosives, radio sending or receiving sets, cameras and visual aids such as binoculars.

Order Displayed

General Drum ordered that copies of the proclamation be displayed at every Selective Service local board, post office, courthouse and town hall in the Eastern Military Area, and pointed out:

"It shall be the duty of every person found within the Eastern Military Area to familiarize himself with the terms of every proclamation, announcement or restriction issued by this headquarters."

Persons found in prohibited or restricted zones bear the responsibility of being able, at all times to identify themselves to military or civil authorities under penalty of arrest. Enemy aliens in the area will be subject to immediate apprehension and internment, the order declared.

Military Camps Included

Also included in prohibited zones were military camps, landing fields, power plants, naval yards and vessels, piers, docks, munitions storage yards or warehouses, canals, communication facilities, mines and other places the protection of which is deemed necessary to the national defense.

The Eastern Defense Command covers Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and the District of Columbia.

Other than Fort Story and Camp Pendleton, the restricted area near Virginia Beach includes all of the land between the ocean and Back Bay south of the land occupied by Camp Pendleton.

LAKELAND, Fla.—When, in recognition of a unique contribution to the war effort, Rear Admiral William Carlisle Watts recently presented the Army-Navy "E" to Food Machinery Corporation's tractor division here, many Americans probably wondered at the part played by a food processing machinery company and its employees in war production. Little or nothing was said about the famous amphibian tank which "swims like a fish" and races across land with equal effectiveness to clear the way for our fighting men. Inset photograph shows Admiral Watts putting silver identification bracelet on the wrist of Miss Alice Baxter, company employee, while Paul M. EVANS-EVERETT

A marriage of interest took place Saturday night when Miss Virginia Clair Everett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clark, became the bride of Lieut. Lucius Wilson Evans, United States Naval Reserve, son of Percival and Cora Evans, of Wakefield, Mass., and the late Mr. Evans. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Philip A. Brennan, pastor of St. Henry's Church of the Holy Church, in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride was decorated with lilies, white chrysanthemums, white gladioli and lily of the valley, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Louise Boyd Robinson and Carol Trent.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a gown of white tulle, fashioned with tight bodice shirred in front, with sweetheart neckline, bracelet length sleeves, and long full skirt forming a train. Her finger tip veil of illusion was arranged with a coronet of lace, and she wore lace mitts and carried a bouquet of Calla lilies. She had as her bridal attendants her two sisters, Miss Ann Shield Everett and Miss Margaret Maddre Everett. They wore gowns of tulle and lace in rose, with full tulle skirts, lace mitts and tight fitting bodices of matching lace. Their flowers were old-fashioned nosegays of mixed summer flowers.

The bridegroom had as his best man his father, Mrs. Everett, mother of the bride, wore a dress of royal blue crepe, the bodice embroidered with pearls and silver beads. She carried an orchid corsage.

There was a small reception for the families and out of town guests. Later Lieut. and Mrs. Evans left by plane for a northern trip, and upon the return will reside at Virginia Beach. The bride traveled in a dress of black wool crepe with red Frederick hat and black and red accessories.

PROSPECTIVE YIELDS PER ACRE ABOVE AVERAGE ON FALL CROPS

Prospective yields per acre of all fall harvested crops in Virginia are above average according to the September 1 crop survey made by the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. An improvement in the outlook for corn indicates a yield per acre of 27.0 bushels, or the same as the record high yield in 1940. The speckled weather crop is very heavy but rainy weather has greatly hampered its harvesting. Total tame hay production prospects improved over 100,000 tons during August and the crop is expected to be the largest in the 76 years of record. Record heavy crops of peanuts and soybeans are also indicated. Harvesting of a large peach crop has just been completed and picking early varieties of apples has been started. The commercial apple crop gives promise of being the largest in 5 years. In spite of wet weather during harvest the flue and fire-cured tobacco yields estimated on September 1, were higher than indicated a month earlier. Burley and sun-cured harvest is about two-thirds completed. Cotton picking is now under way. The prospective yield per acre of cotton is the largest on record. Comparatively dry weather on the Eastern Shore during the past two weeks enabled growers to clean grass out of the fall lima beans and to complete snap bean planting. Pastures everywhere over the State are the best in over twenty years. The pasture season in Virginia has been one of extremes this year. In May, Virginia pastures were the poorest in the entire country. Now they are the best. As a result of this lush growth together with cooler weather, milk production went up sharply. Egg production continues to set new high records.

Rainy weather, soft fields and a general scarcity of workers so prolonged speckled weather has harvest corn cutting and silo filling that this work is still not finished at a time when fall plowing, seed bed preparation for winter grains and apple picking demand attention. The past few days have favored field work. More warm and clear days are needed.

CORN: Yield per acre prospects continue to improve but the crop has not yet regained all of the losses resulting from the mid-July heat wave. This is especially true in the southeast and the upper part of the Valley. Southwest Virginia has an excellent crop and many of the north central counties have the best crop in history. The eastern counties also have a good crop. The yield per acre is now estimated at 27.0 bushels, as compared with 28.0 bushels a year ago and the 10-year (1930-39) of 22.3 bushels. Production is estimated at 35,010,000 bushels. The United States crop of 3,015,915,000 bushels is the largest in 22 years and the third largest on record.

TOBACCO: Rainy weather hampered harvesting of every type but in spite of this yield prospects on September 1 were higher than those a month earlier. Total production of all types over August prospects. Production in 1941 was 88,572,000 pounds. The average is 99,861,000 pounds. All of the flue cured has been harvested and much of it cured. The 1942 crop is estimated at 70,520,000 pounds as compared with 64,240,000 in 1941 and the average of 67,542,000 pounds. The yield per acre of 860 pounds is slightly below that of last year but considerably above average. The United States flue-cured crop is now estimated at 762,760,000 pounds as compared with the 1941 production of 649,542,000 pounds and the 10-year average of 751,349,000 pounds.

BUCKWHEAT: The Virginia buckwheat crop is now estimated at 128,000 bushels. This is an increase over last month but is still below average due to the smaller acreage. The United States crop of 6,558,000 bushels is also below average and for the same reason.

COTTON: The estimated yield per acre of 390 pounds sets a new high record for Virginia. Production is now estimated at 35,000 bales as compared with 30,000 a year ago and the 10-year (1931-40) average of 31,000 bales. Picking is now under way. The United States crop is estimated at 14,025,000 bales and compares with the 1941 production of 10,744,000 bales and the 10-year average of 13,109,000.

PEANUTS: Prospects continue to improve. Production is now expected to total 208 million pounds, the largest by far in the State's history. Yield per acre is estimated at 1,300 pounds as compared with the 1941 yield of 1,155 and the 10-year average of 1,042 pounds. The record United States production of 2,929,750,000 pounds is about double the 1941 crop. SOYBEANS AND COW PEAS: Soybean condition on September 1 was the highest on record. The United States crop is expected to total 211,452,000 bushels, which is almost double that of last year and three times larger than the 1940 crop. Cowpeas have improved everywhere in the State since August 1.

HAY AND PASTURE: Hay production estimated at 1,494,000 tons is the largest of record and pasture condition reported at 98 per cent of normal is the highest since 1921. Clover and timothy yielded better than expected and late cuttings of alfalfa have been heavy. Speckled weather is a very heavy crop but frequent rain interruptions have caused unusual difficulty in harvesting. Soybean, cowpea and peanut growth are heavy. The United States total hay crop of 104 million tons is the largest on record.

POTATOES: Late potatoes made marked improvement during August. Total production which includes both early and late crops is placed at 7,665,000 bushels. The United States crop of 378,396,000 bushels is larger than that of either last year or average. Virginia sweet potatoes continued to improve during August and production is now estimated at 4,320,000 bushels. The 1941 crop was 2,970,000 bushels, the 10-year average 4,061,000 bushels.

FRUIT: There has been a general improvement in all sections in apple prospects. Production in the 21 designated commercial counties is estimated at 14,274,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 11,800,000 bushels. Quality and color are excellent. Early varieties are now being harvested. The crop is about 10 days early.

'K. P.' in Desert

The last so cryptic letters "K.P." mean kitchen police, and they mean it the whole world over. However American fighters chance to see. Every soldier who has drawn a "K.P." can sympathize with the expression of Pvt. Paul Lawrence, Ind., as he contemplates the stack of dishes awaiting his services in the desert training center, California.

The United States crop in the commercial areas is estimated at 126,311,000 bushels, which is 3 per cent larger than the 1941 crop and 2 per cent above average. Harvesting of an above-average peach crop is now completed. The Virginia pear crop is now estimated at 541,000 bushels, which is above that of last year or the average. The Virginia 1942 grape crop was 1,900 tons. Last year's crop was 1,700 tons.

MILK PRODUCTION: Milk production per cow on September 1 in herds of Virginia crop reporters was 14.6 pounds, the highest on record for September and second highest for any month. For the country as a whole milk production continues at a record high level.

EGG PRODUCTION: Although the rate of lay was slightly below that of last August, the larger number of layers was enough to give an increased production. During the first 8 months of 1942 Virginia hens have laid 741 million eggs as compared with 642 million in the same period last year. United States egg production continues the highest on record.

All because of the seasons being reversed in the two hemispheres, dogs obtained from Russia for Captain Scott's Antarctic expedition, molted at the approach of winter and almost froze to death.

America's War Plants Need Virginia's Scrap Metal and Rubber

Already, there have been shutdowns of steel plants for lack of scrap iron and steel to mix with iron ore. If this increases, our whole war production program will be in danger. The scrap in your attic, in your basement, in your back yard, on your farm, is desperately needed for war production. Bring it in now!

IRATE PARENTS

can see how to drive.

"By a strange coincidence, perhaps, the pupils transferred to the old dilapidated Kempsville school are children of mothers who took a leading part in advocating the building of the new school at Bayside which was opened only last year.

"Most of these mothers also serve in the lunchroom at the school. They declared tonight, however, that they would serve no longer, because their children no longer were permitted to attend the school.

"At a meeting we proposed to hold Friday night it will be at the Bayside school—we want all the Bayside parents and the school authorities to attend. We are going to demand that the children sent to Kempsville school be returned to Bayside and that there be a double session each day, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. We believe the crowded conditions can be eliminated if there are two daily sessions instead one.

"We are going to demand, too, that the lives of our children be better safeguarded on school buses—that they not be packed into these vehicles like animals.

"We have complained for several years about conditions at the Bayside School, and nothing has been done about it. It has reached the point where we are going to demand that something be done."

FACILITIES FOR

accuracy and coordination.

Designed to be used and practiced on a year-round basis, not only for the school but to be carried in the home, the National Physical Achievement Standards build capacities, aptitudes, skills, abilities and coordination between mind and body of the growing child.

Certificate of Merit

To those participants whose activities reach the standards, and to those who have successfully passed the requirements of the National Physical Achievement committee, the Virginia Beach Recreation Department and Cooke F. T. A. headed by Mrs. Edridge Whitehurst, will award certificates of merit at the end of the school session. The certificates are signed by H. S. Brucher, chairman of the National committee and also head of the National Recreation Board.

In the late afternoon after school, a varied program including clubs and organizations will be presented. A demonstration of crafts by the Recreation Department is planned for next week to be given before the entire student body. Those children who continue to express interest in crafts will form into a craft club awarded according to the interest manifested. Monthly projects initiated will culminate in exhibits with the first two projects for September being stenciling and plaster casting.

Mrs. Anna B. Riley, WPA Recreation leader, assigned to the Virginia Beach Department of Recreation will be in charge of the girl's supervised recreation period and all after school activities. Hugh Lynn Cayce will direct the boys supervised period. Mrs. Riley, who has just finished an extensive preliminary training course in handicraft, organization and planning, will undertake in September another week's intensive training conducted by Mrs. Ruth H. Hyland, Works Projects Administration State Technician on Arts and Crafts.

Junior Leaders

During the first week of school Junior Leaders, as aides to the Recreation Leader, will be elected by the student body, thereby forming a democratic system of government. A careful training program will then ensue for those elected. The Junior leaders will be trained in rules of games and sports, as referees and umpires, in the spirit of democratic leadership for mass games, attitudes, skills, recreation standards and objectives, simplified program arrangements and presentation of games.

The Junior Leader's work, besides helping the Recreation Leader in general ways, will consist in taking charge of various tests for the National Physical Achievement Standards, and keeping records on the practices of these.

Apparatus Area

Children's playground and apparatus area located behind the Beach school provides opportunity for boys and girls, primarily between the ages of six and fifteen, to engage in a variety of fundamental and enjoyable play activities under supervision and leadership.

The area includes features for pre-school age, facilities as a neighborhood playground and for school outdoor recesses. The school building nearby provides comfort facilities and the shelter situated on the playground proper will serve in event of sudden storms. The entire area is enclosed with a fence to minimize danger of children running into adjacent streets.

Apparatus includes swings, both low and high for small and large children, which are grouped along the edge of the area, acting bars, sand-boxes, heavy rope for climbing, standards, and swinging rings. Other apparatus will be added as the playground develops.

The shelter also has tables for handicraft, and will serve for informal stories and storytelling activities. Trees, vines, shrubs and flowers to be planted at certain spots may well aid in nature study.

The playground with apparatus financed by the local Lions Club will be operated all day on Saturday as well as every weekday afternoon.

Some Days

Programs for rainy days and day of any inclement weather will be a feature of the playground. Children will have opportunities for additional and short-term handicraft projects, participation in musical and quiet games, table-games, dramatics, skits and stunts, pantomimes, story-acting and telling, and simple folk-dancing. In fact, there is a possibility of a Rainy Day Club which would have organization, procedure and program developed and administered by the children themselves.

Home Recreation

At the first meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association during the past week, Hugh Lynn Cayce, Recreation Director for the town of Virginia Beach, presented for discussion, the topic, "Home Recreation." Its possibilities, achievements, and satisfying effects were stressed. In fact, the P. T. A. meeting was devoted exclusively to a discussion of home recreation and the program was approved.

If sufficient interest is shown, the Recreation Department is prepared to print a booklet on recreation in the home which there would be in three divisions; quiet games for the home, play apparatus and children's parties.

Figures for 1941 show that while automobile deaths from collisions were up 24 per cent, and non-collision deaths registered a 21 per cent increase, pedestrian deaths increased only 7 per cent over 1940.

DEATH CLAIMS PAID PROMPTLY

Life Companies Adopt New Methods in Cooperation with Army and Navy Officials

New methods for speedy handling of death claims on members of the armed forces of the United States, conforming to the new conditions of world-wide military and naval activity, have been adopted by the life insurance companies of the country, it was announced by the International Claim Association.

Following a pattern of uniform practice worked out by the International Claim Association, in cooperation with the Army and the Navy, the life insurance companies are supplying the new claim procedure to cases involving policyholders scattered in all parts of the world.

Proof of death cannot be secured today in the normal way and the life insurance companies must, therefore, depend on the government services for this data. The insurance companies are securing copies of the certificate of death, as provided by the Army and Navy for their own use, and this is being taken as the basis for claim payment.

Army and Navy headquarters do not like to have dependents writing individually for these certificates of death, preferring the companies to request these, and therefore a system is set up by which the local insurance office, where first information of persons lost in action or missing is received, sends a request for the certificate of death direct to the Army or Navy, at the same time that the insurance head office is being notified, the certificate being sent direct to the head office. Such a system reduces the time involved considerably.

In the case of a soldier or sailor reported missing, the insurance companies in which he is a policyholder notify the Army or Navy to that effect. This is noted on the government's record of the individual and if subsequently this man is listed as dead, the companies are advised so that payment of the insurance benefits can be made. At the present time the Army and Navy are making income payments for a period of 12 months to the dependents of those still classified as missing.

Civilian Employees
The same procedure applies to civilian employees involved in Army or Navy action, such as those involved on Guam, Wake, Midway and Hawaiian Islands. The action on cases of persons missing at sea is illustrated by the losses on the Reuben James, on which all officers were lost, but about which no precise information was available.

Coast Guard and Lighthouse personnel are treated the same as Navy personnel, under which they now come. Prisoners of war are specially considered; information in such cases being secured through a special Information Section set up in Washington and operating under the Geneva Conference Treaty. In the case of merchant seamen, there is no equivalent central bureau for determining the status of those missing at sea, but conferences are now being held to clarify this situation.

Reserve Militia Unit Proposed for County

There will be a meeting held in the Court House building at Princess Anne Court House Thursday, September 24th, at 8:00 P. M. to discuss ways and means of organizing a company of Virginia Reserve Militia. Any men in the county between the ages of 18 and 45 who are not now actively engaged in other defense organizations are invited to attend.

Committee Broadening Expense Investigation

To give impetus to the policy of "First Things First" necessary to win the war, the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures, headed by Senator Byrd of Virginia, is broadening its investigations in an effort to stop Federal waste in war agencies and government corporations, on the premise that Wasted Dollars Win No Wars. The Citizens Emergency Committee urges support of this commendable activity, and appeals to their representatives to write to their representatives in Congress, asking them to assist in helping finance the war by reducing non-essential expenditures.

LIONS AND BOY SCOUTS OUT TO GET LAST BIT OF LOCAL JUNK

Salvage Squads to Canvass Entire Community for Waste Metals and Rubber

THREE TONS OF STEEL CONTRIBUTED BY PARK

Wholehearted Cooperation of Townspeople Is Pledged To Three-Week Drive

Nearly everything but the kitchen sink—and that is acceptable if you have an extra one!—is showing up in the scrap collection being made in Virginia Beach by the Boy Scouts of Troop 60, and the members of the Virginia Beach Lions Club. The cooperation of the public in this vitally-necessary drive is, according to Hugh Lynn Cayce, Scoutmaster, and E. M. Hall, Jr., chairman of the Lions committee, nothing short of "overwhelming."

Systematic collections from each house and business in the Virginia Beach area are the aims of both salvage units, and it is their expressed intention to clean up every available piece of junk metal and rubber that exists in the community, regardless of how hard they must dig to get it. Uncle Sam needs all the waste metals if the nation's steel plants and war industries are to function at top speed. Ferretting out that scrap, piece by piece, is the task to which both local salvage groups have pledged themselves.

Wardens To Assist

From the Lions Club comes the news that the air raid wardens will be asked to lend their fullest cooperation to the drive. Upon the recommendation of Russell Hatchett, chief of the wardens, each defense officer will visit every home in his assigned territory, informing the householders of the drive and of the imperative need for their cooperation. This canvass will be duplicated by the Boy Scouts, with each patrol assigned a particular area. Between the efforts of both groups it can be expected that few pieces of scrap will be overlooked.

Seaside Park Contributes

In a communication received by the Lions Club this week, Frank D. Shean, General Manager of Seaside Park, reported that Horace Bluford, a major concessionaire at the park, has approximately three tons of steel and several hundred pounds of aluminum that he wishes to donate to the scrap pile. This metal is an old nose riding device no longer in use, and much of it already reported on the Lions scrap pile on Atlantic Avenue, opposite Seaside Park.

Reports of large piles of scrap have been telephoned to both Lions headquarters and the Boy (Continued on Page Four)

Nelson Asks Virginians To Contribute Scrap

Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, in a wire to President A. Robbins of the Virginia Press Association has appealed to all Virginians to support the Virginia newspaper's scrap campaign. Mr. Nelson's wire read: "The Virginia Scrap Plan, as sponsored by the newspapers of Virginia, is a splendid example of the type of leadership that we were seeking when we issued our challenge to America's newspapers to get behind the vitally important national salvage drive."

"As chairman of the War Production Board, I want to stress the genuine importance of this drive and urge every citizen of the Commonwealth of Virginia to contribute to its success by gathering and turning in during the Virginia newspaper salvage drive all the scrap metal, rubber and rags that can be spared."

Your Junk Is Needed to Help Win the War---Dig It Out!

Mayor's Proclamation

WHEREAS the Governor of our Commonwealth of Virginia has set aside the weeks of September 21 to October 10 of this year 1942 and designated them Junk Rally Weeks, to be observed by all within the bounds of this Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, this has been done in response to an urgent appeal from officials of the War Production Board, the Army and Navy; and

WHEREAS many steel furnaces and arms plants may be forced to close, thereby leaving our soldiers and sailors with insufficient weapons, unless the citizens of this city, Commonwealth and this nation rally to provide more scrap metal; and

WHEREAS no small number of these men of our armed forces who need our junk metal so that they may have arms are gone forth from the families of this community;

THEREFORE, I, W. W. Elliott, Mayor of the Town of Virginia Beach, do ask all residents of this community to participate in the observance of Junk Rally Weeks, and help thereby the men of our armed forces in their fight for freedom.

RENT INCREASE BLANKS READY

Hotel and Rooming House Operators May Make Application for Summer Tariffs

The necessary forms to make application for seasonal increases in room tariffs were received this week at the Virginia Beach office of the Rent Control Administration, A. H. Lawrence, office manager, stated yesterday, and are ready for distribution to hotel and rooming house operators.

Although most of the rent adjustments expected to be sought by hotel operators here will not be effective until the beginning of the 1943 summer season, Mr. Lawrence urged that all persons considering such applications get in touch with him before closing their properties for the winter. Some delay can be expected in the consideration of the petitions, he said, and failure to file them early might result in considerable confusion next summer.

New Quarters Ready

The local office force of the Rent Control Administration will move into the newly-constructed quarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building over the weekend and, beginning Monday, will be in a position to give increased service to Virginia Beach landlords. Office hours will be maintained daily, Monday through Friday, from 9:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M.

Those operators who wish to discuss their proposed rate increases with Mr. Lawrence before filing their petitions are requested to call the Rent Control office for an appointment. If they would avoid delays in seeing the inspector. The telephone number is Virginia Beach, 1363.

Landlords Warned

Registration forms, both on individual properties and on hotels, rooming houses and tourist homes, continue to come into the office, Mr. Lawrence stated, in spite of the fact that the closing date for filing passed several weeks ago. However, he warned, severe penalties may be imposed for failure to register rentable properties, and those persons who have not yet done so are urged to secure necessary forms without further delay.

Inspection of properties for which seasonal increases in rent have been asked continues without interruption, it was learned, although the progress is necessarily slower than most landlords would prefer.

Salvage Drive to Continue Without Letup for Two Weeks; War Bond Prizes

Every available pound of junk in this area is under searching eyes today as the citizens of Princess Anne County gather momentum in their efforts to make this country's biggest scrap drive a resounding success.

With the local salvage committees working in cooperation with this newspaper, the three weeks drive was launched on Saturday and will continue through October 10. The county drive is part of a statewide campaign in which $4,000 in war bonds are to be awarded to biggest collectors of scrap in many different contest classes.

Drive Endorsed

Just as in this community, local groups throughout the state are devoting three weeks in an intensive effort for a whirlwind collection of scrap. State presidents of farm associations, business associations, women's clubs, labor unions, lodges and fraternities have issued statements endorsing the drive and urging all their local branches to get in the scrap.

Local groups may participate in at least three different ways. They may offer their services to the local salvage committee, they may provide special prizes for local contest awards to supplement the state prizes, or they may organize as a unit to secure enough scrap to enter the statewide contest and win one of the War Bond prizes. The field is wide open in this contest. All awards are made on the basis of per member poundage for clubs and organizations, and there are eight different classes including such groups as farm people, women's clubs, boys' and girls' organizations, business firms and men's club. All are eligible to enter. Prizes in these categories may be used for any purpose the winner wishes.

Official Receipts Needed

At the same time the county per capita total of scrap poundage will be entered in the statewide contest. If a prize is won, the bonds will go to the cause named by the local salvage chair. (Continued on Page Eight)

DARDEN SEEKS TO VOID DEBT

General Assembly to Be Asked to Retire Public Obligations With Unused Surplus

Following an unannounced meeting with State officials and leaders of the General Assembly, Governor Darden announced the calling of a special session of the General Assembly for next Tuesday at noon. The purpose of the special session, Governor Darden said is "to lay before them a plan to liquidate the public debt." The Treasurer and I have for sometime been at work on the program to be submitted. Changes in the provisions in the Sinking Fund and an appropriation of the money needed for the operation requires certain changes in the statutes covering this subject. The special session is being called to deal with the public debt. However, I shall submit such other wartime emergency legislation as may be deemed necessary."

The State's unobligated surplus is now $18,639,880.00 while the gross total indebtedness of the State amounts to $18,159,000.00. However, against these obligations there stands a sizeable balance in the hands of the Sinking Fund Commission.

Officials Approve

State officials and General Assembly leaders present at Governor Darden's called meeting Wednesday night included Lieut. Governor William M. Tucker, president of the Senate; Speaker of the House Thomas B. Stanley; Senate Floor Leader and Finance Chair. (Continued on Page Four)

Spends Night at Camp Pendleton; Compliments Militia On Fine Performance

HONOR DINNER GUEST

Confers With Regional Civilian Defense Officials

A review of the troops of the First Battalion of the Virginia Protective Force at Camp Pendleton, a visit to the open house at the USO Club and a dinner in his honor at The Cavalier featured Governor Colgate W. Darden's visit to Virginia Beach over the past week-end. His was a heavy schedule, including a night spent under mosquito netting with the troops at Camp Pendleton, but the Governor expressed himself as both impressed and pleased with what he had seen upon the conclusion of his visit.

More than 60 persons, mostly from the Tidewater area and all concerned with the problems of civilian defense, attended Sunday night's dinner at The Cavalier. Governor Darden was welcomed in a short address by Walter Elliott, Mayor of Virginia Beach, who also had greeted the Governor and his party upon their arrival in this community on Saturday afternoon. An informal discussion of civilian defense projects, in which the Governor and J. H. Wyse, State Coordinator of Civilian Defense activity participated, followed the dinner.

Attends USO Session

Earlier in the afternoon, the Governor and his party attended the open house session for Army and Navy personnel at the USO Club, where he was greeted by Edward Kelley, club director. For more than an hour Mr. Darden chatted with the service men. (Continued on Page Four)

BLACKOUT TEST IS SCHEDULED

Statewide Test Will Come at Night Between October 5-12 To Last One Hour

A State-wide total blackout will be held some night between October 5th and October 12th. It is announced by the State Office of Civilian Defense, and all Local Defense Councils have been so notified.

This test blackout will simulate an air raid and will last for a period not exceeding 90 minutes. No strategic blackout will be in effect at this time.

Sirens To Sound

In each locality, at the same precise moment, public alarm will be sounded, by sirens or other local alarm system as has been provided, to give notice that a simulated air raid is in effect and that the test is at hand. All lights visible from the outside must then be extinguished and air raid traffic regulations enforced during the duration of the test and until the all-clear signal is sounded. The use of telephones during this period is to be limited to emergency calls.

There will be no notice of the date or hour of the test blackout beyond the information that it will occur some time during the week of October 5th to 12th. The purpose of the test blackout is to familiarize the public with the procedure to be in effect in case of actual air raid. It is essential to public safety, and in the interest of all citizens, that there should be full public cooperation with blackout regulations in this test, which has the sanction and approval of the Army. Any person who wilfully fails to comply with the regulations will subject himself to prosecution.

Farm Youths to Be Allowed To Leave School for Fields

Governor Recommends Local Boards Consider Proposal To Shorten Hours During Harvest Season Or Close Schools For Two Weeks

Farm youths attending Princess Anne County schools will be released from fulltime school attendance during the harvest season, if a recommendation made by Governor Darden is acted on favorably by local officials. Announcement of the proposed plan of staggered school hours to release boys for farm work was made in Richmond this week by the Governor's office.

Following a conference with Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and L. M. Walker, Jr., State Commissioner of Agriculture, the Governor told the press that state officials would communicate immediately with the local school superintendents and farm agents regarding their acceptance of the plan. No information was available yesterday as to the probable course of action by the Princess Anne school board, although several farm leaders questioned, concerning the proposal expressed themselves as favorable to its adoption.

Labor Shortage Forecast

It was reported that Commissioner Walker has called attention repeatedly to the farm labor shortage in Virginia and has stated he feared much of the extra production sought as a wartime measure would be offset by the farmers' inability to harvest the full crops.

The school superintendent pointed out that the decision on allowing boys time off from school to do the necessary farm work is the responsibility of the local school boards. The State of North Carolina, he said, allows rural youths to take six weeks off from school during the harvest season for farm work.

Several Counties Act

In discussing the proposal Governor Darden said that arrangements already have been made in several rural counties to end the school day at 1:00 P. M.

CAR INSPECTION DUE THURSDAY

Every Motor Vehicle In State Must Be Checked Not Later Than November 1st

Motor vehicle inspection will be due again in October, according to a proclamation just signed by Governor Cate W. Darden. Every vehicle in Virginia must be inspected between October 1 and November 1, with no extensions likely. The inspection is designated as being for safety and conservation.

Motorists were urged to make their plans early for inspection. The Department of State Police suggests that owners make an appointment with their inspection station to avoid unnecessary driving to the station perhaps only to find them too busy to take additional cars.

No Further Extension

The inspection period last May was extended by proclamation of the Governor, but the State Police report that it did not accomplish its purpose. People who had not had their cars checked merely waited again until the end of the extension and then rushed the inspection stations. Maj. C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police, said today that he felt there should be no extension of time unless some now unforeseen situation arises.

The inspection will be very similar to previous inspections, Major Woodson said. Government restrictions on parts are not so stringent that any particular difficulty is expected in obtaining necessary replacement parts, and the necessity of maintaining vehicles in good condition is more important now than ever before, he said.

Maintenance Essential

"The success of our war effort depends to a great extent on our producing the proper machines and weapons to fight with, and that production in turn depends on maintaining our motor vehicle transportation system," he said. "Maintenance is absolutely necessary, and inspection provides the best way of checking up on the condition of vehicles and getting those poorly maintained into better condition. Every car owner should be interested in keeping his car running as long as he can, and inspection will help him."

"The last inspection period found just over half, or 52 per cent of the vehicles needing repairs. We think at least that many now need attention."

BAYSIDE PLEA ON SCHOOLS IS SET ASIDE BY SCHOOL BOARD

Fifth and Sixth Grade Pupils Will Continue to Use Old Kempsville Building

UNSANITARY CONDITION PROTESTS ARE REFUTED

No Students Are Forced to Walk Unreasonable Distances, Resolutions Assert

Bluntly denying the petition of certain Bayside residents for the return of the fifth and sixth grades to the Bayside School from the old Kempsville School on a double session basis, the members of the school board of Princess Anne County went on record Wednesday night with a clear statement of existing conditions, and the reason for such conditions, and branded the protest meeting held last Friday night at the Bayside School as ill-advised, irregular, grossly unjust to the constituted school authorities and inimical to the best interests of the Bayside School and the system in general.

Charges that unsanitary conditions exist at the Kempsville school and that pupils have to walk as much as eight miles because of crowded school buses were branded as false and without foundation. The special session of the school board was held as a consequence of the two protest meetings held in recent days by a group of Bayside parents and, so far as the school board is concerned, closes the discussion.

Day Is Chairman

John B. Day, of Lynnhaven, chairman of the Board, presided over the session. Other members present were C. H. Spence, Fungo; Wallace T. Clark, Virginia Beach; S. Paul Brown, Seaboard; L. Harold Jackson, Kempsville; and Luther Gilbert, Blackwater.

A resolution setting forth the views of the board was adopted unanimously at the close of the discussion. The text of that resolution is as follows:

Text of Resolution

"THE VOICE of a majority, swaying the course of government does not insure good government except it be the voice of a well-informed and well-intentioned people."

LET'S SHOW OUR METAL!

We in Princess Anne County have been challenged, challenged to do nothing more than give up our old scrap metals in order that American boys shall not die on the field of battle for lack of weapons.

It's as simple a proposition as that. Nothing but the question of old junk, versus life, which means a great deal to soldiers as well as the rest of us.

During these weeks as the statewide campaign for scrap metals continues, everyone of us can see to it that no American soldier will die because we hoarded a piece of old sewing machine or plow because we wouldn't exert the energy to lift a few pounds into the car and haul it down to the salvage depot, or even less than that, make a telephone call to the Boy Scouts or Lions Club.

The fact that the War Production Board has warned us that many blast furnaces will close down by the first of the year and that many war plants will close, too, unless more scrap metal is recovered should be incentive enough for those of us who want to see this war brought to a speedy and victorious end.

Again, it hasn't been so many months ago that all of us were reading headlines about the war, with most of those headlines saying "Too Little, and Too Late." Those were pretty unpleasant days, losing one battle after another, abandoning one fortress after another, surrendering one island after another. Many of us grunted our teeth then and muttered, "Why don't they do something about it? Why don't they send enough men and materials to win the battles?" Quite a few of us shouted those feelings with considerable indignation.

Things have been going a little better for our side lately, but unfortunately we're again facing the problem of "Too Little, and Too Late." And this time we can't mutter "Why don't they do something about it?" because today it is up to us. We must do something about it with our own pile of scrap metals if we are going to be sure that every American soldier has a gun, every American tank crew a tank, that every American flier has a plane, that every American sailor has a ship on which he can serve.

We cannot let down our men at the front. We will not have pinned on us the responsibility for "Too Little, and Too Late."

We will get in the scrap! We will show our metal!

SERVICE ON THE HOME FRONT

Discouraging reports have come to us this week from two main divisions of the Civilian Defense force and, we suppose, added difficulties could be found in other units if we went a-lookin'. Sad but true, we are not yet awake to our responsibilities on the home front.

Our soldiers and sailors on the many battlefields of this world are feeling with increasing force the power and the destructiveness of our enemies. Daily, the toll of injured grows greater, and greater daily becomes the need for surgical dressings to bind their hurts. Whence come these dressings? From the far-flung organization of the American Red Cross, now facing a greater urgency for productivity than ever before.

The Red Cross, good ladies of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County, needs you, and you, and you in its workrooms. Without your assistance and cooperation in this vitally necessary program it must fall short of its quota, it must confess to a state of lethargy in its community and admit failure. Can it be that you will give no heed to its plea for more and more workers? Or will you, today, give notice of your service from this time on?

Astride the beach at 118th Street stands the lookout tower constructed by the local post of the Aircraft Warning Service. Its duties are simple — to report each and every airplane that comes within the sight or hearing of the observer to a central office, where specialists of the Army and Navy chart the course of each plane in the air. Friend or foe, it is important — it is necessary — that every craft be followed throughout its flight along our shore and over our land, and to this task thousands of men and women daily devote their time and their attention.

This type of service on the home front has been declared by ranking Army and Navy officials to be one of the most important tasks assigned to civilians, yet those in charge of its operations report that volunteers are few in number and that some who have manned their stations for months now show signs of retiring.

Is it possible that in the Virginia Beach community there still are some persons, both men and women, who refuse to face the reality of our nation at war, of the role that each and every one of us must play if it be brought to a successful conclusion? Why are there not volunteers by the score for such an important task? Clearly the need is so great that none can deny it!

On behalf of the Red Cross and the Aircraft Warning Service, we appeal to all who read to volunteer their services to one or both of these valuable defense agencies. The need is great, and the time to do it is NOW!

THE SPECIAL SESSION

The Governor's call for an extraordinary session of the General Assembly to convene in Richmond next Tuesday to consider a plan to liquidate the public debt of Virginia is a move already widely hailed with enthusiastic approval. Funds are on hand sufficient to pay off the $18,159,000 which represents the State's indebtedness, and its clearance at this time will place Virginia in an enviable position among her sister commonwealths.

Only five other states, according to our usually trustworthy World Almanac, hold such a distinction, these being Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Nebraska and Ohio. At such a time as this, when the Federal Government's indebtedness is reaching almost astronomical proportions, it is just and proper that the states and lesser communities should do everything possible to reduce the burden from the backs of their constituents and to make available to the Federal Government as much of the current income as can be placed at its disposal, either through taxes or the purchase of War Savings Bonds.

The Governor is to be commended for his foresight in this matter. There is nothing now to indicate that his argument will meet with other than an enthusiastic response from Virginia's legislators at next week's session.

WAR-TIME MANNERS

(Philadelphia Evening Bulletin)

Englishmen are being told to put on their company manners in dealing with American soldiers and sailors. Britons are instructed to stop looking upon Americans as English people with strange ways and an unusual accent.

Comradeship in the war can also be made the occasion for Americans to clear their minds of some ancient cobwebs. Englishmen are neither craftier nor more stupid than Americans. The British did not design this war nor scheme to get us in it. Nor is there any evidence as yet that we would have avoided the mistakes the British made in the conduct of the war.

England is fighting this war in her own self-defense, which is neither more nor less than what we are doing.

A disposition to lecture other nations on what they ought to do is unfortunately a common failing in both countries. It would be helpful in this crisis for Americans as well as for Englishmen to put this irritating characteristic under a blanket.

MOVIES FEEL THE PINCH

(Pathfinder)

Movie producers and exhibitors were warned by the WPB that they may soon be forced to adopt a day-late-a-week schedule for picture shows in order to conserve fuel. It happened in the last war, when oil, coal and transportation were not so tight as at present.

Movie makers, already severely restricted in the amount to be spent on sets for any one picture, were warned that material shortages will make it very difficult to replace many mechanical necessities, like sound equipment, lighting and air conditioning. Celluloid, a critical material for movie-making is a plastic in heavy demand by the military. No longer can the directors afford to shoot the same scenes over and over again. Producers are further hampered financially by the fact that recruits in Britain and other warring countries are "frozen" for the duration. Moreover, leading male stars are departing from Hollywood in a constant stream to join fighting organizations. Road shows, too, are threatened with a shortage of transportation.

CAPTURING GENERALS AT $2,000

(The Countryman, England)

The military authorities in China have a way of giving zest to rural life that must be new to many of us. It is by offering rewards not only for the capture (alive) of Japanese but for bringing in their equipment. The price of a soldier ranges from $50 for a private to $2,000 for a general. Civilian officials are not so valuable, for they fetch only up to $500. Airmen bring from $200 to $500. A machine gun may carry a reward of $100—one out of order but repairable, half that. There are prizes for heavy pieces and for tanks. The former may yield $4,000 or $6,000. Telescopes, steam launches, rubber dinghies, radio sets, tools, even military dogs, all have their figure. So have letters, diaries, secret codes—the last-named fetching from $500 to $1,000.

FACTS AND FIGURES ON WAR FINANCE

Last week in these columns we discussed the over-all size of our present war program, the rate of such expenditure and the means of meeting the costs of this tremendous war effort, utilizing facts and figures supplied by the Tax Foundation of New York for our presentation. Today, continuing to rely on facts and figures supplied by this expert, but non-political agency, we continue our question-and-answer forum of fiscal matters vital to the successful continuance of our war effort.

Four fundamental policies were proposed in our first article as necessary to a proper waging of the war effort on the home front. These were, in brief, the saving of every possible dollar not necessary to the war and not absolutely essential to the needs of the people; the imposition of maximum necessary taxes upon all of the people and their industry without working inequitable or unbearable hardship on any part and without destroying or stifling our system of free enterprise; the adoption of all practical and anti-inflationary measures; and the conservation of all national resources while winning the victory for Democracy, at the same time preserving and preparing Democracy for peace.

We continue with our factual presentation of questions and answers asked so frequently by those who strive to follow the present tax discussions before the Congress.

8. What are the major objectives of wartime taxation? First, obtaining the maximum revenues to reduce the amount of borrowing necessary; and, second, avoiding inflation. As Secretary of the Treasury, Morgenthau has stated, "Nothing in the economic field can interfere with the war effort as much as an uncontrolled rise in prices." The Government is pouring out billions of dollars in the war effort. This income flows into the pockets of the people at the very time when there is an increasing shortage of civilian goods, due to the requirements of the war program. This increased income creates a tremendous demand which serves to bid up the prices for these products. Higher prices lead to higher wage demands and more income, which in turn leads to higher prices and so on until we are caught in an inflationary spiral which can wreck the war effort and the financial stability of the country. Taxes are an important factor in drawing off this excess income or "purchasing power" and thus curbing inflation.

9. How much should be raised in taxes? All that can be raised without dislocating our war effort. In order to maintain financial stability, probably about 40 per cent of current expenditures should be covered by taxes. This means an annual tax bill of $33 or $34 billion for the Federal Government alone. There would remain an annual deficit of $40 to $50 billion to be financed with borrowed funds.

10. Will borrowing these huge sums lead to inflation? Huge borrowing involve real risks but the methods used can reduce these risks. If the Government borrows directly from the people, as, for instance, through the sale of War Savings Bonds, then the danger of inflation is averted since the current income of the people is reduced. The type of borrowing which uses the savings of the people, or of life insurance companies and savings institutions, is also not inflationary. To the extent that the Government borrows directly from the commercial banks, it makes more money available for private spending and thus increases the danger of inflation. The Federal financial program should therefore be designed to involve a maximum of taxation and War Bond sales and a minimum of borrowing from commercial banks.

11. What will be the size of the Federal debt under such a program? It is already officially estimated that the Federal debt will total about $125 billion by June, 1943. Assuming that a United Nations victory may not come until the end of 1944, the Federal debt may well reach $225 or $250 billion by June, 1945. This would be more than five times the largest Federal debt ever encountered in the history of the nation before this war broke out.

12. What are the sources of Federal taxation? Under our tax structure, there are three primary sources for Federal tax monies: corporation income, individual income and excise taxes. A fourth source, social security taxes, is not really a source of revenue, since the Federal Government's bookkeeping system transfers a large part of this to the social security reserve funds, though of course the cash income is available to the Government. Gift, estate, customs and miscellaneous taxes now play a decreasing role in our tax structure.

13. How much have these tax sources yielded in recent years? As late as 1939 the total Federal tax bill was less than $6 billion. In 1941 it increased to $8.1 billion. In 1942 (for the fiscal year which ended June 30) the Federal tax bill was $13.7 billion. Under current proposals the tax bill for the 1943 fiscal year (two years ending June 30, 1943) will be over $25 billion. New or additional taxes, and increased rates, are necessary if the goal of $35 billion in taxes is to be achieved.

14. What is the maximum that can be obtained from business corporations? All profits except what is necessary to maintain the enterprise system and to keep the industrial structure capable of meeting maximum war production requirements and postwar adjustment needs.

15. What has been the income before taxes of business corporations in recent years? The 470,000 business corporations of the country, as a whole, lost money every year between 1929 and 1939. In the past few years, only about 200,000 of these corporations, or less than half, have shown any profits at all as a result of their operations.

In 1936 and 1937 the operating income of this latter group of corporations was about $7 billion and this figure also held for 1939. In 1938 the figure dropped to $4.9 billion. This compares with the 1929 figure for these "profit-making" corporations of $11.6 billion. In 1940 it is estimated that the operating income before Federal income taxes of "profit-making" corporations was about $9.5 billion, and in 1941 this income is estimated at about $14 billion. It can be estimated further that due to the stimulus of war production, corporation income may exceed $16 billion at the peak point.

16. What are the purposes for which industry must provide if it is to maintain its schedule of maximum war production? Chiefly, there is the problem of working capital, that is, the money needed from day to day to keep the business going, to enable it to buy materials and supplies and to meet its payroll and pay its bills currently as they come due. Naturally, when a plant is operated at its top production, more money is needed for these purposes. In addition, money is needed to provide for expansion of the plant or for replacements of machinery which is being used up very rapidly. The corporation must also set aside some funds which it can use to repay its debts or to provide for periods of readjustment or emergency. Then there is the need for payments in the form of dividends to the investors who supply and must continue to supply the capital to make the industrial structure possible.

17. Under all-out war production schedules, how much must corporations retain for all purposes other than dividends? In the years 1926 through 1929 corporations retained, on the average, over $4 billion a year. These funds enabled many businesses to carry on during the depression years. Production is now at a much higher level than it was even in those prosperous years, but taking into consideration the fact that exceptional risks must be taken in wartime, it can be estimated that a minimum of about $2.5 to $3 billion may be sufficient to keep the industrial structure producing the weapons that will win the war for us.

18. How much is required for dividends? On the average, during the past seven years corporation dividend payments have amounted to between $3.5 and $4.5 billion annually. If corporations are to pay their investors as little as was paid in any of these years, a minimum of $3 billion would be required for this purpose. This would be approximately half the $5.9 billion paid in 1929.

19. What is the effect of reducing dividend payments? Reports of the Treasury Department for 1940 (the latest year available) show that in that year 47 per cent of the total dividend payments went to people whose net income was under $5,000, to charitable institutions such as hospitals, schools and churches, and to those who did not file returns. It is estimated that altogether there are between eight and nine million stockholders in the country. A reduction in dividends below a minimum figure would not only result in a loss to the Government in the amount it collects from individuals in income taxes, but would also work serious hardships upon many institutions and the millions of low and middle income people who are dependent upon dividends as a major source of their income.

20. How much does this leave for corporation taxes? A maximum total of $10 to $11 billion, representing every dollar of corporation profits above the minimum requirements just listed. Under these estimates business corporations would give up every dollar of profits beyond the amounts necessary to prevent crippling our war production or the industrial structure of the nation.

21. How does this compare with previous corporation taxes? In the period from 1926 to 1939, the largest Federal tax bill on corporations was about $1.25 billion. In 1940 this increased to $2.5 billion. In 1941 corporation taxes jumped to a total of nearly $6.5 billion and it is estimated that the taxes to be paid by corporations under the new 1942 tax bill will reach a total of over $10 billion, practically the maximum obtainable.

22. Do corporation taxes help to curb inflation? Corporation taxes have almost no influence on consumer spending, especially under our priority system, and therefore are not effective in controlling inflation.

Facts and figures on individual incomes and other possible taxes will be discussed in a third, and concluding article next week.

ON THE ROAD TO VICTORY

Miscellaneous News and Views On the Conduct of the War

Any farmer who thinks back to World War I will remember when he got good prices for milk, meat and eggs, and farm crops. He will recall other occasions when he got a pretty low price for them. A little he starts figuring out the why's and where's of farm prices, he will find that he got good prices when the workman in the city was paid "good wages," thus had money to buy what the farmers raised.

The farmer also will remember that farm prices fell when war industrial employment had dropped to low levels and workmen were out of jobs. Even a long-haired economist could figure out, therefore, that the farmer has an interest in seeing after-the-war employment sustained at the highest possible levels. That will mean good farm prices, a good living, and good profits for the farmer.

Everybody knows what happened after the last war. We did all right for a few years, but when it arrived it was a lean year money. Well, here we are in another and much bigger war and a lot of the problems which foresighted folks are thinking about is how to avoid another depression—and a worse one—after this war.

The United States Senate has before it a plan which looks like good sense. It gives corporations a tax credit equal to 20 per cent of their war profit provided they invest this amount in Recovery Bonds. These Bonds, according to the proposal, would not be cashable during the war, they couldn't be used as collateral for borrowing money, nor would they bear any interest—until after the war.

Once the victory is ours they instantly bear interest and become saleable. Such bonds then would provide manufacturers with the cash to change their plants over from the building of war materials to the manufacture of the thousand and one articles the making of which has always given employment to millions of men, but which items are now out of production for the duration.

We favor taking the big profits out of war work; we favor taxing everybody, including corporations, to the limit necessary to get this Victory Job finished, but unless we permit the manufacturers of this country to come out of this war with enough cash to shift plants from the making of rifles and tanks and planes, back to the making of those everyday things of life which will give after-the-war jobs by the million to American workers we will have another terrible economic crash.

Farmers don't want to see breadlines in the cities, or sheriff's sales in the country. We all had enough of those things in the last depression. We are for any sensible plan that will provide the money to finance the prompt change-over of war production—and we think this idea of compelling corporations to buy Recovery Bonds up to 20 per cent of their war profits as a credit toward taxes and thereby acquire a fund for plant conversion after the war, is a sound program to help keep farm prices out of the post-war dumps. We hope that they will buy billions of dollars worth of these Recovery Bonds because the people of this nation will need billions of dollars for this herculean transformation from war to peace.

CHAPTER XI

SYNOPSIS

Dave Bruce, out of a job, arrives at Walter Ferris' Cross-Bar. Curran, the foreman, promises him a job if he can break a horse called Black Dawn. When he succeeds, he discovers Curran executed the horse to kill him. Curran, mounted on Lois, rides up, angry with Dave for breaking "her" horse. She refuses to speak to him even when he offered savings to pay off the mortgage on the small ranch she shares with her foster father, a man named Hooker. But when Hooker is shot and Dave is charged with murder, Lois saves him from being hanged. Wounded, she guides him to a mountain cave where she thinks they will be safe from Curran and his sheriff's posse. A quarrel between Ferris and Judge Loneran reveals that Ferris had killed his partner, Blue Rowland, many years before. Thoroughly scared, Ferris takes Curran into his confidence. When Dave is away from the cave Curran kidnaps Lois. Still unaware of her danger, Dave has just discovered what he believes to be a human skeleton near the cave. He is examining the skull.

There was a clean, round hole at the back, such as a bullet would have made, and the hole was in the middle of the forehead. The man was mostly missing, with jagged edges about it.

"Yore horse didn't slip, hombre," said Dave to the sheriff. "I was in the saddle when he broke, and I was mostly missing, with jagged edges about it."

"Yore horse didn't slip, hombre," said Dave to the sheriff. "I was in the saddle when he broke, and I was mostly missing, with jagged edges about it."

But when Dave reached the cave, he found it empty. "Lois!" he called. "Lois, girl, where are yuh?" The echoes of his voice floated back mockingly from the cliffs around the ravine, and that was all. Then Dave's pupils contracted sharply as he saw the footprints of a man's boots on the other side of the cave, faint, but clearly visible in the ground softened by the rains.

Here, too, were the prints of Lois' little boots, and where they ceased there was a furrow in the soil as if he had been dragging. Beyond, the prints of the man's boots were deeper, as if he had been carrying a burden.

It was all perfectly clear and unmistakable, and told its story only too well. Cogswell must have got upon the trail and taken Lois away.

The waddy's face was transformed into a grim mask of vengeance. Dave ran back to where Black Dawn was standing and sprang into the saddle. He adjusted his belt, bringing the holster close to his right hand. When he met Cogswell, it would be just too soon for Cogswell.

Softly Dave edged the stallion along the trail, peering right and left for any hidden ambushes. But the footprints had changed to the prints of two horses' hoofs. If Cogswell had set an ambush along the route, he had certainly not joined it himself.

Dave trailed the hoofprints as far as the canyon, and then he found them lost in the brush. It was impossible to discover any signs of them on the flinty ground. But Dave was pretty sure Cogswell had taken Lois to Hooker's cabin, perhaps to leave her there and come back in search of him.

It was an hour after the discovery that Lois had been kidnapped before he suddenly saw Hooker's cabin before him.

No horse was visible, but Dave dismounted and crept softly forward, peering through the undergrowth. Foot by foot he edged his way forward. The plaintive howling of the unmliked cow came to his ears from somewhere on the mesa. Otherwise — nothing. And when at last Dave entered Hooker's cabin, he found it empty, with no sign that anyone had been in it since Lois and he had left it.

Grimly Dave turned the stallion and rode back through the canyon. Again he found the hoofprints, and again, in spite of casting about in a wide circle, he was unable to discover which way the horses had gone.

The sun was well down in the west when Dave rode back toward Hooker's cabin, reckless now. He was almost through the scrub when he reined in abruptly. He could see the cabin now, and this time the horse was standing saddled in front of it.

Listening, Dave could hear footsteps in the cabin. Someone was walking to and fro inside it.

Dave didn't dismount this time. He edged the black horse forward, his hoofs making no sound on the soft mesa. Now he was immediately behind the house. He could hear the footsteps in the kitchen.

Now he got out of his saddle and went quietly around the shack. As he reached the front angle he saw Sheriff Cogswell come out of the door and move toward his horse.

Dave leaped forward. His attitude was the crouch of a beast of prey, his voice a rumbling snarl: "Hold 'em high, sheriff, or I'll blow yore head off!"

"I see him last night. I do not know today. Me and him we look for this man." Pedro jerked his head in Dave's direction. "Today I look for strays."

"I'm puttin' the question in another way," said the sheriff. "Where's Curran got Miss Lois?"

"Senior, I no have see her since that night she ride away with this man from Mexico."

Cogswell drew the six-gun from his holster and spun the cylinder. He turned to Dave.

"May as well take this feller where we aim to bury him," he said. "No sense in muslin' up this floor. There's a place at the edge of the mesa where the ground's soft."

He picked up the end of the rope that bound the Mexican and began dragging the man toward the door. "Senior," chattered Pedro, "I cannot murder me. I did not take the girl away."

"You've had your chance, Pedro. Come on, Bruce, let's get him over the hill and finish him," he added.

The six-gun jerked upward. A scream broke from the Mexican's lips.

"Senior, I tell—don't shoot!—tell," chattered Pedro. "Curran bring the girl this mornin' to the cabin that the gold prospector was been hidin' up. She ain't hurt bad, is she?"

"I know where it is," answered Cogswell. "All right, Pedro, yuh saved yore life. I'm goin' to leave yuh tied up here, for which I reckon yuh'll be grateful to me after-ward. I'll get yuh a drink of water."

"You swear that's true?" Dave cried suddenly.

"I'm talkin' straight," answered the sheriff. "I rode up here with the idea of campin' out and startin' on a hunt for yore trail in the mornin'. If someone took Miss Lois away when you was gone, I'm sure I don't know where you two been hidin' up. She ain't hurt bad, is she?"

"She was gettin' well. We was goin' to start out tomorrow. And suddenly the mask of hate vanished from Dave's face. "He believin' yuh, sheriff," he said. "But if it wasn't you who took her away, who was it?"

Sheriff Cogswell was silent. Dave met the grim scrutiny of his eyes, then suddenly handed him the end of his rope and thrust his own into its holster.

"You got the drop on me now, Cogswell," he said. "I'm trustin' yuh. You can take me into Mexico if yuh want to. But I always felt yuh knew I didn't kill old Hooker. And I'm askin' yuh to trust my word same as I trusted yore, and ride with me to find the skunk that took her away. After that, I'll be ready to ride with yuh to yore hands."

Cogswell holstered his own gun in turn and gave Dave his hand. "That's all with me," he said gravely. "Yore right, Bruce. I'm purty sure yuh didn't kill old Hooker. I been workin' on a line of my own, and I think I'm on the trail. I'm acceptin' them terms of yore. And in a few minutes I'll have some evidence. It's in that cabin. Nope, not Miss Lois. I just trusted up and gagged a hombre who was actin' suspicious, after havin' to kill his horse."

He led the way into the cabin. Trussed and gagged very effectively upon the floor was the Mexican, Pedro, whom Curran had sent back to the Cross-Bar.

"Ain't had time to question him yet," the sheriff explained. "He was sorter stunned when his horse dropped under him. Now we'll see."

He pulled the gag out of the mouth of the helpless Mexican. Pedro, who recognized Dave, glared in mixed fear and fury at him and at Cogswell.

"Yore life's up, Pedro," said the sheriff. "Yore goin' to come across and come quick, or yore life ain't worth a nickel. I'd just as soon shoot yuh as I'd shoot a wide-winder. Where's Curran?"

"I do not know, Senior Cogswell," protested the Mexican. "I ride yuh now, back to the range, after lookin' for strays, and you shoot my horse and tie me up."

"Now listen, Pedro, it ain't a bit of use lyin' to me," replied the sheriff. "Yin I got the goods on yuh. I been doin' some watchin' in myself the last few days, and I seen you and Curran prowlin' around these parts lookin' for someone."

"I watched you this mornin' ride out into the hills, and I watched you ride back. When I called yuh, yuh tried to git away. Now I'm putting it up to yuh. Curran ain't at the Cross-Bar. Where is he?"

"I see him last night. I do not know today. Me and him we look for this man." Pedro jerked his head in Dave's direction. "Today I look for strays."

"I'm puttin' the question in another way," said the sheriff. "Where's Curran got Miss Lois?"

"Senior, I no have see her since that night she ride away with this man from Mexico."

Cogswell drew the six-gun from his holster and spun the cylinder. He turned to Dave.

"May as well take this feller where we aim to bury him," he said. "No sense in muslin' up this floor. There's a place at the edge of the mesa where the ground's soft."

He picked up the end of the rope that bound the Mexican and began dragging the man toward the door. "Senior," chattered Pedro, "I cannot murder me. I did not take the girl away."

"You've had your chance, Pedro. Come on, Bruce, let's get him over the hill and finish him," he added.

The six-gun jerked upward. A scream broke from the Mexican's lips.

"Senior, I tell—don't shoot!—tell," chattered Pedro. "Curran bring the girl this mornin' to the cabin that the gold prospector was been hidin' up. She ain't hurt bad, is she?"

"I know where it is," answered Cogswell. "All right, Pedro, yuh saved yore life. I'm goin' to leave yuh tied up here, for which I reckon yuh'll be grateful to me after-ward. I'll get yuh a drink of water."

Cogswell filled a pitcher and held it to Pedro's lips, setting it down beside him when he was through. He turned to Dave. "We better ride," he said. "I got my four men waitin' down below the mesa, but I don't aim to waste no more time with Miss Lois in the hands of that feller."

Dave only spoke once during the ride. "Senior," he said. "Yuh livin' in this district quite some time, ain't yuh? Ever hear of a waddie disappearin' mysteriously? Course he didn't have to be a waddie. May have been a prospector."

He described his discovery of the skeleton in the ravine. "Shut throw the back of the head," he said. "Feller had fractured his leg a some time, up near the thigh. I was all healed up rough."

"Yuh found him?" shouted Cogswell, turning round in the saddle. "Well, that clears up considerable more along the line. I was waitin' for it."

"It's all right, Judge," called Curran, as Loneran drew him up. "I was in the way Ferris had die. Here's Mr. Ferris, and this man, and we're waitin' to take him over pleasant-like."

"You don't need to show a title," grumbled Loneran, mounting and striding to the back of the horse. He nodded curran's head and the ranchman and seated himself on one of the tree stumps. "I'm away Curran's offer of a horse. Loneran's in my car to see me to meet his social be ex hand."

"What that man doin' here, as Lois, back to the range, and new arrival, and I'm goin' to let it be used."

"I do not know, Senior Cogswell," protested the Mexican. "I ride yuh now, back to the range, after lookin' for strays, and you shoot my horse and tie me up."

"Now listen, Pedro, it ain't a bit of use lyin' to me," replied the sheriff. "Yin I got the goods on yuh. I been doin' some watchin' in myself the last few days, and I seen you and Curran prowlin' around these parts lookin' for someone."

"I watched you this mornin' ride out into the hills, and I watched you ride back. When I called yuh, yuh tried to git away. Now I'm putting it up to yuh. Curran ain't at the Cross-Bar. Where is he?"

"I see him last night. I do not know today. Me and him we look for this man." Pedro jerked his head in Dave's direction. "Today I look for strays."

"I'm puttin' the question in another way," said the sheriff. "Where's Curran got Miss Lois?"

"Senior, I no have see her since that night she ride away with this man from Mexico."

Cogswell drew the six-gun from his holster and spun the cylinder. He turned to Dave.

"May as well take this feller where we aim to bury him," he said. "No sense in muslin' up this floor. There's a place at the edge of the mesa where the ground's soft."

He picked up the end of the rope that bound the Mexican and began dragging the man toward the door. "Senior," chattered Pedro, "I cannot murder me. I did not take the girl away."

"You've had your chance, Pedro. Come on, Bruce, let's get him over the hill and finish him," he added.

CHRISTIANS AND JEWS JOIN IN PRESENTING RELIGIOUS CLAIMS

Churches and synagogues of fifteen communions and creeds are to join in a united approach to their constituencies for the first time in history, this fall.

The Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, points to the United Church of Christ plan as an evidence that churches are approaching a unity of understanding and objective, and states that the Episcopal Church is wholeheartedly in accord with the idea, and will cooperate to the fullest extent.

Bishop Tucker explains that the movement will be in charge of laymen to a considerable extent, being launched by a committee of leading church members under the chairmanship of Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Company.

Objectives of Campaign

The objectives to be brought forcefully before all members of the cooperating religious bodies are the need for strengthening the spiritual foundations of the country in war days; to bring the importance of religion to the attention of the people; to urge individuals to take a more active part in the work of the church; and to insure adequate financial support through regular and systematic giving.

Laymen on the committee include: Dr. Ferdinand G. Blanchard, University of California; Dr. Paul H. Bowman, President Blue Ridge College; Dr. John Stewart Bryan, President William and Mary College; William H. Danforth, Chairman of the Board, Ralston Purina Co.; Dr. Harold W. Dodds, President Princeton University; James L. Kraft, President Kraft-Phenix Cereals Corp.; Henry R. Luce, Life, Time and Fortune magazines; John E. McElroy, Y.M.C.A.; Mrs. Howard S. Palmer, New Haven, Conn.; Stanley Resor, President J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency.

Also the Hon. Owen J. Roberts, Supreme Court Justice; Dr. Charles Seymour, President Yale University; Dr. Frank J. Sladen, Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit; the Hon. Charles A. Sprague, Governor of Oregon; the Hon. Harold E. Stassen, Governor, Minnesota; Charles P. Taft, in Government service at Washington; John H. Trent, Vice-President, Johns-Manville Corp.; William Allen White, owner, Emporia (Kansas) Gazette; Wendell L. Wilkie; Niles Trammell, President, National Broadcasting Company; James E. West, Chief Scout Executive, Boy Scouts of America; Judge Charles E. Winterrowd, U.S. Circuit Court, San Francisco.

The churches participating are: Episcopal, Reformed Church in America, United Brethren, Northern Baptist, Disciples of Christ, Presbyterian, U. S. A., Synagogue, Church of America, Congregational, Christian, Church of the Brethren, Methodist, United Presbyterian, Evangelical, Evangelical and Reformed, African Methodist Episcopal, Colored Methodist Episcopal.

Dates fixed for the nation-wide appeal are November 15 to December 6, and the committee headed by Dr. Wilson will shortly announce methods of planning the campaign and putting it into operation.

Presiding Bishop Tucker regards the plan as "an experiment in simultaneous enlistment by churches of different denominations," and expresses the belief that this unprecedented united action by a large number of Christian and Jewish bodies cannot fail to strengthen through the country the work of the respective bodies in their entire program of activity. "With all the church of a city, a village, or in a countryside cooperating in such a plan, adjusted to local conditions," he says, "results should be achieved beyond anything possible to the same churches acting singly."

A further reduction has been made by the War Production Board in the amount of civilian construction to be allowed without authorization to begin a project. Under the revised plan, effective September 15, no civilian construction is to be started until October 1, a 12-month period has been reduced to 8.00. The limit on construction buildings on the farm remains at $1,000. Incorporation of scarce materials, such as metal roof, electric wiring, plumbing, and other critical items will not be permitted except in exceptionally justifiable circumstances. What You Buy With WAR BONDS

When the American Expeditionary Force landed in Ireland recently newspapers reported the citizenry remarked at the similarity of the steel helmets worn by our boys with those worn by German troops. These steel hats are protection from shrapnel fragments and other light missiles. We need thousands of them for they are a regular issue to every American soldier.

A smart strap fastens under the chin and they are padded for comfort. One steel helmet costs $5 so every time you fill a $5 stamp book you are buying protection for an American soldier. SMALLER CROP OF HONEY SEEN

Poorest Year for Nectar Flow in State, Is Comment of Beekeepers

Virginia beekeepers expect a 1942 honey crop of 2,394,000 pounds which is 14 per cent smaller than the 2,784,000 pounds produced last year, according to a survey made in late August by the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. A low honey yield per colony is entirely responsible for the smaller crop.

Beekeepers increased their colonies by 15 per cent this spring or from 116,000 last year to 133,000 this year. But this increase in the number of colonies—there are about 40 to 50 thousand working bees in a strong colony—was more than offset by the 25 per cent lower production per colony—18 pounds this year compared with 24 pounds in 1941.

Poorest Year
Many veteran beekeepers commented that this was the poorest year for nectar flow in their long years of experience. White clover, which is the principal source of nectar early in the season, was a short crop due to the dry weather at that time but apple bloom in most sections was abundant. Then when tulip poplar, another important source of nectar for Virginia bees, came into bloom, the rainy weather started. Rainy weather is very unfavorable as it washes the nectar from the blossoms and keeps the bees confined to their hives. Over most of the State wet weather also prevailed during sour-wood bloom in late June and early July. These are the important months in honey production. The survey showed that for the State as a whole about 20 per cent of the honey is produced in May, 30 per cent in August. The remaining 10 per cent of the honey is produced in the fall. In the worst parts of the State the nectar flow was so light that some colonies were unable to make enough honey for their own use this coming winter. In the eastern and south-eastern counties where conditions were very dry, from early spring to August there was a good flow of nectar and consequently a heavier honey production. The output of honey per hive in this part of the State was double that in the western sections.

Mid-August Virginia honey producers reported 862,000 pounds of honey on hand for sale. This is a little over one-third of the total expected crop of 2,394,000 pounds. At the time the survey was made comb honey was selling retail at an average price of 21.3 cents per pound. On the wholesale market comb honey was selling at 19.9 cents per pound, extracted at 14.4 cents and chunk at 16.9 cents. August prices for previous years are not available but compared with the average price for the entire year of 1941 they are about 10 to 20 per cent higher. Beeswax sales were infrequent and the few prices reported ranged from 30 to 40 cents, with most recent sales being made at the higher figure.

Cason Is Enrolled In Naval School

URBANA, Ill.—Having shown an adaptability for mechanical work, Thomas W. Cason, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Cason, 231 Street, Virginia Beach, is now enrolled in the Naval Diesel School at the University of Illinois here. After completing the eight-week course, he will be eligible for a promotion to the rating of fireman third class, and will be assigned to some ship in the fleet or to a naval shore station.

The course includes instruction in diesel theory, diesel machinery, adjusting and overhauling diesel engines, in addition to advanced training in military drill and naval procedure.

Cason enlisted in the Navy last May, and received his recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Norfolk.

Classroom instructors for the bluejackets are, for the most part, regular members of the University faculty. Living quarters are in dormitories on the college campus which have been converted into barracks.

Since the new ECONOMY WAVE has swept our land we, too, are eager for these low-cost cooking secrets. Can't get trick in the Old World collection is the use of vinegar. For vinegar itself is a right item in the budget. And when a truly fine, full-bodied vinegar is used the concentrated strength seeps quickly through the flesh, tenderizing firm-textured meats and imparting a pungent flavor to the dish.

Health Notes

Purpose of Quarantine

"Sometime ago, a father, returning from his day's work found the sign, 'Scarlet Fever,' tacked on his front door. He promptly took it down. However, it was replaced by the health officer the next day with the warning that it should not be tampered with again. The attitude of this man changed when the officer explained that the sign was not to be considered as a disgrace; it was merely a warning to those persons who otherwise would enter the house to remain away until the 'al-clear' had been given by the attending physician and the city health authorities," states Dr. I. C. Rigin, State Health Commissioner.

"Quarantine in its most complete sense means restricting the movement of persons who have been exposed to a contagious disease until the danger of their having contracted it has passed. The quarantine period differs in length with different diseases.

"In homes, however, the quarantine sign with respect to many diseases applies only to the patient and to those who are in direct attendance. Other members of the household, after following prescribed precautions, which include removing out of the sick room, are free to follow their daily routine as usual. This is known as modified quarantine.

"On the other hand, there are certain types of diseases which call for a stricter application of this principle due to their seriousness and the facility with which they can be spread. In this latter classification are smallpox and epidemic meningitis.

"As disease is no respecter of persons, falling upon the good and the bad, the wise and the foolish, the rich and the poor alike, there is absolutely no reason for anyone to be ashamed of a quarantine sign. Criticism enters only when an absolute or modified quarantine is disregarded, as epidemics are likely to result. Epidemics are always serious and can be devastating.

"Thus, while quarantine of any type is bound to be an inconvenience to the family concerned, the law of the greatest good to the greatest number is the one that must be applied. Temporary inconvenience or personal desire must give way to this type of protection against the further spread of infection.

There were a total of 3,079 grade crossing-motor vehicle accidents in the United States during 1939.

Budget Agency Urged

Shedding light on the reasons behind complicated and uncontrolled Federal spending on non-essentials is the proposal of Senator Holman of Oregon to place Federal Budget control in the hands of the representatives of the people. Senator Holman attributes a large share of non-war spending to the method of initiating appropriations at the instance of the Executive Branch of Government, rather than the Legislative. The Senator's analysis reveals that the executive branch initiates the requests for funds; the Bureau of the Budget, part of the Executive branch, does the recommending; and Congress has only an uninformed opportunity to concur in the majority of instances. The establishment of a separate, independent Congressional Budget Agency reporting only to Congress, would provide a needed independent analysis and check. The proposal of Senator Holman deserves careful study.

AT A MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, HELD AT NORFOLK, VIRGINIA, ON WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1942, THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION WAS UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTED BY A RISING VOTE OF ALL THE MEMBERS PRESENT:

"The members of the Board of Directors of Norfolk Southern Railway Company record with a profound sense of loss the death of Louis H. Windholz, Chairman of the Board of the Railway Company, on Friday, July 24, 1942.

"On July 28, 1932, Mr. Windholz, was appointed by the District Court of the United States one of the Receivers for Norfolk Southern Railroad Company and upon the consummation of the reorganization of that Company in January, 1942, he was unanimously elected Chairman of the Board of Directors of the reorganized Company.

We recall with deep appreciation the devoted attention he gave to the problems of the railroad company during the difficult periods of receivership and reorganization. His broad experience, keen vision and wise counsel were of inestimable value in the preservation and management of the property and affairs of the railroad. The Norfolk Southern Railway Company continued to be the beneficiary of these qualities of leadership and devotion to its affairs during the all too brief period of his chairmanship of the Board.

"He was active in civic and communal enterprises, and there was warmth and broad range to his sympathies and activities. He willingly and cheerfully accepted responsibilities, rendered notable service to the community, and was in the fullest sense a distinguished citizen.

"His life was one of readiness to serve others. His charm of manner and his qualities of heart and mind attracted and made their impress upon all who were privileged to know him. Of these qualities his fellow directors and officers and the members of the staff of the Railway Company were the beneficiaries in full measure. He will be sorely missed and long remembered.

"To the members of his family we tender our deep sympathy in the personal loss which they have sustained.

"RESOLVED, that this minute be spread upon the record of this meeting of the Board and that an engraved copy be sent to the family of our late beloved associate."

President.

Publicity Boondoggling Borders on Ridiculous

Federal publicity often borders on the ridiculous, reports the Citizens Emergency Committee. Four days before Pearl Harbor the Navy Department released to the nation the favorite recipes of Navy officer's wives. One recipe was for "Niu Moa Ai," a Hawaiian concoction of coconut and chicken. Another was for "Rum-Bumble Pudding." Nearly five months after Pearl Harbor, the Department of Agriculture released for the edification of taxpayers, "Fashion predictions in sundae, ice creams and sherberts. Royal Apricot, Stanwick Nectarine, Passion Fruit, and Klondike Strawberry." On other occasions the Department has surprised American readers with such releases as "War Places New Burden on Eastern Russian Agriculture," and a bibliography on agriculture of American Indians. The Library of Congress contributes its share under titles such as "Bibliography of Latin American Folk Music."

... Rusting away all over this country ... can help lose the war for America. For half of every tank, gun, ship, and submarine is made from scrap.

Some steel furnaces are down, and others are working from hand to mouth, facing shut-downs, because there's an acute shortage of precious scrap metal, which is remelted with pig iron to make our machines of war. Unless 6,000,000 additional tons of scrap is uncovered and turned in promptly, the full rate of war production cannot be attained or increased. The tanks and guns and ships so desperately needed cannot be produced. Result: a critical bog down in our war effort.

Fortunately, there is enough scrap in this country to see us through — millions of pounds of it in the form of worn-out or obsolete machinery, rusted old pipes, storage tanks, fencing, pumps, beams, cables, chains, and boilers (like the abandoned 1,700 pounder pictured above, which contains enough steel to make half of 84 good American machine guns). America's scrap must be turned in. Every factory, warehouse, store, shop, farm, attic, basement and garage must be combed for the last pound of scrap, if we are to give our fighting men the fighting machines they must have to win. It is the duty of every last one of us to get in the scrap for Victory. Look over your premises thoroughly today and turn in all the scrap you can lay your hands on. The time is short.

From the beginning, the Norfolk and Western Railway has cooperated in the nation's campaign to salvage scrap for America's war effort. This Railroad is accumulating and turning back into productive channels approximately 5,500 tons of scrap metal per month — and is reclaiming, for further use, everything down to the smallest nut and bolt.
